

IF FARMERS TODAY think plowing is hard work they should try it the old-fashioned way, as Howard Holden of Oldcastle did Saturday at the Essex County Plowmen's Association plowing match. Ray Shanahan of Maidstone walks beside Holden. The Essex County Plowmen's Association is bidding for the 1989 International Plowing Match and will find out at a February meeting if its efforts have been successful.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop

One of the main topics of conversation in this locality this week was the weather. Storms that ripped through Ontario and parts of U.S.A. were felt here with high velocity winds and blinding snow. Many farm homes and buildings had roofing ripped and traffic on some roads and highways was slowed down due to drifting and slippery conditions. Farmers that had planned on early seeding were set back by the late March weather that went out as a roaring lion instead of a meek lamb.

Well Known Farmer Passes

Sandwich South Township, this past week, laid to rest one of its most prominent and popular farmers of the community. Newton Holden, for many years, a director of the Oldcastle Co-op, succumbed, following a five months' illness. Funeral services were held at St. Stephen's Church with interment in the church cemetery.

Many residents of this township will miss the friendly and cheerful character of Mr. Holden. Sincere sympathy is extended to his wife and relatives.

JIM LYNN

Lynn rewarded with Bitkowski Trophy

Twenty-year-old James Dewart (Jim) Lynn, a recent graduate of Centennial Secondary School, is the ninth recipient of the Bruno Bitkowski Memorial Trophy.

This award goes annually to the "most gentlemanly athlete of the year" in the Windsor Secondary Schools Association and is presented by the Windsor Coaches' Association.

During the past school year, Lynn gained acclaim as an All-City lineman in football and WSSA heavyweight wrestling champion. He also participated in track and field as a shot putter.

Lynn, who stands six feet tall and weighs 230 pounds, celebrated his 20th birthday last Sunday.

He is described by his principal, Harvey Ward, as "a gentleman on and off the field or mat and through his quiet mannerisms, has set an example for other Centennial students and athletes. His leadership ability is beyond reproach and his 230 pounds has never been used in an unsportsmanlike way.

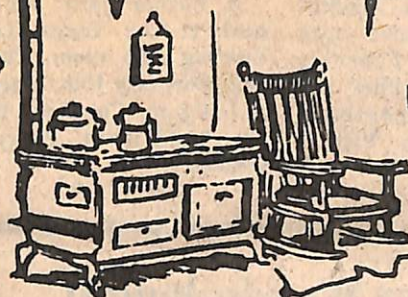

"He respects the opposition and is concerned for their welfare. Jim is an easy going, mature individual who has made a lasting impression on me."

Lynn is the second Centennial student-athlete to win the Bitkowski Trophy. It was taken by Jim Chase for the 1970-71 school year.

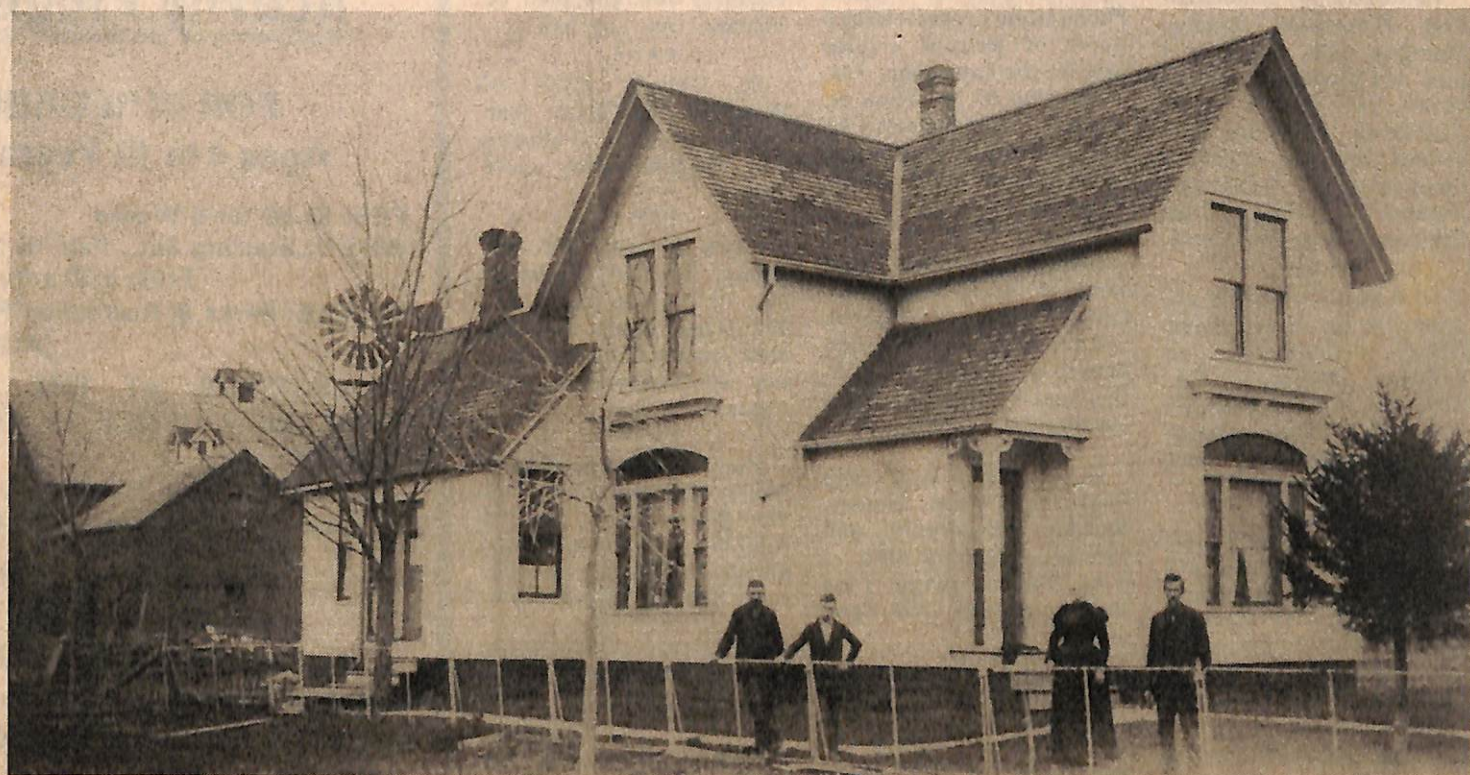

One year ago, the award was shared by John Boots of Brennan High and Bob Hogan of Herman.

Also given consideration in this year's balloting were Henry Fortuna of Kennedy, Gary Sinasac of Lowe and Bruce Walker of Assumption.

Many people who read Norm Hull's Now column in the Windsor Daily Star must enjoy the compliment he paid Mrs. Stanley Holden on her teaching children the tribute to the dead passing S.S. No. 6 School. Some years ago Norm was an old school chum of ours at the old Windsor Walkerville Tech. It is also a great tribute to a reporter who can find time to report the little things of life that are not forgotten.

In this day and age and the rush rush of life, people have slipped in the acts of courtesy and just plain humanity and often death is just a matter of form. Mrs. Holden has kept up the traditions of some of the teachers we remember at No. 6.

Some years ago teachers like Agnes McGlaughlin, Lois Eastlake and Mrs. Hugh O'Neil of whom we remember, never failed to start classes without prayer or one of the lessons from the Bible. Yet in those days also people would accuse teachers of starting a religious war or trying to make members of the cloth out of little Horatio. They could have done worse as even some of our professors of great educational institutions have done. Communism has been taught openly for some time before authorities used the axe.

July 21, 1961 - Received the Congo medal from Col. H. A. C. Stehman, Sr. Canadian Officer in the Congo. Ceremony in Leppoldville.

Stan Holden claims times have changed a great deal. When one called and said they were about to visit you. Naturally you looked out the widow to see if they were on the way down the road. Stan claims those days are like water over the dam. They are gone.

Son Ron Holden phoned from Ottawa that he would fly down with his commanding officer and be off to the Tiger game in Detroit.

"How will I know you are at the airport Ron", asked dad?

"I will fly over home and dip my wings and you will know I am there."

In a matter of three hours that is what happened and a good time was had by all and the poor old horse in the pasture went on eating grass with no work to do.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

We must compliment the editors of the Sun Rays. In case you wonder what kind of sun rays this is, it is the little paper of the senior citizens at Sun Parlor Home at Leamington.

Some seem to think because one wears glasses, two sets of choppers from the tooth pullers, carry a cane or limps or are slightly over the mini skirt, bobby sox, hippie age that one is either square or rustic or out of date with the times.

Believe you me the Sun Rays shows a radiant spirit of pioneers of Essex County that cannot be erased by either gray or balding hair on ones poke. We are especially interested in poems written by writer J. L. Holden and we are willing to gamble the J. means Jessie. Best of luck to all the citizens and we know that the J. L. can compose poems that are still not heard or read.

Holden Service Award Recipient

The service award given by Essex County Soil and Crop Improvement Association (ECSCIA) was won by Howard Holden of Oldcastle.

He received the recognition for volunteer service at the annual dinner meeting.

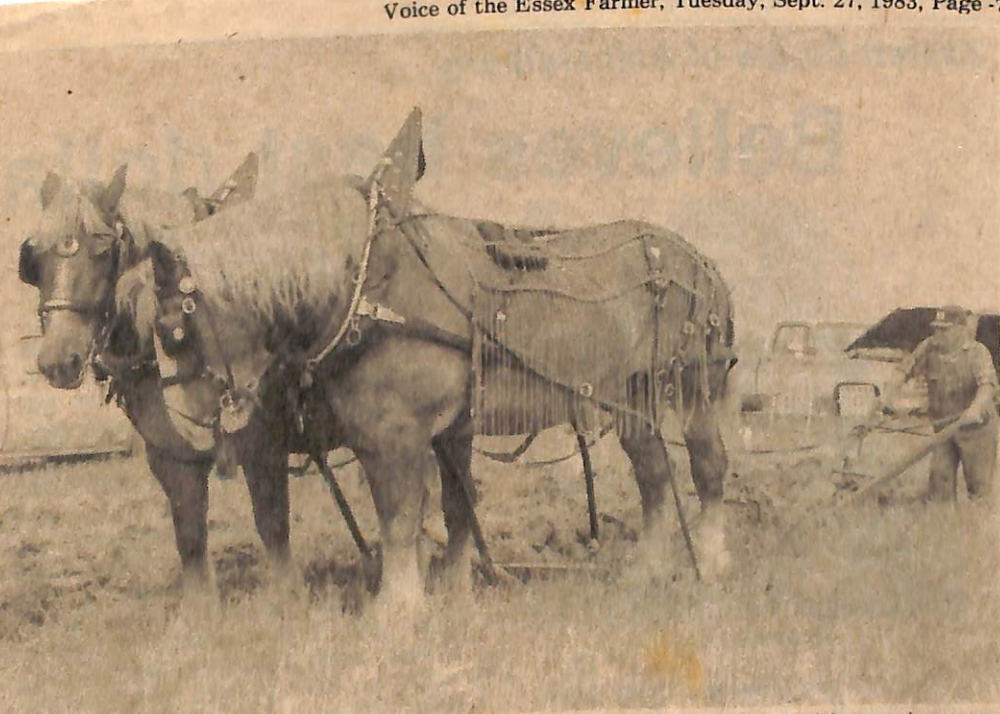

With a record of life long activity in farm groups, Mr. Holden was a member of the forerunner 4-H groups, was county president of the Junior Farmers in 1947 and '48, joined and became director of the soil and crop organization and was a delegate to provincial conferences. As well he was vice-president and became the 1956 president of soil and crop.

He was one of the planners of the annual farmers week held at one time in Essex and belonged to the Oldcastle agricultural society when he entered field crop competition. He has been a provincial director of the local wheat producers and a member of the county milk producers and the federation of agriculture.

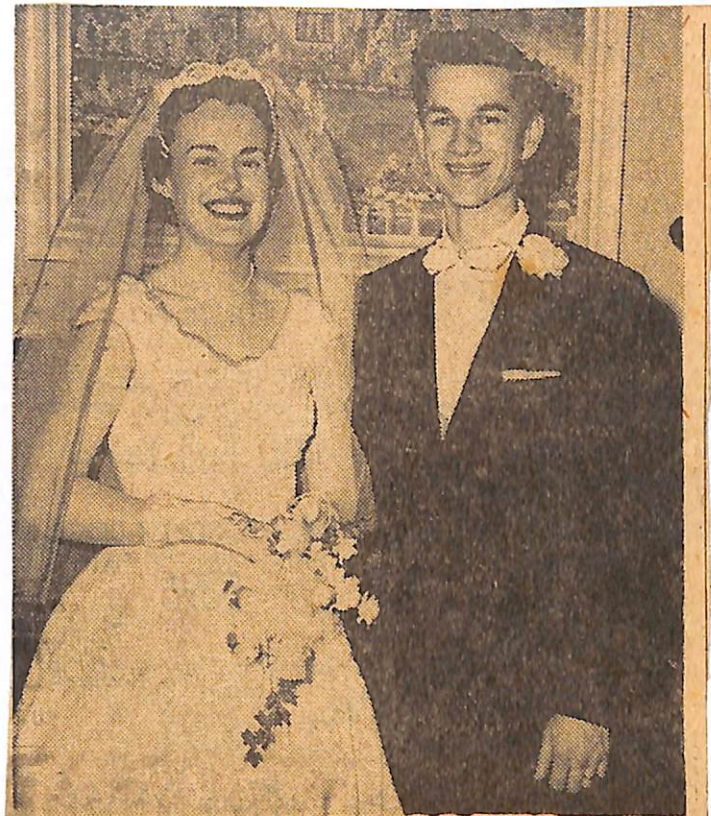

Howard Holden (right) of Oldcastle, received the annual service award from the Essex County Soil and Crop Improvement Association for his contribution to farm organizations. This Sandwich South Township farmer has worked in farm groups all of his life starting with the forerunner of 4-H groups. He was president of Junior Farmers in 1947 and '48, moved into the Soil and Crop organization, where he became a director and a delegate to the provincial conference; vice-president in 1954 and president in 1956. He worked with the agricultural representatives to plan the annual Farmers Week held in Essex at one time. Other groups of membership are the Oldcastle Agricultural Society, Essex County Wheat Producers, Federation of Agriculture and Milk Producers. Gail Holden and Ronald Wigle Wed at Double-Ring Ceremony

At an impressive double-ring ceremony in St. Stephen's Anglican Church, Miss Gail T. Holden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Holden of Oldcastle, was united in marriage to Mr. Ronald G. Wigle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wigle of Essex, Rev. C. Houghton officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white French lace over slipper satin, fashioned in redingote style, with a scooped neckline accented with lace medallions centred with pearls. Her fingertip-length veil of French illusion was held to her head in a lace half-hat appliqued with tiny brilliants and pearls. She carried feathered carnations around an orchid.

