Sandwich South Township To Leave Legacy For Next Century

Celebrating their 1893-1993 Centennial, residents of the Township of Sandwich South have one more day of activities planned for tomorrow to take them one year closer to their township's next hundred years.

The municipality will be burying a time-capsule December 31st to mark the closing of the Centennial activities, which will be followed by a New Years celebration at St. Mary's Hall in Maidstone.

If tomorrow's event is anything like previous events this year, the hall will probably be packed, wall to wall.

"It's been a fantastic year," said Sandwich South Reeve Alan Parr. "I'm just thrilled to death with what our Centennial Committee has done for the people of this municipality. They went out, heart and soul, to show us what our township is really about. They've done a fabulous job. Our council is very proud of our committee and what they've done."

The township kicked off a year of events and celebrations last January, with a re-enactment of the township's first council
