It was moved by Mr. Banwell and seconded by Mr. Ure that the new school at No. 5 be named the Charles Collins Public School.

The December meeting, 1957, was the last one for The Home & School Association in the old school as following the Christmas vacation, the new school would be ready to accept classes. On Dec. 20th, pictured in a Star release were students of S. S. No. 5 with reasons to be happy. Five of them are gazing out the window of the new school at the old one just across the corner, which had served as the little red school house for their fathers and grandfathers. The new brick constructed school was a two-roomed spacious school of modern design. The official opening exercises and dedication would be held on Friday evening, February 28th, 1958 at 8.15 p.m. in the school which is located at the corner of South Talbot Road and Malden Road.

Arrangements were made with Mr. Charles Collins to purchase two and a half acres, at $1250, off his farm. This is across the corner from the old school, which the Board decided to retain for possible use as an auxiliary class-room at some future date, but in Jan., 1959, it was turned over to the Board of the new Retarded School which was organized by parents of four pupils in the area requiring this type of instruction.

The Annual Report of Sandwich South School Board for 1957 covered the new school as follows: "The Board again this year was faced with the problem of providing adequate classroom facilities in one school section where the enrollment was higher than could be handled by one teacher. Last year it was necessary to transport pupils from No. 5 to other schools and a survey indicated that the enrollment this September would be 55 pupils. The Board called a meeting of the ratepayers in No. 5 School Section to talk over the problem and on April 15th a resolution was entered in the minutes of the Board calling for the building of a new two-roomed school in the vicinity of the existing No. 5 school. Land was purchased across the corner from the old school from Mr. Chas. Collins, 2½ acres for $1250.

It was decided to use the same plans as for Fairplay Public School and architect H. W. Storey's office was asked to make any minor changes necessitated by the location of the new school. By using the same plans, the architect's fees were reduced from the usual 5 to 5% and it was expected that approvals could be obtained more quickly from the Department of Education and the Ontario Municipal Board.

On June 28th, a contract was awarded to D'Amore Constuction (Windsor) Limited for $38,250. Architect's fees, legal and other fees, furniture and equipment would bring the total cost of the school to approximately $44,000.

The Charles Collins Public School, when completed will be a one-floor brick building with its two classrooms facing South Talbot Road. The south half of the building is taken up with boiler room and wash rooms, and the entire hall leads from the teacher's room to a rear door through which an additional classroom can be added if necessary at some future date. The school is modern in every respect, featuring asbestos roof decking sky lighting in the classrooms, tile floors and terazzo, acoustic tile ceilings, spectra-glaze block walls in halls and washrooms, floor to ceiling cupboards in the large teachers' room.

Total coverage for fire was increased this year by $7000.00 on the seven single classrooms to $72,000, and by $2000 on Fairplay Public School to $40,000, making a total insurance coverage of $112,000. This does not include Charles Collins School which will be covered by the Board when it is completed by the contractor.

Voluntary Accident Insurance - The Board gave Kenneth MacKenzie permission to make a survey of the Area for the purpose of enrolling students in a voluntary accident insurance plan. For $1.50 per year, parents can insure students for medical expenses up to $200, dental expenses up to $100 per year, hospital and trained nurses' fees, and death benefits of $2000. March 10, 1961 - If the buttons are popping off the tunics of the members of the Kingsville and Essex Associated Band, it is due to great efforts of a small boy. Richard Van Eenoo joined the band two years ago, and with surprising speed learned to play the euphonium. On seeing the two together, there appears to be more "horn" than "boy" but "size" proved no barrier in this particular case for when Richard entered the Windsor Musical Festival on Feb. 27th he placed first in the euphonium solo class with 86 marks. Frederick Carter, the adjudicator complimented him on his very good tone and breath control. On March 1st he captured another first and 84 marks by singing "Morning Song" in the boy's solo class of eleven years and under.