Miss Gail Wigle, the bridegroom's sister, as maid of honor, wore Nile green crystalette, fashioned with a heart-shaped neckline outlined with pleating, a fitted waistline and a full skirt, cocktail-length, with a fold of the material at the hemline. A halo hat held her circular veil of matching green, and she carried orchids.

Mr. Fred Wass was best man, and the bride's brother, Mr. Gar Holden, was usher.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Holden was gowned for the occasion in royal blue printed silk, a two-piece costume, and wore a black cloche with a white brim, and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Wigle was in a two-piece ensemble of steel gray, with lace trimming the bodice. Her pillbox hat was navy, and she wore pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Wigle left later for a trip to Georgia, the bride donning for traveling a sheath of gray shantung, with a matching cape, and wearing mauve accessories and an orchid corsage.

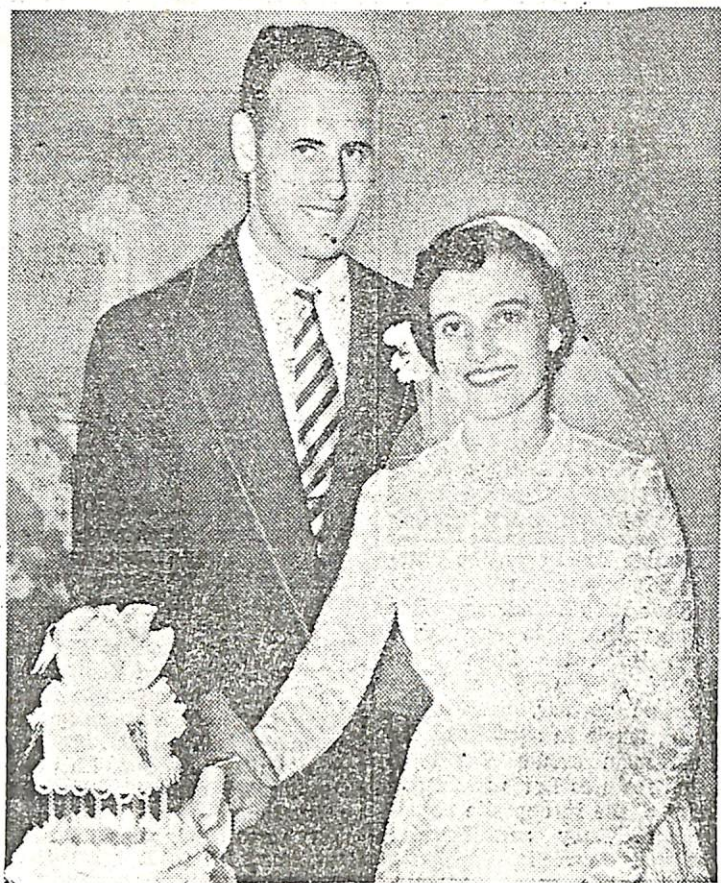

On their return, they will reside at 2318 Meighen Rd.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a floor-length gown of white French lace and nylon net over satin, featuring a fitted bodice, a portrait collar and long, tight-fitting sleeves of lace which formed points over her hands. The bouffant skirt was of three deep tiers of finely-pleated nylon net over satin appliqued with crocheted lace. Her two-tiered veil of French illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls, and she carried a shower cascade of pink rosebuds and bouvardia.

SISTER MAID OF HONOR

Miss Bertha Holden, as her sister's maid of honor, wore a strapless gown of pink imported Swiss organdie over taffeta with a matching cape and mitts. Her matching picture hat was heart-shaped, and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Miss Jean Holden, another sister, Miss Grace Pack, the bridegroom's sister, and Miss Mary Price, as bridesmaids, wore pale blue gowns, identical to that of the maid of honor, and carried bouquets of coral pink roses.

The bride's niece, little Marlene Ann Holden, as flower girl, wore a floor-length gown of baby pink satin bows and rows of net. Her headpiece was made of tiny pink flowers, and she carried a nosegay of pink roses and asters.

BEST MAN

Mr. Bill Light was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Frederick Bilyea, Mr. John Knight and Mr. Howard Holden.

Mrs. Clyde O'Neil played the wedding music and Miss Shirley Pack, the bridegroom's cousin, sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony and "Because" during the signing of the register.

Mrs. Holden chose for her daughter's wedding a two-piece dress of blue sheer with a lace jacket, white accessories and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Pack wore a toast-colored dress of lace and sheer, with brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

A reception for 75 guests followed at Mario's.

The couple left later on a wedding trip north, the bride traveling in a pale blue nylon marquisette over taffeta with white accessories and a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

Essex Man Tells Club of New Life for Nigeria

Home on leave from Nigeria where he serves as agriculture officer with the British Colonial Service, Mr. Weldon Findlay of Essex was guest speaker last night at a meeting of the South Windsor Kiwanis Club which had as its guests members of the Essex County Junior

Nigeria's Improvement Described

The remarkable transformation in Nigerian economic, social and political life during the last 15 years is only a beginning, Weldon Findlay of Essex, an agricultural officer with the British Colonial Service told a meeting of the South Windsor Kiwanis Club last night.

The son of Harold Findlay of Essex, the speaker is home on leave from his service in Nigeria. Members of the Essex County Junior Farmers and of the Junior Institute were guests of the South Windsor Kiwanis.

A graduate of Ontario Agricultural College, Mr. Findlay served in Trinidad before going to Nigeria in Africa.

He described the development of the country, which next year will decide if it wants sovereignty. It is the largest dependent territory in the British Commonwealth and has an area about the same as Ontario. The population is some 32 million of which only some 16,000 are non-African, making Nigeria the most populous country in Africa.

He described the speeded-up program of Britain to bring the people of various racial and social backgrounds to a position of self government as a great experiment. While at present only some 12 percent of the people are literate, about half the children are now in schools.

While agriculture production methods are still mainly primitive, great strides have been taken in recent years. The export trade of the country now flourishes.

Under a 10-year plan, Britain contributed 60 million pounds sterling and the Nigerian government 70 million pounds for education and development.

While the rapid rise from a primitive state had many drawbacks, these were being overcome by the intense desire on the part of Nigerians for education. This desire was permitting the modification of the once rigid social customs of the natives.

Entirely new farming techniques had to be learned for work in the tropics, Mr. Findlay said. Provincial farms are used as centres for developing improved crop, fowl and animal strains.

Delta land, once thought useless, is being cleared under the program. The land has been found capable of producing a ton of rice per acre. The increase in rice production will mean much to raising the nutritional standards of the Nigerians. The cleared land is being leased to the natives to farm.

Like farmers the world over, Mr. Findlay said, the Nigerians are conservative and skeptical about new methods. New ideas had to be introduced with extreme care.

Introduction of fertilizer had an unexpected consequence. Many native women took the word literally. It was some time before the reason why a number of women became ill was discovered. Native doctors had used the fertilizer to make fertility potions.

Virginia and Cape Cod Trip Follows Double-Ring Rites

At an impressive ceremony at Grace and Truth Chapel, Miss Bertha Rose Holden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holden of Oldcastle, was united in marriage to Mr. James Frederick Hill of Windsor. Mr. Boston Simmons officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

During the ceremony, Mr. Kenneth Stewart sang "Wedding Hymn," "Marriage Prayer" and "Together," accompanied by Mrs. William Weir.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of bridal taffeta and Chantilly lace appliqued with lace medallions on the skirt. All lace insets on the gown were embroidered with seed pearls and white bugle beads. Her veil of tulle was held by a lace cap embroidered with pearls and bugle beads and she carried red roses, white chrysanthemums and stephanotis.

As her sister's matron of honor, Mrs. Ivison Pack wore waltz-length larkspur-blue Alencon lace with the crushed bodice forming an Empire waistline. She wore a sculptured half hat in matching lace embroidered with seed pearls and carried pink roses, white chrysanthemums and stephanotis.

The bridesmaid, Mrs. Dewart Lynn, also sister of the bride, was similarly gowned to the matron of honor. As her aunt's flower girl, Susan Holden wore pink nylon and roses in her hair, and carried a nosegay of multi-colored flowers.

in a powder blue honan silk dress with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill will reside at 2122 London St. W.

Guests from out of town at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. William Hill and their children, Ronald and Judy, of Akron, Ohio; Mrs. John Ludy of Toronto and Mrs. Clara McKee of Detroit.

Mr. William Hill of Akron, Ohio, assisted the bridegroom as best man and the ushers were Mr. Howard Holden, Mr. Ivison Pack and Mr. Dewart Lynn.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 150 guests was held in the parish hall of St. Stephen's Anglican Church. Receiving guests were the bride's mother, in a dusty rose dress with a flower-trimmed straw hat, white accessories and a chrysanthemum corsage, and the sister-in-law of the bridegroom, Mrs. William Hill, wearing chartreuse with white accessories and a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums.

Plowing match a big draw

By Scott Burnside
Star Staff Reporter

LEAMINGTON — In decades past, they would have spent long, sweat-filled days trudging over the soil behind a team of horses.

On Saturday it was a walk in the park.

"Most other people go out and golf. We go out and plow," said Howard Holden with a smile as big as an ear of corn.

Holden had just finished tearing up a small patch of land with two gleaming black Percheron horses. The single furrow plow lay on its side and the 69-year-old farmer was fielding compliments from spectators and competitors at the annual Essex County Plowing Match.

"You can do anything if the horses go slow enough," Holden, winner of the walking class, said to one man.

Contestants don't get extra marks for speed in competition plowing. Instead, judges look for straight furrows that are consistently about 20 cm deep, with a nice rough top to hold the rain-water.

"IT'S A HELL of a lot easier to grab a hold of a steering wheel," Holden said.

The horse-drawn competition was one of 17 different classes in the one-day event, held on a 32-hectare section of Jim Wright's farm near Staples. With 35 registered in the youngsters' garden tractor plowing event, the number of participants in this year's event swelled to 105 — about double the usual number. Wright's son Ken, 2, won the youngest plowman award.

Organizer Kevin Smith of the Essex County Plowman's Association said the increase is probably due to interest aroused by next year's International Plowing Match to be held in Maidstone Township. This year's international match will be in Stratford, Sept. 17-24.

Smith estimated total attendance would be in the neighborhood of 1,500.

For some of the younger participants, competition was the hook. But for others like Holden and Bill Mullins of Comber, it was a chance to reawaken some fond memories.

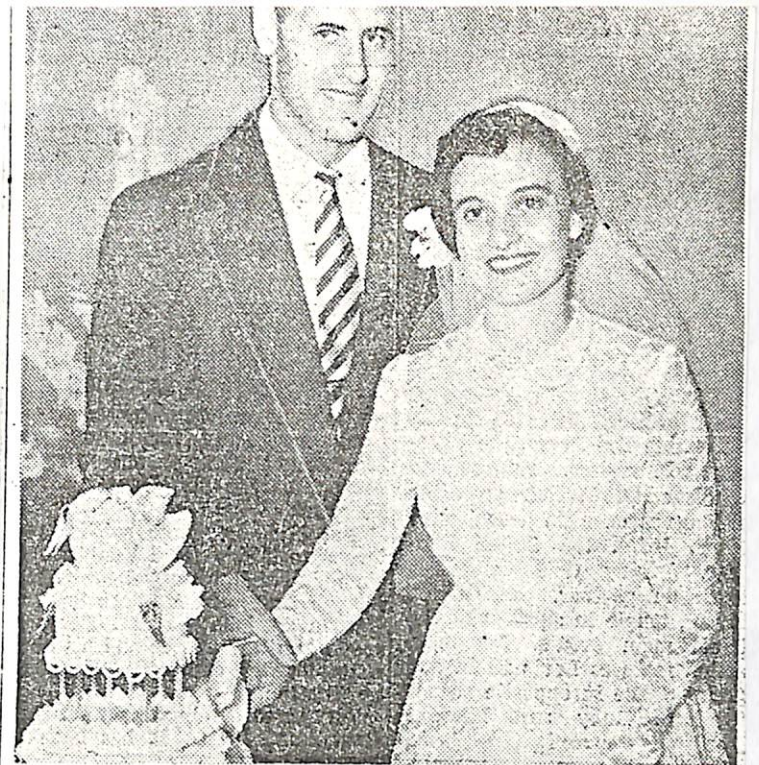

MULLINS COMPETED in the walking plow drawn by tractor division, which is for "old-timers" who don't have a team of horses.

He chuckled and pointed to a place where a big stone had broken his rhythm.

"When you hit a rock, why your plow jumps right up on you," he said.

He recalled his father buying the first plow for the family farm during the Depression. He paid $5 for it. "All the neighbors used it," Mullins said.

Other winners include: best plowed land, Russell Deslippe of Amherstburg; large plow award, Brad Anger of Harrow; utility plowing, Tom Specht of Amherstburg; conservation tillage, Mike Gee of Essex, and antique class, Fred Bailey of RR 1, Amherstburg. Queen of the Furrow was Marie Hall of Essex.

AT THE REINS -- With the advent of modern machinery, few plows are pulled by horses any more. Taking a grip on the horse-drawn plow, above, is Clair Keeley of Windsor, former Essex County clerk for 33 years. Keeley has been a director of the Essex Ploughman's Association since 1949 and was secretary of the local committee of the International Plowing Match and Farm Machinery Show when it was held in Essex County in 1955. With him is horse class competitor Howard Holden of R.R. 1, Oldcastle.

Senior citizens looking to active year

By JIM ESTE

LEAMINGTON — After a slow start since it was formed one year ago, the Sun Parlor Home for Senior Citizen's residents' council is looking for an active second year.

When the council was formed a year ago it had 11 members, some good ideas, but didn't represent a cross-section of all the floors and wings of the home.

Since a month ago the membership on council has risen to 15, including a five-member executive committee, and now does include representation from all sections of the 290-bed senior citizens home.

A newspaper committee, formed several months ago, will be publishing a quarterly newspaper, which will include news items, poetry and articles done by residents of the home.

The committee is the first active one formed within the framework of the council.

Presently there is an active home service committee and it will probably begin to work in conjunction with the council.

When questioned, council president Jim Garwood indicated the residents council had had sidewalk repair work started and completed, had had mirrors added to the rooms in the new addition, as well as selected the paint and color scheme for the 1972 repainting program.

Case worker Lynn Devitt, the home administrator's representative on the council, said the new council is "really changing. More committees will be organized this year. The council is now taking a big part in making recommendations to the Home Ladies's Auxiliary."

Problems or questions from residents are presented the council which will in turn approach the administrator for action.

Liason between the administrative office and the ladies auxiliary is good, and administrator Clarence Holland said he is "very satisfied" with the job the council is doing. "It has been a great help," he said.

Plans are under way to hold an international night once a month and when senior citizens' week comes in late spring.

Junior Farmers Evolves in Community

Forty years of Junior Farmer activity was celebrated in Essex Saturday night when most former presidents joined the club of today for a social evening. The first one, Howard

Although many goals of Junior Farmers of Ontario have been carried through the 40 years of its Essex County existence, most have evolved to encompass the community.

The organization began in 1914 as a means of educating young men in improved farm practices. Today its motto is expanded to Self Help and Community Betterment.

Laura Rumbles, of Kingsville, who organized the reunion in Essex, drew attention to the many names that identified early members which belong to present day members as well.

Junior Farmers of Ontario began in 1914. About the same time Junior Women's Institutes were organized for girls. The two merged in 1947.

That was the year Howard Holden of Oldcastle became president of the Essex County group which was formed in 1944, three years before amalgamation.

At the reunion of former members at Essex Saturday Howard Holden recalled the convention in Guelph when the two groups joined. Of the four from Essex County who attended he recalled Charles Diemer and Orpha Stotts Trepanier, besides himself.

Charles Diemer was active in organizing a Woodslee club of which he was first president. According to Mr.

Holden, of Oldcastle, and the only provincial president from Essex County, Jack Morris of Tilbury, joined the 1984 president, Don Rounding for a picture.

Holden, Charles was interim president of the reorganized group that encompassed Oldcastle and Woodslee clubs until the official year-end election when Mr. Holden was elected to top spot.

In the ten years he was with the club there were some provincial meetings and gatherings at Ridgetown but not the exchange visits and conventions of today.

"We did have a sports day. Our group was involved."

And he recalled the members worked actively in farm events such as the plowing match.

"We did a lot of work with the international plowing match when it was in Blytheswood in 1955. I was in charge of the tours by wagon and team."

Being a junior farmer today means being in a steady round of activities. And you don't have to be a farm resident, or even a rural resident to be a member.

President Don Rounding gave a run-down of this year's activities: working on the annual country Food Tour, giving a display at Devonshire Mall during the farm show there, taking Scout or Guide groups on farm tours, hay rides, car rally, socials, zone conference, exchange programs, annual banquet and a special event this year, the Sing Swing hosted by the Essex County group in the Windsor University. About 1800 are expected to attend the showcase of public speaking and plays, and singing and fun to be held.

This year the local group will make a donation to the Harrow Fair board and institute a scholarship of $100 for a high school graduating active junior farmers member who will attend university.

Today there are over 8000 members between the ages of 15 and 29 in Ontario. The original idea of training to be better farmers has emerged as experiences to aid members to be better citizens.

Junior Farmers are seeking the opportunity to reach their potential, to meet other young people both in their locality and across the nation -- indeed the world, opportunity to experience responsibilities of leadership and to enjoy life fully.

Member exchanges are sponsored with youth in similar organizations throughout the world.

Recently a banner has been introduced which proclaims We've Got a Hold on the Sun.

Over the years since Junior Farmers began locally there have been 1100 members and 35 presidents, plus four more in a West Essex club that functioned from 1974 to 79.

They are Howard Holden, Alice Kiehm, Lloyd Knapp, Marie Fox, Murray McLean, Don Steckle, Morley Hyland, Max Smith, Lauren Bridgen, Walter Hyland, Charles Dalton, Jerome Deslippe, Cliff Balkwill, Dick Gibb, Robert Affleck, Robert Boose, Jay Anger, Mary Ann Boose, Jim Morris, Kevin Holden, Bob Coulter, Tony Unholzer, Carlyle Dales, Rosemary Roadhouse, Lee Pearce, Carolyn Recker, Perry Pearce, Velma Jacobs, Joyce Graham, Barb Armstrong, Rachel Gagnier, Ken Menard, Mark Balkwill, Bernard Nelson, Don Rounding. West Essex presidents were Tim Buhler, Lloyd Knapp Jr., Gary Cassie and Brian Haggins.

Essex County Junior Farmers had one provincial president in 66-67, Jack Morris who later became warden of Essex County.

Holden-Funkenhauser

He knows where it's at (WCNS) — Once upon a time a mathematics teacher at a local high school came to the realization that there was money — big money — to be made in the bizarre, always hectic world of rock music. After a brief period of managing one or two local bands Barry Holden entered into a partnership with Gunther Funkenhauser of Funkenhauser Productions and began to carve a name for himself as a rock music booking agent.

Over the past five years Holden has become the major shareholder in Funkenhauser Productions and is perhaps the most influential man in Windsor's rock music scene. He works from his California Avenue home on the city's west side, generally can be found wearing cut off shorts and a T-shirt, and has a secretary that would turn Mickey Spillane green with envy.

But life for young Mr. Holden is not casual in any sense of the word: his days are spent on the telephone bartering with other agents, club owners, and over-zealous band members, while his evenings are often spent travelling between Windsor, Sarnia, and Detroit viewing bands.

According to Mr. Holden the music scene in the Windsor area tends to follow trends set in Toronto rather than in Detroit. He notes that the disco sound which has inundated the Toronto area for the past several years has been forsaken there for the heavy funk sounds of bands such as Aerosmith and R.E.O. Speedwagon. He believes this trend's similarly surfacing in the Windsor area. He gives disco music only another year of popularity in the Detroit area.

Of the four discos that opened in Windsor in or around last May Mr. Holden emphasizes that only the Discotrek in the Wandlyn Viscount Hotel is surviving on a sound financial basis. Also the Discotrek is the only one of the four to seriously affect his agency business.

Mr. Holden doesn't discount the continued existence of discos altogether, but rather notes that they will tend to spread out with only a few such specialized clubs surviving in the Metropolitan Detroit area.

Mr. Holden, however, is not bitter about the recent disco trend saying that he is glad it occurred because it gave musicians the impetus to get out and look for an alternative. He added sardonically though, "Disco is too boring."

Geographically Funkenhauser Productions directly books clubs between London, Ontario and Cleveland, Ohio. On a peripheral basis, through the use of go-between agents, he claims that they cover an area between Canada's East Coast and Kentucky. Mr. Holden personally books clubs in Windsor, Detroit, Toronto, and Ohio.

His local partners are Joe Quinlan, Gunther Funkenhauser, and on a part-time basis Nick Parent. These three handle the rock groups and high school dances, while Holden confines himself to the "classier" lounge acts.

Both groups of men attempt to provide some sort of managerial service to the more promising members of their stable. Mr. Holden notes that in the area of rock Mr. Funkenhauser and Mr. Quinlan handle their rock groups finances, selection of material and their record promotion.

When queried on the amount of original material being generated by local bands, Mr. Holden said that of 11 bands only 4 are doing any kind of original material and that only 10% of their repertoire is in fact made up of original tunes.

According to sources within the agency, Wyndbridge and Abel Dagger have done some recording in Detroit and Toronto, while a band called Rocks has done some recording at George Hellows' locally owned Polaris Studios, located in the basement of the Embassy Hotel on Tecumseh Road East.

Funkenhauser Productions has a border bond that allows American bands to come to Canada to play. This Customs bond is paid to Canadian Customs to prevent the sale of U.S. equipment duty-free in Canada. Mr. Holden was very quick to point out that although it only takes an hour and a half to bring an American band into Canada, it takes over a month of red tape to send a Canadian band to play in the United States.

Although Funkenhauser Productions deals exclusively with musical acts they are often approached to supply such varied items as Santa Clauses, girls for stags, topless dancers, exotic dancers and television actors. These requests are referred to other more suitable agents.

Mr. Holden was cautious about mentioning members of the compe-

History on the fly

Ron Holden, retired RCAF pilot and president of the Canadian Historical Aircraft Association, was overjoyed with the arrival of a T-33 jet aircraft at Windsor Airport this week. The Montreal-built T-33, known as the T-Bird, was decommissioned from the military and purchased in Trenton. It was disassembled and transported by truck to Windsor and a municipal dedication ceremony is planned for the near future. Oldcastle native, Lt Col. Holden remembers the time he filled a storage compartment of the jet with Essex County sweet corn while on a military refueling stop at Windsor Airport. On his return to base at Cold Lake, Alta., the corn spilled all over the tarmac.

petition saying that there are only one or two other active licenced booking agents in the Windsor market. Along with among 11 and 13 licenced but non-active agents the only one who seems to be providing any competition is Jack Genaro's Entertainment Agency.

Booking agent's battle angers musicians' union

BARRY HOLDEN, the area's most prominent booking agent, has been operating without a licence since January as a statement against what he says is inaction by the American Federation of Musicians (AFM).

TED SHAW
Local Scene

He is considering applying for a new licence soon but he may be in for a cool reception from the local AFM branch, the Windsor Federation of Musicians. Holden's Funkenhauser Productions is the city's most successful band booking agency, but he says only "20 per cent and that would be high" of his acts are paid-up members of the AFM. As well, Holden regularly books out-of-town musicians who are not federation members.

"I was getting a little frustrated in trying to work out common problems with the federation," said Holden this week.

He cited four cases last year in which he applied to the federation for unpaid agent's commissions and didn't get a satisfactory response. Under terms of the licence arrangement, the AFM agrees to represent the agent in disputes over commissions.

But Holden said he must either write off the unpaid commissions, which add up to about $1,000, or take the musicians to small claims court. He thinks it should be up to the federation to force the musicians to pay.

On another tack, Holden was concerned at the growing dissatisfaction among younger musicians with the federation.

"I want the federation to be strong again," said Holden. "Federations in general to me do not seem to be organized businesses with efficiency, follow-through, and a knowledge of what's happening.

"They don't keep up-to-date enough to recognize the needs of younger musicians."

Charges that the AFM is an old boys' network of cronies getting jobs for their friends is a common cry, especially in Windsor.

But Gerry Brannagan, president of AFM-Local 566 in Windsor, said Holden should be trying to change things from within the system, not from the outside.

"It seems to me he's going at it in an odd manner. I don't know where he's coming from, but I do know the number of non-union Americans he brings into this town is horrendous."

Preferring to avoid what he called "a polarization process" by arguing with Holden in print, Brannagan would only say he has seen little evidence in the past that Holden has "the best interests of the federation" at heart.

He is willing to listen, but Brannagan would not say if he is prepared to approve Holden's application for a new licence.

Since failing to renew the licence (and paying the $75 annual fee), Holden has continued to book his acts and claims it is business as usual at Funkenhauser.

During that time, Brannagan wrote Holden twice to complain about the agent's continued use of approved AFM contracts in booking bands. Recently, copies of Holden contracts were received at the federation office with AFM letterhead blacked out.

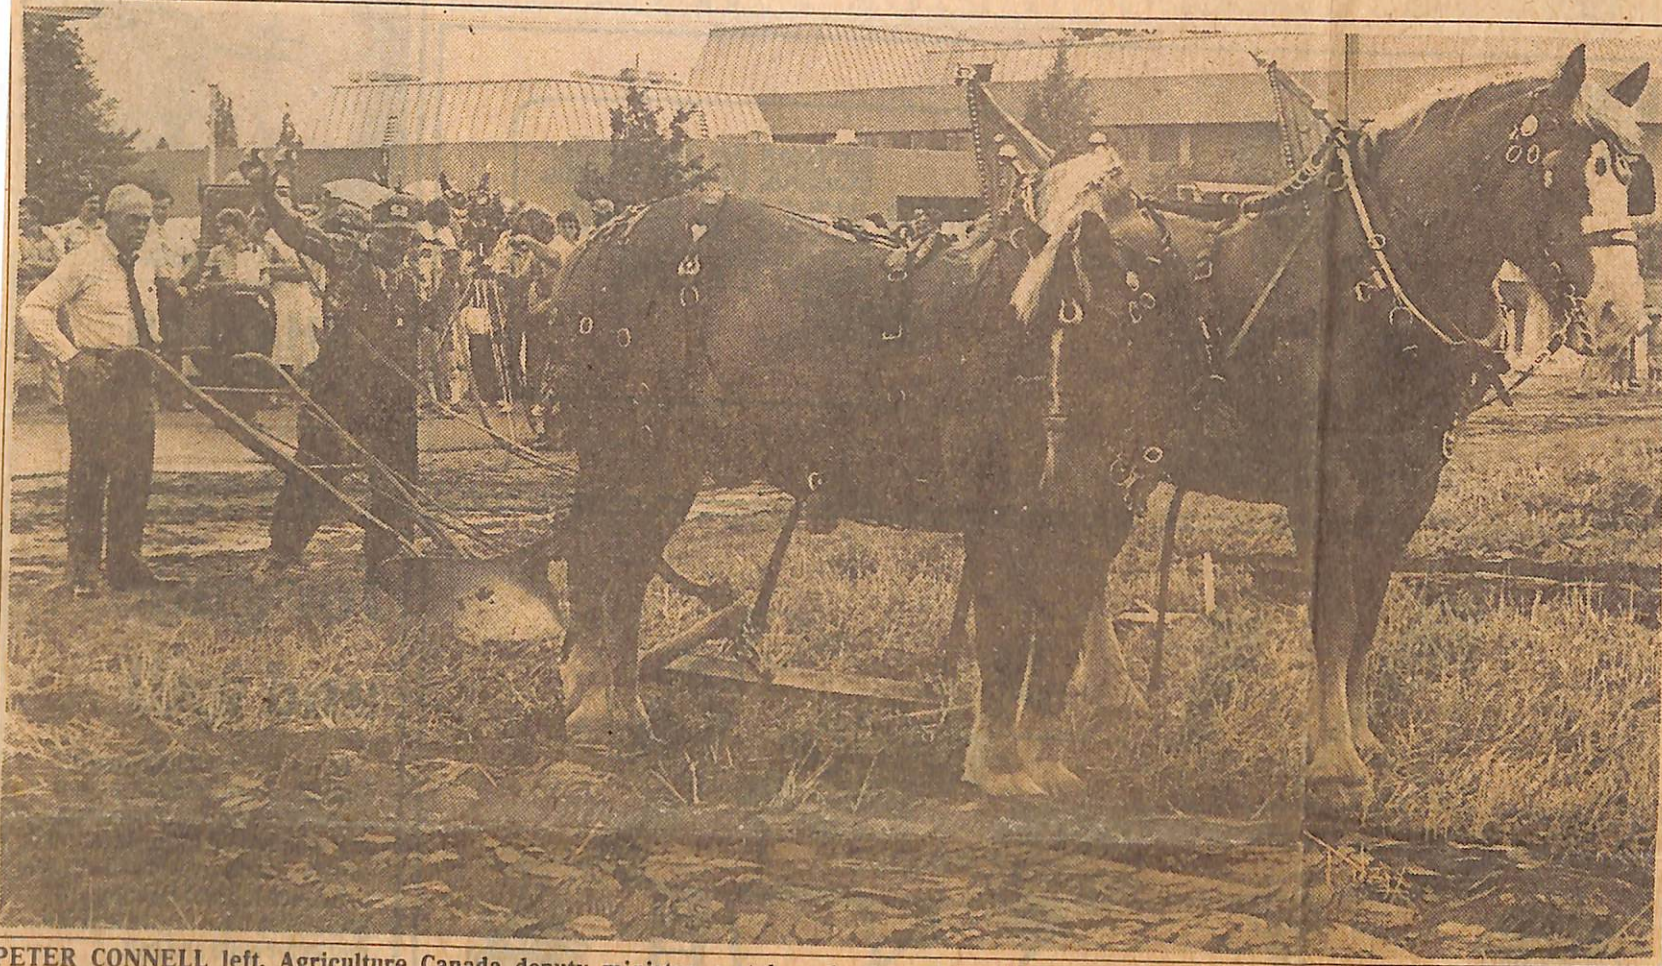

That's quite a collection of trophies taken by plowmen Saturday at the annual plowing match of the Essex County Plowmen's Association. Front Row: Cale Armstrong won the Case Power and Equipment miniature set for those 10 years and under, Don Anger was top plowmen 11 to 13 years, Kevin Hillier took the Junior Farmer Utility class and

C.A. Keeley was director-of-the-year. Back row: Howard Holden did best plowing with horses, Chuck Hedge and Mark Balkwill, in reverse order, were winners in the utility class of five furrows or more, Glen Rogers plowed best with four furrows or less and Russell Deslippe had best plowed land of all classes.

Research station marks anniversary

HARROW — A light rain dampened the manicured lawns of the Harrow Research Station, but not the enthusiasm of the hundreds who turned out Thursday to celebrate the establishment's 75th anniversary.

Those from the farm community welcomed the badly needed rain, although it barely dampened the dust. Even urbanites, caught up in a celebration of agricultural progress, decided rain was fine if that's what the farmers wanted.

And, everybody took advantage of the guided tours of the station's test plots and viewed the displays set up to explain the work undertaken at the sprawling complex on the village's outskirts.

"IT IS MOST difficult for the public to understand the complexities of finally getting the benefits from research," said Ward Koch, station director from 1959 to 1970. "This is, of necessity, an inch-by-inch process."

Speaking on behalf of all former directors during the official anniversary ceremony, Koch said research on a new crop variety or cultivar begins in a lab, moves from there to the greenhouse, then onto field trials before being offered to the farm community. "Only after all that does (the result of the work) reach the consumer."

Peter Connell, deputy minister of Agriculture Canada, said research is the backbone of agriculture. "There can be no doubt that agriculture in Canada has reached its current level of efficiency due to the high level of advancements in research."

THE HARROW station, he said, has played a key role by providing the industry with more than 100 new crop varieties and cultivars.

"Seventy-five years is a long time and the road the Harrow Research Station has travelled in those years has been a good one. By looking at the advancements of the men and women who have worked at this station we can trace the developments of farming in this part of Canada."

While describing the anniversary celebration as a time to look back on the station's history, he said it is also important to look ahead.

Future research priorities, he said, include improving soil and crop management practices to control erosion, safe pesticide use and integrated pest management.

AN OLD HAND behind a plow, Oldcastle farmer Howard Holden harnessed his team of Belgians for Saturday's plowing match in Maidstone Township

Working the land the hard way

by Harry Sullivan
Star Essex Bureau

ESSEX — Howard Holden brought his team of Belgian horses to a halt, leaned over the plow handles and wiped his brow.

The day was too hot to work the giant horses too hard so he was giving them a rest.

The ground Holden was plowing was hard because of a combination of too much spring rain and too much summer sun. It was too hard to do a good job — with a walking plow anyway.

"It's a good day for a greenhorn to try it, he's got a good excuse," the 64-year-old Oldcastle farmer said.

Holden doesn't do much plowing with his horses anymore but this day was special. It was the Essex County Plowmen's Association's annual plowing match Saturday at the Tom Philips' farm on Concession 9 of Maidstone Township.

NONE OF THE farmers could say exactly when plowing matches first began, they just know they have been going on for a long time. The Essex County Plowmen's Association began holding its competitions in 1953. Some farmers of the time wanted to enter into the international matches that take place each year but to do that they had to qualify through local competition.

"The idea originally started to teach people the right way of plowing. To pick up the finer points," Holden said.

The competition is judged on the straightness and evenness of the furrow as well as the overall uniformity of the plowed land.

"It's a show all right but it shows how it can be done. No one would spend that much time on their own farm but at a plowing match you see what can be done."

Although Holden has three tractors on his 150-acre farm, he still uses his Belgians to cultivate a 12-acre tomato field and this year he even planted some corn with them.

"I get a lot of pleasure out of them," Holden said.

BUT THE DAYS of using horses to turn the sod are all but gone — they aren't missed.

Holden quit school when he was 14 to work full-time on his father's farm and up until about 1942 he turned all the sod with a walking plow.

"No I don't miss em a bit. Those days are beginning to tell on me. I have gimpy knees now," he said. "You were nothing but wore out."

"I'll tell you one thing, when you were finished a day like that you didn't have to go out on the street for a jog."

The plowing competition also featured tractors varying in size from the eight horsepower garden tractor up to the big modern tractors that can turn over 12 or more furrows in a single haul down the field.

Plowing two acres with a horse-drawn walking plow in the old times would be a good day's work, but now with the right equipment a farmer can turn over as much as 100 acres in one day.

"YOU CAN'T keep up to those tractors can you?" said Bob Alexander, 81, who has farmed in Essex County all his life.

"But they worked the whole country with those things one time," he said.

Alexander said he used a walking plow for about 30 years, "maybe more."

The day is not only for plowing, however. It is also a time for the farmers to get together to socialize, trade a few yarns and generally have a good time while doing what they do best.

Local farm machinery and equipment dealers also take the opportunity to put their equipment on display. They are not charged for the space they use but instead give donations to the association. That money is used to cover expenses and to pay for the cash prizes given to the winners.

Trophies were presented at a banquet held at St. Ignatius Hall Saturday evening.

THERE IS ALSO a queen of the furrows class which was won this year by Marie Vanderbeke, of Cottam. Last year's queen of the furrows, Margaret Rogers of RR2, Kingsville, won the junior farmer utility class of four furrows or less. The best-plowed-land-of-the-day trophy went to overall winner Vaughan Parkin, of Woodslee.

About $1,600 in prize money and trophies is given out and winners from this competition hope to fare as well at the International Plowing Match to be held in early October in Ottawa.

Delmar Bridgen, past president of the association, said about 1,100 people attended the six-hour event compared to more than 2,000 people who were attracted to it last year.

Howard Holden, 68, of Oldcastle, was out to prove he could 'plow the straight and narrow' with the assistance of son Willard (front) and his team of Belgians during the Essex County Plowing Match held Saturday at the Max and Kevin Smith farm just east of Essex. The 'Walking Plow' class was one of 17 classes which tested the skills of local members of the farm community both young and old. Other events at this year's plowing match included a tractor pull, 4-H Club Rabbit contest, horseshoe pitching, farm safety booths, and numerous farm machinery displays. The 1987 International Plowing Match, to be held in Meaford next month, is the next challenge for winners from this local event.

By Robert Sinclair

Interests for All at Essex County Plowing Match

The 1987 Essex County Plowing Match provided something for everyone on Saturday - plowing - precision; a tractor pull; a sharp eye for horseshoe pitching; a 'Queen of the Furrow' contest; food; the newest in farm machinery and related goods; farm safety displays; and some just plain old-fashioned reminiscing.

The Match, held at the plowing site of the Max and Kevin Smith farm on County Road 8 just east of Essex, was a literal beehive of activity all day long as younger 4-H club members and representatives of the Junior Farmer's Club took part in events, as well as the most seasoned members of the local farming community.

If you had a technical eye for the aspects of plowing, thirty-six areas were staked out at the match site to allow for competition in 17 different plowing classes. The classes were based upon the age of the competitor, the type of machinery utilized, and the plowing method required. Competitors plowed their designated areas and were judged upon the straightness of furrows, evenness of furrow width and depth, proper furrow drainage patterns, and several other criteria.

If you liked animals, then the Comber 4-H Club Achievement Day Rabbit Judging Contest was the place to be. Contestants Joe Derikx and Shawn Morris explained that their entrants would be judged upon general health, training and 'conformation', while they themselves would be tested on their knowledge of the care and breeding of rabbits. In all, ten club members were involved in the Rabbit Club Achievement Day contest and winners included: Jason Hearn of Essex, whose Angora rabbit was declared overall grand champion; Lisa Renaud of Woodslee, whose minilop was judged overall reserve grand champion; Steven Derikx, whose mixed breed was judged best buck reserve grand champion; and Shawn Morris whose mixed breed was best doe reserve grand champion, by judge Susan Richie of Merlin.

For viewers whose interest was taken up with the old-fashioned aspects of farming, Howard Holden's team of Belgian horses was a special attraction. The two horses, weighing over one ton each, were harnessed to a single furrow walking plow and put into action at the site. Willard, Howard's son, said his 68 year old father used the team to cultivate his tomato field on the farm near Oldcastle, and estimated the horses, aged 13 years, ate a darn good bale of hay at each feeding.

Last year's 1986 'Queen of the Furrow', Shelley Brown, of Ruscom, was in attendance and ready to defend her title at this year's contest. The 22 year old, University of Windsor Home Economics student, explained that the 'Queen of the Furrow' was selected annually based upon both her plowing skills and her general knowledge of topics related to agriculture.

As our county representative, some of her duties included the promotion of our county's agricultural goods and products throughout the province at meetings, agricultural fairs and parades, as well as the presentation of agricultural workshops to local groups.

Ministry of Agriculture and Food representative Ian Rumbles assisted in the planning of this year's Essex County Plowing Match, particularly the 4-H club events. He explained his major duty is coordinating the activities of the county's forty 4-H clubs and their 260 members and 60 volunteer leaders. His Ministry Office in Essex also provides educational services on various aspects of farming, food production and nutrition to other groups and organizations.

Max Smith, Essex County Director of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, said the plowing match site required 4 days of preparation for clearing, blading and set-up of the 50-acre area prior to the actual day of competition. This, of course, was in addition to several months of pre-planning by the Essex County Plowing Match committee members with respect to the establishment of match standards; obtaining donating sponsorships and county and township grants, allotting farm machinery display areas and promotion of the event throughout the county.

The County Plowing Match will be followed by the 1987 International Plowing Match and Farm Machinery Show to be held this year at Meaford, Ontario, Grey County from September 15 to 19.

150 Turn Out For Mother-Daughter Fete

Approximately 150 mothers and daughters attended the annual Mother and Daughter Banquet held in St. Stephen's Parish Hall. Miss Ruth Pogson of Essex was the guest speaker for the evening, and Mrs. William M. Holmes of Roseland was the guest vocalist, accompanied by Mrs. Hector Sutherland.

The pledge to the church was given by Mrs. Walter O'Neil, and Mrs. Ralton Wade gave the toast to the mothers, with Mrs. Clifford O'Neil responding.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Sarah Pettypiece, the oldest mother present; Mrs. Norton Price, the one with the most daughters; and Linda Rounding, two-year-old daughter of Mrs. Oliver Rounding of Essex, the youngest daughter.

Dinner was prepared by the women of St. Stephen's and the men of the parish assisted in serving. Mrs. Clyde O'Neil and Mrs. Roy McKee were general conveners of the affair.

The William M. Holmes household on Morand Ave. has been a busy spot for the past few weeks. Mr. and Mrs. John N. B. Holmes and Jennifer of Hamilton were with them over the long holiday season, and they also had as their guest Kenneth E. Dobbie of Sydney, Australia, a member of the crew flown to the United States from Australia to take on duties aboard HMAS Hobart, which is being fitted out in Boston, Mass.

There's a "first" of wide interest coming up this weekend in London, the first Southwestern Ontario Regional Crafts Conference, to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Carousel Motor Hotel, and it is drawing a number of enthusiasts from Windsor. Weavers, architects, educationists, potters, silversmiths, retailers, lawyers and interior decorators are among the crowd who will attend from the area. In the local delegation will be Mrs. George Jackson, Mr. Nelson McKelvey, Mr. George Grant, Mr. Ronald Brand, Mr. Maurice O'Beay, Mr. Garnet Humphrey, Mr. Gordon Budd, Mrs. Arthur Milne and Mrs. William M. Holmes. Mr. Budd and Mrs. Holmes are members of the planning committee for the conference.

New life for the old farmhouse

PAQUETTE CORNERS — Irene Webster is just delighted about what's happening to that old farmhouse over on the 6th Concession of Sandwich South Township, just west of here.

What's happening is that the two-storey brick farmhouse is getting a sort of reverse facelift.

IRENE WEBSTER is delighted because her nephew — “he's such a nice boy” — and his wife

THE COUNTY LINE

are the ones responsible for giving the old house a new lease on life.

She's also more than a little pleased that when Ron and Joyce Holden are all done “building a new house inside the old one,” the house will look almost exactly the way it did when Irene Webster was growing up there, back around the turn of the century.

Ron Holden, in paint-splattered cap, T-shirt and blue pants, smiles when he hears about his aunt's delight.

“Have a look around.” And with that, he heads out into the yard to help a workman bring in some cupboards for the old summer kitchen at the back of the house.

HAVING A LOOK around the old Holden farmhouse is a lot like having a look around a house just being built. All the floors, ceilings and walls have been ripped out and replaced; new plumbing, new wiring and a new furnace have been installed; two bedrooms have disappeared; a stairway has been moved; new windows have been installed throughout and, just now, the workmen are busy plastering. Pretty soon, a new three-by-six metre (10-by-20 foot) ‘Florida’ room will have been added, adjacent to the kitchen.

And “in two weeks, hopefully,” the Holdens will claim their earthly belongings from a movers' storage shed and move in.

For Ron Holden, it's a homecoming. For he, like his aunt and his father, grew up in this old house.

When he graduated from Assumption High School in 1949, Ron Holden wanted to join the air force, right away.

His father, Stanley — Irene Webster's brother — wouldn't hear of it. But Ron, who already had his private pilot's licence, wouldn't be dissuaded.

SINCE THEN, HE'S travelled all over — living in five provinces and two other countries, Germany and the United States — in the line of duty.

Along the way he got married, had three children (two sons now in military college, a daughter in university) and finally wound up, two years ago, in Halifax as a lieutenant-colonel.

Last December, after more than 30 years in the service, he retired. “I always wanted to come back home.” In January of this year, he and his wife did just that, and took over the old farm from his father, now living in an Amherstburg apartment.

At one time, the 6th Concession of Sandwich South Township was known as The Holden Road. For good reason.

The land on which Ron Holden's farmhouse sits was purchased by his great-grandfather from the Crown in 1861. It's been in the family since. The original Holden — John Holden — built a log cabin on the property. His son, Willard, built the present house.

THAT WAS BACK in 1897. “He got all the stone for the foundation from Amherstburg. He used to start out at 4 in the morning with a horse and wagon to haul it back.” He and a hired man who was “handy with a hammer,” built the foundation and then the house.

When Willard died, he left each of his five sons a farm and the youngest son, Stanley, got the family farm.

Some of Ron Holden's kin still live on The Holden Road. It was only natural that, some day, he would, too.

When they looked at the old house, Ron and Joyce Holden weren't sure what they would do.

They thought, briefly, they might tear it down and build a new one on the site.

But ripping down the old and building a newer, smaller, house would have cost more — he would rather not mention dollar figures — than ripping the innards out of the old one and starting from there.

BESIDES, “THERE was the sentimental value” and the exterior of the house was as sound as the day it was built, almost.

So it was that on Feb. 8, Ron and Joyce Holden and a crew from the Beaudoin Brothers construction firm in Amherstburg rolled up their sleeves, and went to work.

And so it will be that in a couple of weeks time, Ron and Joyce will move into the 20th — “and hopefully the last” — house they have lived in since marrying 24 years ago.

A little while after that, once they've done the papering and painting and the final touching up, they're going to throw a party.

IRENE WEBSTER will be invited, of course. So will her sister, now living in Detroit.

And so, naturally, will Stanley Holden and his wife who “haven't set a foot in here since we started,” and are dying to see what it's all going to look like.

It's going to be quite a party. As Joyce Holden puts it: “It'll be the biggest house-warming party that's ever been held” on The Holden Road.

Willard Holden would like that.

MAIDSTONE CROSS

Life springs up from the dead soil of winter as we approach another Easter. Newly-sighted robins and purple clumps of crocus remind us of the great feast of Christianity, celebrating the resurrected Christ.

Services at St. Mary's begin on Holy Thursday at 7 p.m., continue at 3 p.m. on Good Friday and at 7 p.m. for the Stations, on Holy Saturday at 8 p.m. with Bishop Henry as celebrant and the adult choir and on Easter Sunday at 9 and 11 a.m.

Congratulations to Brian and Mary Kay Hogan who have a new daughter, Nicole Marie, born at Grace Hospital on March 24. An Easter surprise for Laurie, Chris and Terry. Proud grandparents are Don and Marie Hogan of Windsor and Sophie Idzinski of Maidstone.

Tim and Joan Hebert are also enjoying their new arrival, Katherine Anne, a sister for Michelle and another welcome grandchild for John and Rose Hebert and Violet and Gerald Shanahan.

Orville and Rita Bellaire were in London last weekend to visit George and Ella Mae Markham. Ella Mae sends her thanks and appreciation to all those who have sent cards or remembered George in their prayers.

Bishop Fred Henry celebrated the Feast of the Annunciation at a mass at St.

Mary's on Friday. He spoke of Mary as a role model for us all. Following the mass Bishop Henry greeted parishioners and guests from around the county.

HOFLICK—In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, who passed away Feb. 16, 1981.

To lose someone you loved for years

Is hard beyond belief

Your heart comes near to breaking

And God alone knows the grief

Time cannot stop the heartache

Or even stop the tear

Or take away a memory

Of one we love so dear

Our comfort lies in memories of the happy years we spent

We this wonderful person

And how much to us he meant

Treasure him Lord in your garden of rest

For our Dad was one of the very best —Sadly missed and always remembered by wife Lillian Hoflick, son Rod and Barbara, daughter Lois and Tom, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

HOFLICK—Rodney G. (Rod), 69 yrs., on February 16, 1981 at Hotel Dieu Hospital. Late of Eadras Place. Beloved husband of Lillian M. (nee Couvillon) Hoflick. Dear father of Lois Anger, Windsor; Rod Jr., Leamington. Also survived by eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Dear brother of Mrs. Milton Hales (Gwen), Chatham; Mrs. Arthur Couvillon (Jeanette), Windsor. Visiting in the Walter D. Kelly Funeral Home, 1969 Wyandotte St., E. Funeral service in the chapel on Thursday February 19, 1981 at 1:30 p.m. Canon William V. Graham officiating. Interment Victoria Memorial Cemetery.

ANGER—Surprise. Tim and Monique (nee Dellisle) are very pleased to announce the safe arrival of their firstborn, a son, Daniel Ryan, on January 21, 1980, weighing 7 lbs 1 oz. Proud grandparents are Harold and Lois Anger of Windsor, Terry and Ella Dellisle of Belle River. Great-grandchild for Mrs. Florida Cormier, Mrs. Doreen Anger and Rod and Lillian Hoflick.

FO. ROBERT BAILEY

3 YEARS WITH FORCE

FO. Bailey joined the R.C.A.F. in 1951 and was trained at London and Claresholm flying schools. He retired from the active force and joined 420 Auxiliary Squadron last year. During the past summer he was attached full time to the 420 Squadron support unit. At the beginning of the school year he reverted to auxiliary status, flying with the squadron on weekends and attending Thursday night training periods.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

NATIVE OF WINDSOR

FO. Bailey, the son of Wilbert Bailey of 460 Giles boulevard east, was born and raised in Windsor, attending schools here and enrolling after graduation from high school in the University of Western Ontario.

After graduation from the university with his B.A. degree, he enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in 1951 and received his pilot's wings after a year's training.

He returned to the university after his air force service and was studying for his master's degree in business administration.

During his university career, FO. Bailey also studied theology for two years at Huron College.

While studying for his master's degree, he flew with 420 Auxiliary Squadron at London on weekends.

SURVIVORS

Surviving are his father; one brother, George Jackson Bailey, of Windsor; and three sisters, Mrs. Bertha Aylsworth, Windsor, Mrs. Georgia Hollinsworth, Oldcastle, and Mrs. Ethel Webster, of LaSalle.

country trip which would have taken them to the Owen Sound area.

The planes were flying in two sections of two each, about five minutes separating each section. FO. Bailey was leading the first section.

Flying with him was FO. Donald Ingram, of London. In the other section were Ft.-Lt. Gray Goodeve and FO. E. W. Lee.

The flight ran into an area of poor visibility in the Mount Forest district and was attempting to return to London when the crash occurred.

The other three aircraft, one of which had maintained radio contact with the fighter until the turn, returned safely to London.

Weather reports received shortly before the takeoff were favorable for the exercise, squadron officials said.

STUDENT AT WESTERN

FO. Bailey graduated in arts from the University of Western Ontario last year. He was attending Western this year studying for his master's degree in business administration.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bailey, live at 460 Giles boulevard east, Windsor.

The plane crashed at the base of a tree in a woodlot on the farm of James McGillivray on the 16th concession of Egremont Township near the hamlet of Dromore.

The wreckage was strewn for yards about a gaping six-foot hole. FO. Bailey's body was found a few feet from the hole.

McGillivray's son, Alex, said he saw the plane circling the bush.

"I thought it was in trouble so I went to tell my father," Alex said. "We ran to the bush about a mile from the house and saw flames shooting up. We stopped at an open field near the bush to look for a parachute in case the pilot had jumped. Then we heard shots and thought it was the pilot trying to attract our attention. We shouted but got no answer. Then we discovered the body.

"The shots were live ammunition exploding. You could see the shells lying on the ground around the wreckage," he said.

Alex and his father returned to the house to phone for help.

Then, accompanied by Rev. D. K. Perrie, minister of the Presbyterian Churches at Dromore and Holstein, they returned to the crash scene. They put earth on the burning body to smother the flames.

Provincial police and the Mount Forest fire brigade sped to the scene and set up guards over the area to keep spectators off. Firemen had to put out a few bush fires started after the crash.

Wing Commander A. D. Haylett, A.F.C., said R.C.A.F. investigators were sent to the scene as soon as word was received from the police.

Bob Bailey, as he was known to our community, spent much of his early teenage years here. Was a friend of both Ken Fawcett and Bob Crowder and their home was his much of the time.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. Edward Holinworth announces the engagement of her daughter, Helen Joan, to Mr. Harry Frederick Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Roberts of Amherstburg. The wedding will be solemnized, Saturday Sept. 8th, 3 p.m. at St. Stephen's Church, Howard Ave. Oldcastle.

Meet the Council
Ann Wheeler

Ann was raised in the farming community around Oldcastle during the fifties. After marriage the Wheelers remained in the Ridgeway area, active members of the Church of the Advent there. Early in 1976 Paul and Ann made a commitment to the Anglican Marriage Encounter movement and its programs. Believing that, as a sacrament, marriage needs strengthening and encouragement in our society, the Wheelers are directing their "spare" time toward making good marriages better as together they travel across Canada helping to present Marriage Encounter weekends.

The Wheeler family - which includes Amanda (5) and Sarah (3) - moved to London last year so that Paul could begin his studies at Huron College. This year he has been appointed Student Assistant at St. Stephen's while finishing his theological studies.

Ann had worked as a bookkeeper before the birth of her daughters, and since coming to London, she has put this training back to use now working part time for Howell Transport. Attention to detail and solid organizational skills are positive business traits Ann brings to her role on Council. As our secretary, she hopes to deepen her awareness of the work of Anglican Church Women and to grow spiritually.

The engagement is announced of Elizabeth Ann Holinworth, daughter of Mrs. Edmund A. Holinworth of Oldcastle and the late Mr. Holinworth, to Paul Robert Wheeler, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Wheeler of Essex. The wedding will take place April 11 at 3:30 p.m. in St. Stephen's Church, Oldcastle.

Tile Hobby Decorative

By DON HAWKES

If you're tired of rubber door-mats, painted window sills, and red brick fireplaces, Mrs. William M. Holmes of 524 Morand Ave., Roseland, can make some refreshing suggestions in home decoration.

For one thing, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes have been continually building their tudor-styled half-timbered home since 1929. This has meant problems of decoration and they have been met by Mrs. Holmes during the 30 years that this colossal "do-it-yourself" project has been a-building.

And secondly, 16 years ago, Mrs.

Holmes learned how to make clay tiles and pottery.

Combining her decorative needs with her knowledge of tile-making, Mrs. Holmes has come up with a tile monogram for the area just inside the door of the newest wing of her home. She has glazed the bricks around her fireplace. Instead of a monotonous buff color, they are a glossy green.

The floor of a shower is covered with hand-made tiles, and an area just inside the door leading to a small greenhouse is similarly tiled.

These tiles are all glazed or semi-glazed and feature patterns made by Mr. or Mrs. Holmes and their friends. Some of them are simply autographs or cartoons that Mrs. Holmes had visitors press into unbaked tiles she had ready when they were at the house.

In addition, the window sills in this section of the house are all to have tile surfaces.

Tile making and pottery are closely related. Both involve clay which has been hardened under great heat in a kiln.

The essential distinction is that pottery involves the turning of a vessel of some description, a vase, a bowl, a bottle, or even an ashtray or a lampstand on a potter's wheel, one of man's most ancient inventions. Old as the potter's wheel is, man made crude clay vessels centuries before its invention. These were hardened in open fires.

The tiles squares (actually they can be almost any shape) made by Mrs. Holmes start with wet clay that can be found almost anywhere. Mrs. Holmes has used clay from the foundation that was dug for the Cleary Auditorium.

They are shaped, either directly or in a mold that has been cast in plaster from an earlier tile.

Glaze may or may not be applied, or it may be applied to only part of the unbaked tile. Different glazes produce different colors.

The tile is then kiln-baked at high temperature and the tile is done.

Sounds simple.

However, so many factors can effect the finished product that countless volumes have been written in every civilized country over the past 4,000 years about the proper handling of the clay, the glazes and the firing.

Regarding the clay, all the small stones must be removed. It should be worked out smooth to avoid air pockets. If the chemical content is not known, it may come out a rather surprising color—for better or worse.

There are countless glazes capable of producing virtually any color desired. The most commonly used are iron oxide for red or black, depending on the particular oxide. Copper produces green, and cobalt produces a blue glaze. But there are countless more. Even gold is used as a glaze.

Also, the glaze must fit the clay it's used with, or a crackled finish may result. The Chinese, who are the greatest creators in clay the world has known use this crackle effect intentionally, in some cases as part of a design.

With respect to firing, different clays work best if fired under different temperatures. Generally, the clays that are fired at low temperatures are more fragile than the clays fired at high temperatures. A common range of temperatures is from 1,400 degrees Fahrenheit to 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit. But, once again this is a complex subject about which books — long books — are written.

Complex as this may seem, the beginner, who works with care, can get satisfactory results from the very first effort.

Mrs. Holmes, who has been teaching pottery for the Windsor Handicrafts Guild for 15 years, has seen this happen time and again. Yet, because there is so much territory to explore, she continues to study intensively at the Society of Arts and Crafts in Detroit.

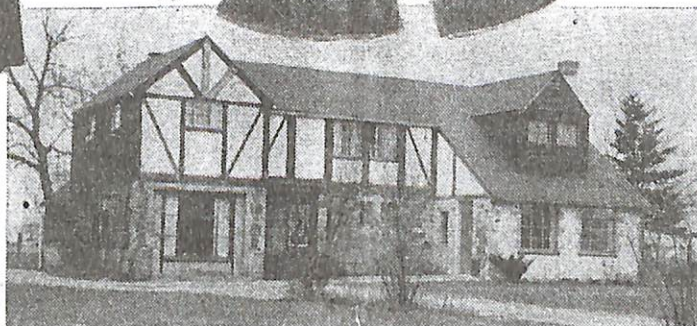

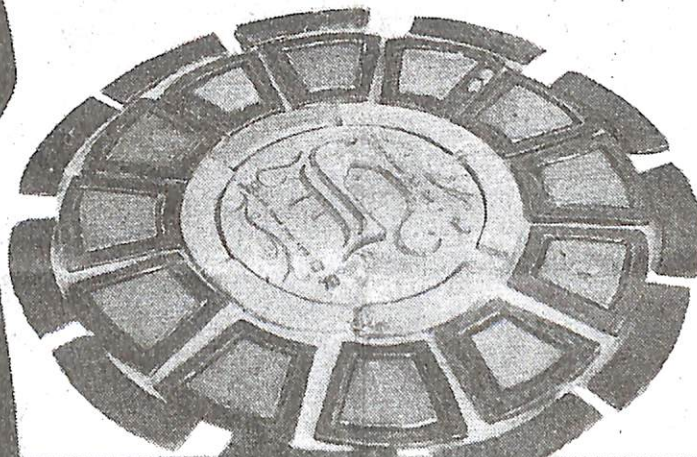

BY MAIL—A former Windsor man has graduated from the University of Western Ontario although he hasn't attended any formal classes at that university. David M. Holmes, presently stationed in Ottawa with the Department of Transport, received his B.A. as a result of completing his studies by mail. Mr. Holmes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Holmes of 524 Morand Ave., South Windsor. He is married and the father of three daughters.

Mrs. William Holmes considers this baptismal font the finest piece of tile making she has ever done. It was made for St. James' Anglican Church, Roseland, in honor of her youngest son who was killed in a traffic accident 10 years ago. The elaborate tile monogram, shown top right, was made by Mrs. Holmes to go inside the front door of a new addition to her house

The Holmes' half-timbered home has been their pet "do-it-yourself" project since 1929. It's still not complete. The timbers showing on the front of the house came from the old Sarnia Dock.

Man stricken at council

Making zoning bylaw presentation

A 72-year-old Windsor man collapsed during a special session of City Council Thursday evening and died later in Hotel Dieu Hospital.

The special Council session was the second called to hear objections to the city's zoning bylaw for the annexed areas.

William M. Holmes, of 580 Morand Ave., was making a presentation to Council when he was stricken.

Funeral services for Mr. Holmes, organist and choir master at St. James Anglican Church, will be held Monday at 11 a.m. from St. James Anglican Church, with Rev. David M. Miln officiating.

He was born in London, England, and lived in Windsor for the past 45 years.

Mr. Holmes' presentation to City Council concerned the new zoning bylaw for the annexed areas and the effects he felt it would have on his property.

In the midst of his presentation, Mr. Holmes turned white and slumped over the table. His wife came to his assistance and he was rushed to hospital by ambulance.

He was making his presentation at about 9.30 p.m.

Another session of City Council will be required to hear objections to the bylaw. Thursday's was the second such special meeting.

A date for the third meeting has not been set. Approximately eight objections remain to be heard.

In the two special meetings to date, council has heard more than 50 delegations and in some cases has been able to satisfy the protests through the co-operation of the Department of Planning and Urban Renewal.

When all objections are filed, council will hold a further meeting to review presentations made and to hear opinions from L. R. Keddy, director of planning and urban renewal.

One of the more contentious issues concerning the new zoning bylaw is the plan to designate areas abutting the E. C. Row expressway as planning districts, which would prohibit any expansion of existing uses.

WILLIAM M. HOLMES

Property owners in these areas feel the city should either expropriate the land required for the expressway immediately, and not tie it up.

During Thursday's session, council heard objections to some land uses proposed for the Sandwich East planning district. This is the area bounded by Jefferson Blvd., the city's east limits, the Canadian National Railways and E. C. Row Ave.

More than 22,000 properties in the annexed area are affected by the zoning bylaw. An Ontario Municipal Board hearing will be held to deal with the objections that council and the Department of Planning and Urban Renewal cannot satisfy.

Mr. Holmes was district auditor with the Unemployment Insurance Commission where he retired in 1962 after 25 years service. He was secretary-treasurer of the Sandwich South Planning Board since its inception and a member of the former Windsor and Suburban Planning Board.

A member of the first Boy Scout Troop in England formed by the late Sir Baden-Powell, he took part in the coronation ceremonies of King George V.

In the First World War he was with the 5th Canadian Light Horse Regiment from Moose Jaw, and was a member of the Originals Club and Branch 94 of the Royal Canadian Legion.

He is survived by his wife, Alice Eileen (Bennett); sons, David Morton Holmes in Oxford, Eng. and John Nigel Bennett Holmes of Orillia; sisters Miss Helen M. Holmes, Miss Marjorie A. Holmes and Miss Constance E. Holmes, all in England; and 5 grandchildren. A son, William Mark Holmes, died in 1948.

The body will rest at the Walter D. Kelly Funeral Home, 1969 Wyandotte St. E. until 10:30 a.m. Monday. Burial will be in St. John's Anglican Church Cemetery. Donations to the St. James Church Memorial Fund will be appreciated.

A Dream Come True Holmes' Home's a Beauty

By Nanci Lugsdin

When Mr. William Holmes bought an acre of land seven miles from Windsor in 1929, it was the first step to implementing a boyhood desire.

Mr. Holmes, who sold his stamp collection to come here from London when he was 17, wanted to own his own land and home and yet not be burdened by debt.

The son of a British white-collar worker, Mr. Holmes was raised in a semi-detached home in crowded pre-war London. He worked for the Post Office when he came to Canada, then joined the Army in World War I. When he came back, he enrolled at the University of Toronto and graduated in honors economics, after which he joined the Civil Service.

When he and his wife bought their lot in Sandwich South on what is now Morand Ave., there were but two other houses on the road.

They drew up plans for the home and Mr. Holmes built a green-house around the well that was on the property. Then they started on the house itself.

Every weekend, Mr. Holmes came out by bus to lay a few more bricks.

They decided to combine a traditional Tudor exterior with a contemporary interior.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes got a bargain on the huge oak beams that are in the house's upper walls. They got them from the Sarnia dock when it was being demolished . . . for just 30 cents each!

In the walls of the home are such varied materials as Ohio and Manitoba sandstones, Amherstburg limestone and Nova Scotia redstone. Their sources are just as varied—the old Sandwich jail house, from the old St. Mary's Academy, from Walkerville Methodist Church. One stone had been used as a gravemarker.

And, as Mrs. Holmes said, "every extra dollar went towards 20 bricks."

Inside the house, materials were also gathered from many places. The kitchen cupboards, for instance, came from a remodelled grocery store. Many beautiful antique pieces of furniture were bought at the Ward-Price Auction Gallery in Toronto.

Mrs. Holmes took up pottery when she discovered that the earth on their property was a good clay. She turned out the many brightly colored tiles that now enhance the entrance to the home, the front of the fireplace and the window sills.

The beams in the living room are solid B.C. fir. Another unusual touch is steel window frames. Also rather extraordinary is the fact that the living room fireplace is set entirely within the house, and goes up into the bedroom above. The ceiling panels are set on styrofoam on the masonry, another innovation.

When Mr. and Mrs. Holmes moved into their Sandwich South home in 1944, it included two bedrooms, studio, kitchen and laundry. Since then, they have added another bedroom and the living-dining room to the two-storey structure.

The house is a continuing project, even after 20 years. This year, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes are adding a garage.

The couple can take great pride in their home, for even though do-it-yourself homebuilding is more common nowadays, "In those days, people didn't build houses themselves," according to Mrs. Holmes.

Together, they did everything in the house except the wiring and plumbing, which of course had to be done by professionals to meet housing standards.

The couple even landscaped the lot, which was completely treeless when they bought it. Now it boasts 70 trees, including several bearing black currents and raspberries.

Miss Stella Grayce and Miss Isaacs, of Windsor, entertained delightfully last Wednesday evening honoring Miss Lee Hornsey, a May 8th bride-elect, at a personal shower. Games were enjoyed and among the many winning prizes were, Miss Clare and Chris McLean. Lee received many dainty gifts and the hostesses served a delicious supper.

Virginia, Louis Russette exchange Valentine kiss

Neighborhood news

For and about the seniors

Valentine party for the retirees

By BARBARA FORD

Happy Valentine's Day to everyone from Louis and Virginia Russette, president and treasurer, respectively, of Golden Age Windsor West at Holy Name of Mary Church ... and happy birthday to Mrs. Russette who is celebrating today.

Secretary of this active club is Mrs. Lorraine Bernais, who also serves as co-ordinator (and she's a great tap dancer too).

The club had a Valentine party at their regular Thursday afternoon dance last week with the Golden Melody Makers and their live music rocking the hall. These musicians are all retirees and when they're all together, they include piano, two violins, two banjos, a sax and a guitar. Everybody gets onto the dance floor when they strike up "Five Foot Two, Eyes of Blue" and sometimes George Hornsey calls for square dances.

Joan Turgeon (not a senior) doubles as mistress of ceremonies to keep things hopping, and she's the ceramics teacher at their morning sessions.

It was nice to see some familiar faces at this party, including Emile Nadeau whose picture was in this column when he won the Hallowe'en costume prize at Holy Rosary Community Centre after Star photographer John Cochran and I had served as judges.

Mr. Nadeau belongs to several seniors' clubs and it seems that many others do too, travelling around the city, taking in different activities every day of the week.

Clara Townsend has a string of identification and membership cards that fill her wallet like family pictures. She was a whirlwind on the dance floor, too.

This club also has a serious purpose which gives them great satisfaction. They have a full timetable of appointments to visit nursing homes around the county from Tecumseh to Essex, Wheatley and Comber. There are usually three carloads, one with musicians and the others with members who like to dance. Residents love to see them coming because they have wheelchair dances and games and they actually manoeuvre people in their wheelchairs in time to the music.

The Golden Age Club began its operation about four years ago, helped by a grant from New Horizons, and they're on their own now. The affiliate group, the Golden Melody Makers, is currently funded by another New Horizons grant.

A new board of directors was elected last week for the Melody Makers. President is Howard McCarthy, secretary is Helen Hornsey and treasurer is Lorraine Bernais.

Seniors are welcome to join their activities at Holy Name of Mary Church, 711 McEwan Ave. Come Thursday mornings from 10 o'clock to noon for ceramics and Thursday afternoons from 1:30 to 4 o'clock for dancing.

WINDSOR STAR NOVEMBER 15, 1986

Life's never been dull on lakes or land

IT WAS interesting because we never knew what was coming up over the horizon...

That's how 83-year-old George Hornsey quickly sums up his days on the Great Lakes and connecting rivers working on vessels ranging from freighters to tugboats.

The job that began when he signed on as a 16-year-old deck hand looking for adventure wasn't glamorous enough to keep him working at it beyond four years, however.

JIM CORNETT'S PEOPLE

For one thing, he wasn't jubilant at the prospect of losing his life when the grain carrier on which he was serving was in danger of capsizing.

Being shot at by a hostile lumberman and being recruited with his workmates to fight a raging bush fire for five days didn't get him pleasantly excited either.

His remaining working days saw him building wooden bodies for cars in Windsor and Detroit, and he saw action overseas with the Essex Scottish Regiment during the Second World War, when he was injured during a bombing raid.

In the miscellaneous department, his activities have included writing sniping letters to the editor on various subjects, writing poems, one of which was used in a war bond drive in Woodstock, calling for square dances, serving a two-year stint as president of the Windsor branch of the War Pensioners Association of Canada and helping to organize the Essex County Senior Citizens Association.

At the moment he's settling in at Huron Lodge, Windsor's retirement home for seniors, following the death of his second wife, Helen, last August.

A NATIVE OF London, Eng., he was two years old when he came to Canada in 1905 with his parents, George Hornsey and the former Elizabeth Fletcher, and two sisters. On a second voyage a decade later, "we circled the iceberg that sank the Titanic."

He quit school in Stratford at age 12, worked in a harness factory, a threshing firm and at other jobs and then grew restless.

"I got the urge to go salting in 1919 and the closest spot I could find with boats coming in was Goderich at the grain elevator. I waited on the dock while the Glenlyon unloaded its cargo of grain and I worked my way to Midland where one man was getting off. I got his job as a deck hand for $30 a month plus board."

Windsor was a port of call his first season and he remembers "my first impression was 'what a dump.'"

For most of the summer his ship sailed from Windsor to carry cars made in Detroit to Chicago.

"Hudson and Essex cars were brought from Detroit on the old ferry boats and switched to the Glenlyon at Windsor and taken to the municipal dock in Chicago. Regulations wouldn't allow a ship to go to one U.S. port to load and to go to another U.S. port to unload," he said.

"Then we would lift the ramps to get rid of fish flies in a layer six inches thick. They stunk. A pet bear we had on a tug."

His second season was aboard the Glenfinnan but it was shortlived when "I kicked over the traces, resulting in a fight with the first mate and me being told to get off at the Sault," he said.

"We had too many Courtright sailors (those accustomed only to a short cross-river trip) on board and every time we rolled a bit somebody got sick and someone else had to do their job. This resulted in shifts lasting 36 hours without sleep while unloading grain.

"I GOT TIRED after 36 hours, went to bed and revolted when I was asked to do another job. I was told to get out of bed and batten down the hatches and I replied, 'okay, but not today, tomorrow.' The first mate ordered me off at Sault Ste. Marie where I got a job on a tug."

George's scariest night was when grain was being loaded on the Glenlyon at Port Arthur and the crew wasn't allowed to work overtime to finish the job.

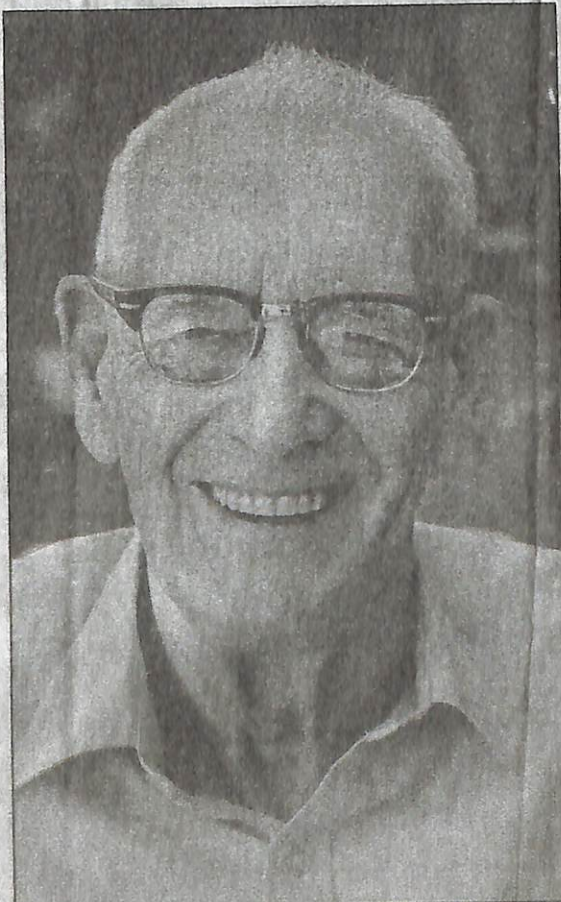

"We had 5,000 bushels yet to come but the union wouldn't let the crew finish until the next day. So I went uptown and when I got back at 11:30 p.m. I noticed a list to port. I woke the first mate and told him I thought we were listing. The hatch was opened and we found the grain was soaking wet. Water had been rushing in through the gangway for six hours. All hell broke loose. They had to pump out around 20,000 bushels until they got the gangway door above the water line and found a piece of the heavy rubber had let go and water was coming in.

"Had it not been for the 5,000 bushels they wouldn't load I've often wondered what would have happened if we had got under way. We could have rolled right over or split in two."

George says his "most tiring job was towing rafts of timber and the most enjoyable job was carrying coal to Key Harbor and carrying pulpwood from the bush site to Lake Erie ports."

One sidekick left him shaking. "We helped move a portable saw mill into the bush in Haliburton County. The owner signed a contract to cut a certain number of board feet a day. The mill was too small for that much cutting so they took the mill from him as per contract.

"He went crazy and sprinkled the bunkhouse with a generally good sup-

THE WINDSOR DAILY STAR, FEBRUARY 18, 1959

THE REAL THING—A Ford "Tin Lizzie" equipped with skis and tractor grips of vintage class is still going strong in Windsor. Clarence Howling, vice-president of the Windsor Antique Auto Club, purchased the machine three years ago in Simcoe and had it restored to original shape. The snowmobile was built in 1925 and was the forerunner of the modern snowmobile. It was used by a doctor in Northern Ontario for many years. With the driver is his grandson, Ralph Verbridge, and dog Patches.

Ken stands tall these days

According to his father, 10-year-old Ken Howling Jr. couldn't stand up on skates three years ago.

But today, the Shoreline Minor Hockey Association atom travel team player is being recognized as the association's player of the month.

In his first season of travel competition, Ken has scored 19 goals and added nine assists in just 14 games this season.

"It's quite remarkable," the boy's father says. "I took him to power skating three years ago and he couldn't even stand up. I have nothing but good words to say for that power skating program."

Ken started playing hockey in the Shoreline house leagues and his dad said: "He was an aggressive player — he was all over the ice. It's different this year because in the travel league they play good positional hockey."

Ken plays centre in travel, while in house league he played just about everywhere except in the goal.

The youngster also enjoys soccer and baseball. He was a pitcher and shortstop with the Tecumseh-St. Clair Beach Minor Baseball Asso-

Ken attends A.V. Graham Public School in Tecumseh.

Cars of Another Era Used in Antique Auto Group Excursion

of Mr. Alec Horen; 1918 Studebaker of Mr. Ralph Howling; 1930 Buick of Mr. Joe Dambois and 1937 LaSalle phaeton of Mr. Nick Romaniuk. Also in the procession were a 1911 Model T Ford, a 1913 Studebaker, a 1919 Ford, and a 1924 Model T Ford.

HOWLING

Old Fashioned Pork Curing Safest . . .

Clarence Howling of Old-castle must surely be an expert on handling pork. He used to raise pigs and cure the meat. He used an old German method that took six weeks in a salt and sugar brine. Today it is done in a few hours with the addition of nitrites and a mixture of chemicals. The smoked effect is painted on the meat. "My beef about pork," he says, "is in the curing."

But such a time-consuming process would make the price of bacon and ham extremely high.

Clarence Howling thinks it would be worth it.

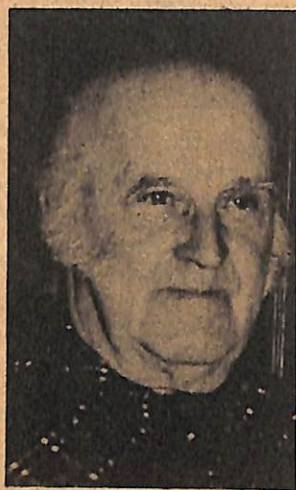

He sold Wiltshire bacon and hams, both green and smoked, from 1928 into the 30s.

He learned to cure pork from his father. In 1925 he rented a two-car garage, for a workshop, killed 5 or 6 hogs a week and made sausage, headcheese, and hams. Then on Saturday he would sell it all on the old Walkerville market before noon. After doing that for three years he worked in the meat department of the Ford Commissary run by the Ford Motor Company on Drouillard at Sandwich in the power house, until the middle of the depression. His boss there was the Bob Thompson who instituted beef grading.

Around 1932 when the commissary opened only one day a week and paid $8. per day, he bought the Sandwich Sausage business when boneless beef could be bought for 4¢ a pound. He claims he was able to sell more bacon and hams in his one man shop than many stores do today.

Then he decided in 1945 to be a top Yorkshire hog breeder as a sideline. That meant he must have the most up-to-date breeding pens for his more than 100 breeding stock.

When Wiltshire hams and bacon were being exported, Canada had a terrific trade with England. Then after Canada Packers bought out a number of companies and started in business they made Wiltshire hams and bacon to sell to England and started importing American pork for their Wiltshire products. "It was too fat so Canada lost our British trade". Shortly after that he sold out of hog production.

Clarence Howling has worried about the safety of eating cured pork products ever since artificial methods have been used. So much so that he won't eat any of it.

It's the nitrites and nitrates used in the curing he worries about. He has talked to food processors and health officials and they tell him the amounts used won't hurt you. But he was never convinced.

Lately he is finding reports that back up his argument. A report in the May issue of Consumers' Research says, "Investigations reveal that many scientific facts about nitrosamine formation in foods and in the process of digestion of foods are still unknown. Nitrite used in food processing has become controversial. As with many additives that had been assumed safe, nitrates and nitrites have long been used to cure certain processed meats. Nitrates readily convert to the more toxic nitrites. Under certain conditions, nitrites combine with amines found in meats and form dangerous nitrosamines."

The article goes on to say of a hundred or so of these compounds studied, more than 80 have been found to be cancer inducers in experimental animals, many after a single dose. The acute toxic effects from nitrosamines are similar or identical in humans. "With the accumulated evidence now at hand, many scientists share the opinion that nitrosamines appear to be a major class of cancer-including substances that are likely to cause human cancer. There is, therefore valid concern about these compounds in the human environment. The discovery of nitrosamines in cured meats has presented one of the most serious problems ever encountered by the meat industry as well as by consumers of processed meats."

That's what Clarence Howling figured long ago.

Since 1919 he has been employed in a number of interests including manufacturing and retailing and following the machine trades. The last few years he has been running his own machine shop instead of retiring. Now past his 74th birthday he plans to be busier than ever, just looking ahead to doing many things.

Collecting antiques is one of those interests and he has among his souvenirs a snowmobile of the 20's. It's really a car on runners, made for a doctor to enable him to visit his patients during snowstorms.

Pete Hubbell of South Port Sailing Club reports that Woodpecker, the One Ton racer he crewed on during North American championships, finished 7th in World Championships, held in the Atlantic Ocean, off Newport, R.I.

The 37-foot wood-designed boat is owned by Charlie Schreck, a lumber dealer and veteran Great Lakes sailor, from Tawas, Mich.

Because of other commitments, Hubbell was unable to compete in the finals.

Winner of the world championship was a California yacht, Pendragon, owned by real estate developer John MacLaurin.

Let's grow more roses in our city

GETTING back to work after vacations is tough, but this year it seems worse than usual. I don't know whether it's old age or the heat.

However, it was good to see the improvement in the farmers' crops when we got back. The bean field next door must have grown a foot and the corn field two feet. Hopefully they will fruit up and at last help the farmers hold their own.

Holding their own is what some trees are not doing. It seems that the rain was spotty and really not enough for struggling plants. With the lifting of the water ban, don't be afraid to soak root zones around the clock so that the water penetrates to deep roots.

It was interesting to note recently an article in the Landscape Sculptor published by the Metro Detroit Landscape Contractors called "40 Years of Peace". The Peace rose is 40 years old.

I guess I'm dating myself but I remember when Peace first became a hot item rose. My first job in horticulture was not working for my grandfather and father, but was potting roses for the Barnes, neighbors who owned Wayside Potted Roses on Howard Ave.

They had premier roses in those days and I remember being fascinated by the size and fragrance of the Peace rose. For those of you who might be thinking of buying a rose, Peace still holds its own with today's varieties.

It is a remarkable achievement, when you consider the thousands of species and varieties available, for one rose to be so universally favored.

MANY LEGENDS have sprung up about this beautiful plant, such as the tales of budwood being smuggled out of France just ahead of the invasions in the Second World War.

What actually happened is that the rose was bred in 1935 by Francis Heiland, a member of a century-old French family of rose breeders and was distributed commercially in Germany, Italy and the United States.

It so happened the day it was christened Peace in Pasadena, Calif. was the day Berlin fell. Later the rose provided inspiration in the formative days of the United Nations when the American Rose Society sent a fresh bloom of Peace rose to each head of state in San Francisco.

A Peace rose garden has been maintained at United Nations headquarters. There are many others around the world — one being the International Peace Gardens on the border of Minnesota and Manitoba and another, perhaps the most recent international garden, at Osaka, Japan, on the site of Expo '70.

PETER HUBBELL

Peace was chosen as the sole winner of the All American Rose Selection in 1946. It has magnificent ivory buds atop long vigorous stems. As they open, the buds turn pale yellow with a pink blush and have a memorable delicate fragrance. A truly outstanding plant for gardens in our area, Windsor, The City of Roses.

FOR A NUMBER of years there was a great push on to get everyone to plant roses. I remember the Greater Windsor Foundations and others promoted this theme. In recent years, however, I think we have taken a few steps backwards.

With the exception of the parks department, which has excellent rose gardens, I don't see much push to promote rose planting in the City of Roses.

Perhaps this would be a good cause for Landscape Ontario and the Windsor Star Beautification awards to promote special events for best new rose garden in the city.

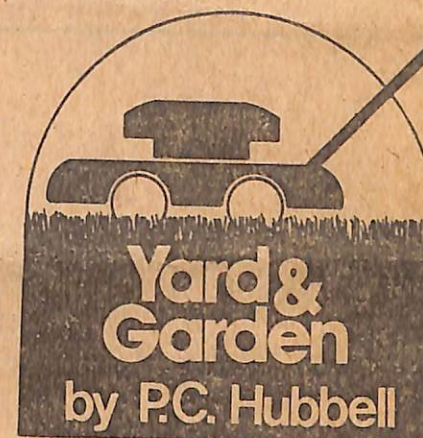

Experienced gardeners know that roses are really not that difficult to grow.

It really isn't that necessary spray weekly and so on, unless you're going to exhibit for show. We have a few beds at Hiram Walker, and, really, we probably only spray them three or four times a year. Winter protection is not a problem as long as you give them about a foot of mulch cover. And pruning is not difficult as long as a few basics are followed. Perhaps we should plan to plant more roses in The City of Roses.

Shaping up your yard, grounds

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of columns on property beautification by P. C. (Pete) Hubbell.

Hubbell is a graduate in ornamental horticulture from Michigan State University and is in charge of all gardening for Hiram Walker and Sons.

He will be writing on alternate weeks with Dr. J.W. Spellman, and will be dealing primarily with the landscaping features of the garden world.

In this column I would like to outline some of the future topics to be discussed. We will begin with some basic landscape design analysis, philosophy and principles. Next we will design various landscapes; front yards and entry gardens, then move to the rear yard with patios and pools etc.

Then we will discuss the various materials that are used to construct the landscape: such things as mulches, timbers, stone. A comprehensive outline of the various plants themselves will occupy several columns: Shade and flowering trees, broadleaf evergreens, ground cover, among others. We will devote some time to lawns, discussing proper seeding and sodding procedures and soil preparation.

After we have covered the topics that create the landscape design we will tackle the procedures to properly care for these in the home garden. I will try to cover these subjects as we proceed through the growing season so that you can relate to your own garden situation.

In addition we will be answering as many questions as possible that we receive in the mail. I hope that throughout the next year I can help you all to achieve better results from your efforts in the home landscape.

Now for some comments about Landscape Design. What is Landscape Design? I would guess that most people would say, "It's the shrubs I planted around the house", or "It's the tree in my front yard." Perhaps "The shrubs up against the back fence" and "the line of cedars along the property line."

Could I ask you — Why did you plant where you did? You may answer, "Well everybody plants evergreen around their house." or "Everybody on the street has a tree in their front yard; the builder gave us some shrubs, so we put them along the back fence. We hate the look of the neighbors' dog pen, so we planted a row of cedars to hide and the cedars also cut down the noise from the dog's barking."

With the exception of planting the row of cedars, little thought was given to the design process. By using the cedar screen they have used landscape design to improve their life style. Landscape design is not just planting plants around the property. Rather it is total planning to create a living area that blends with your family's needs and life style.

A good landscape design will increase the value, beauty and use of your property. Since all families' houses and properties are different, there is no single design that will fit all requirements. You must therefore develop your own plan for your particular situation. In my next column I will discuss the various elements that you should consider when developing your plan.

No back seat needed here!

WHILE REPORTS AND pictures about the first annual Windsor Star Beautification Awards appear above, as a member of the committee I would like to say I am happy the event was so warmly received by the community.

Next year I'm sure there will be even more entries as word spreads about this contest. Entries this year ranged from the largest industrial and commercial companies through to the smallest of gardens. As one of the judges, I can say we saw many well-maintained gardens.

Windsor has many deserving landscapes. The purpose of the contest is to recognize those who have done an excellent job and to encourage others to compete in future years.

While Windsor often is referred to as a "lunch-bucket" town, we don't have to take a back seat to anyone when it comes to gardens and landscapes. Our park system is second to none (despite the attempts by some ill-informed aldermen to set it back 20 years). Special recognition was made to the City of Windsor for the Jackson Park Sunken Gardens at last night's presentations. Flowers in the Dieppe and Coventry gardens are magnificent. My compliments to Lloyd Burridge and his staff.

Our downtown mall also received an award. The landscape part of this development now is beginning to grow and fill out. As years go by, it will become more apparent how these trees can change the downtown face of our city.

My personal congratulations to the downtown merchants and the city for an excellent job. (Let's make sure we maintain it for the future!)

received awards. These firms have shown the community how a little extra effort and what is really not a lot of extra money can go a long way to improve a corporate landscape and at the same time give out city a better image.

Last, but not least, are the private residences. Many of these award recipients have proved that lots of "tender loving care" and not loads of money can create an award-winning landscape. One has only to drive through the ethnic neighborhoods in Windsor areas near south Drouillard Road, Erie Street or Ottawa Street to see how dedicated gardeners can turn a small city lot into an oasis of color with perfectly manicured lawns.

MY SPECIAL congratulations to all the residential winners. You are the heart of Windsor's civic beautification. All the parks, malls and businesses mean nothing if the citizens themselves don't "keep up the green".

The contest itself was not a shoe-in event. Not all those nominated received awards, strict point system was adhered to and high standards were expected. Unfortunately, some excellent landscapes fell short due to poor maintenance.

As an independent columnist, I would like to commend The Windsor Star for promoting and funding this civic beautification program.

Nineteen eighty-four is just a few snowfalls away. Why not make plans now to enter next year's awards? You can spruce up your yard and, in the process, help create a better Windsor. (Now, if we only could get The Star to put out some flower boxes and street trees in planters along Pitt and Ferry Streets!)

Rhododendrons top of bloom hit parade

THE MILD WEATHER of this past winter and the long cool spring have combined to produce some of the most spectacular blooming displays that I have witnessed in my lifetime.

Leading the parade are the Azaleas and Rhododendrons. There are some Lake Superior Azaleas (Pink) in the Hiram Walker Reception Centre garden that I planted in 1965, and never have I seen them so covered with bloom and the color so vivid. Another plant putting on a spectacular display of bloom is the Flowering Dogwood. Throughout the county, I have seen dogwoods just loaded with bloom. Some of these trees are 20 feet (six metres) tall.

Yard & Garden
by P.C. Hubbell

All of this just confirms my view that Windsor is not only the City of Roses, but could also be the City of Azaleas, Rhododendrons, Holly and Dogwood. Our climate is unique compared with the rest of Canada's.

Only the Niagara peninsula and the Vancouver-Victoria B.C. area can provide a suitable growing climate as our Sun Parlor. Our damp winter weather, combined with our normally mild temperatures, are ideal.

Many proven varieties are hardy to as low as -25F (-32C). In Rhododendrons, the ironclads are American (Red) Bowle de Neige (White), Catawbiense Album (White), Catawbiense Boursault (Rose lilac) Caractus (Purple red), English Roseum (Rose lavender) Roseum Elegans (Rose lilac) Nova Zembla (Red) Mrs. Charles Sargent (Dark Carmine rose) Lee's Dark Purple (Purple), Everestianum (Lilac with green blotch) Ignatius Sargent (Deep rose).

Since berming is becoming a common design feature in landscape architecture, this is the ideal answer to Rhododendrons and Azalea planting. Place the plants above the ground and hill up around them with a good mixture of Peat Moss, sand and soil. Always finish with a good three- to four-inch (7½- to 10-cm) mulch of peat moss or oak leaves to keep the roots cool and moist.

Depending upon the variety most Rhododendrons like shade. Actually what they don't like is full hot summer sun. The answer therefore, is to plant on the east or north or under the shade of trees.

Often, people have areas that are too shady to grow other plants or grass. Such is an ideal area.

WITH A LITTLE planning, your berm could include a locust tree in the vicinity that would filter the summer sun.

Azaleas, Rhododendrons and Hollies like an acid soil. Our clay soils are usually close to neutral or even basic. Care should be taken to amend the soil as I mentioned previously, using peat moss or oak leaves. Don't plant directly into a heavy clay soil. They may survive, but will never become specimen plants.

Once the basic hardiness and soil requirements are met, Rhododendrons require very little care. Once a year in early spring, apply a Rhododendron and Azalea fertilizer. Apply good mulch before winter. Remove dead flower clusters after blooming to prevent seedbud formation. If you wish to prune the plant, do so right after blooming. This is all the care necessary.

FLOWERING DOGWOODS also like the same type of soil conditions as Azaleas and Rhodies. If you can get the ball of roots up above ground level, you will enhance your success. Mind you, most dogwoods around our area are planting just like other trees. Dogwoods like peat moss mulch and if they are shaded by other larger trees, they do much better.

There are various varieties from which to choose. The most popular is the pink flowering dogwood. The white flowering is next. These are both Cornus Florida varieties which are common throughout the eastern U.S. in Tennessee and the Carolinas. A Dogwood which I like because of its hardiness, is the Japanese flowering dogwood or cornus Kousa. This dogwood is common on the West Coast in Oregon and B.C. It is much hardier than Florida and has a flower that blooms a little later. Both are excellent choices for our area.

If you wish to view a Rhododendron-Azalea display that is out of this world, go to Westcroft Gardens on Grosse Isle.

Discovering a new floral world

WELL, ALL good things must come to an end, and vacations are no exception. So here I am alive and well after a super Port Huron to Mackinac sailboat race and two weeks of wonderful weather in the beautiful white pine country of northern lower Michigan.

Yard & Garden
P.C. Hubbell

While I was on vacation we had some friends over for an evening. At the last minute dear wifey called for the horticulturalist in residence to produce some flower arrangements. With only a few petunias, geraniums and dahlias in some half barrels on the patio, I was a little short of materials.

Remembering a friend who regularly visits the woods and roadsides to create her bouquets, I embarked upon a drive down the local back roads. To my amazement I discovered a whole new world of flowers, and foliage plants that I had always taken for granted.

ACTUALLY, I've always known a good many of them as weeds. Within half an hour I'd cut enough flowers to fill three beautiful vases. So lovely were the bouquets that a lawyer friend asked where had we purchased the professional arrangements. (But what do lawyers know about flowers anyway?)

My arrangements consisted of good old wild carrot (that's right, Queen Anne's lace), some wild fern, cattails, the graceful seed heads of some wild marsh grass, wild phlox, purple lythrum, and what I suspect was tansy ragwort.

These were only the ones I could quickly grab in half an hour close to home. Since that time I have been more observant and daily see more possibilities. I'm sure that there are some veteran wild flower collectors that are having a great chuckle while reading this but that's one of the reasons I'm writing it.

I'm also sure that most readers are like me — they never have considered or actually collected "weeds" and wild flowers.

MY KNOWLEDGE is limited in this area, but I'm learning quickly. Just prior to leaving for vacation I received one of my favorite catalogues — the fall garden catalogue from Wayside Gardens. Wayside Gardens was located in Ohio but moved a few years ago South Carolina. The address is Hodges S.C. 29695-0001.

If you write for a catalogue they may not send it to a Canadian address so, if you have a friend in the U.S., it might be best to have it sent to their address. They publish two catalogues yearly and even if you don't order plant material the color pictures of the plants and descriptive information is well worth the price of the catalogue which is in the area of $2 to $3.

WAYSIDE LISTS many varieties of lilies and day lilies. While vacationing I visited a friend's garden which contains an abundant planting of these wonderful summer flowers.

Most people are familiar with the tiger lily which for years has grown wild along roadsides. Tiger lilies add a splash of color with little or no maintenance in mid-summer.

In recent years a great deal of breeding work has occurred in both lilies and day lilies which has resulted in a large selection of colors and plant sizes. Wayside Catalogue lists 41 different day lily varieties with colors across the full spectrum of the rainbow.

WHILE DAY lilies flower only for a short period of one day some six-year-old plants have as many as 900 blooms in a single season. The growth habit and foliage of day lilies is such that they make excellent small hedges, good background plants and in some instances a good filler ground cover.

There are some dwarf varieties that can be used as ground covers and look very close to Liriope which is a very popular ground cover in the south. The variety "Eenie Weenie" is actually called the "Liriope of the north."

WITH PROPER variety selections you can have a steady parade of blooming lilies and day lilies from June through September. They are very hardy and their only requirement is good drainage. These bulbs can be planted in late fall for summer bloom next summer.

Also, while on vacation, I attended a Michigan State turf program experimental update that has produced some new fertilizing and watering recommendations for better disease and insect controls.

Coincidentally, just as I was about to submit this column I received a mailing from the Canadian Wildflower Society. Some of you might wish to join this group. The yearly membership is $15 and includes four issues of their publication The Wildflower.

The address is: J.A. French, Canadian Wildflower Society, 35 Bauer Crescent, Unionville, Ontario L3R 4H3.

Lawns didn't honor strike

Hiram Walker and Sons Ltd. is known for its whiskey, of course.

But for Windsor residents it is also known for something else — the beautifully manicured, carpet-like lawns in front of its Riverside Drive headquarters,

Not this summer, though. A by-product of the five-month strike by the company's 600 employees was a landscaper's paradise left to go to seed.

Well, the strike ended about a month ago and, despite the diligent work of Pete Hubbell, Hiram Walker's head groundskeeper, the lawns are "not anywhere neap back in shape."

There has been a great improvement, however.

It's not that Hubbell and his crew haven't been doing their best. They're just not getting the right kind of co-operation.

"Mother nature hasn't helped much," Hubbell said recently during a short break between rounds. "We haven't been getting any rain, and that's what we need most."

The restoration project is not a job that can be pushed simply by laying on extra hands with lots of overtime. It takes time — and co-operation from the weather.

The lawn, which had grown in shaggy clumps a foot-and-a-half tall, had to be cut in three stages to be slowly brought back into shape. Only this week was it finally cut down to its normal length of one-and-three-quarters of an inch.

The lawns were fertilized and watered regularly, but it's a slow process Hubbell says.

"It's got to have water and nutrients and we're just now beginning to see some response from the fertilizing."

But he isn't giving up.

"I said originally it would take until the end of September to bring it back and I still think we can make it. We do need rain, though."

The strike lasted too long to get in Walker's usual display of colorful flowers. It appears the only permanent damage was to several shrubs which succumbed during the strike.

Walker's lawn looked like a hay field during the five-month strike

Things are looking better now but it will be end of month before it's perfect

Windsorite sailing with One Ton fleet

There'll be at least one Canadian aboard one of five U.S. entries competing in the North American One Ton championships for sailboats in Newport, R. I., beginning Sunday and ending Aug. 26.

Pete Hubbell of Windsor, who has more than 20 years sailing experience, will be aboard Woodpecker, a one-off (one-of-a-kind) yacht designed by Doug Peterson of California and owned by Charlie Schreck, a lumber dealer from Tawas, Mich.

The sloop is 37 feet long, displaces 11,000 pounds and is made of wood laminate.

Hubbell, a member of South Port Sailing Club, said Woodpecker is similar in appearance to Golden Dazy which won the Canada's Cup in 1975.

He said the hull is made by laminating about four layers of wood together with epoxy. A final epoxy coating not only provides a strong, durable finish but highlights the wood's grain for a far more attractive appearance than is possible with any fiberglass finish.

Hubbell said wood laminate is cheaper than fiberglass for one-off designs and is best for producing a light displacement hull.

Also, wood seemed more appropriate than fiberglass for someone in the lumber business.

THE WAVES
BY Alan Henderson

Hubbell said the boat, which was built last year in Massachusetts, has proven to be extremely fast.

He said it was designed to have good speed at all points of sail but has proven particularly fast on a spinnaker run or when going to weather in heavy winds.

He said at a wind speed of five or six knots, for example, the boat easily exceeds seven knots. Once while surfing on a spinnaker run, the boat hit a staggering 15 knots.

Hubbell said he first met Schreck when he happened to go into his store to buy paint for his cottage nearby.

Hubbell said at the time he was taking a break from competition after racing for years with local sailors. However, he was persuaded to return when he learned about Schreck's plans.

Hubbell said he considers the chance to sail in the North American championships a rare opportunity.

"You only get a chance like that once in a lifetime," he said as he prepared to leave for Rhode Island.

He said Schreck has assembled a crack crew of seven sailors, five from Michigan and one from Rhode Island for his assault on the world championship.

He said there'll be about 20 boats in the competition, including five from Canada. Five finalists will be selected to represent North America in world competition which will be held two weeks later, also on the Atlantic Ocean, off Rhode Island.

Woodpecker's racing and practice schedule has meant a lot of travel each weekend to as far away as Chicago for Hubbell, who is superintendent of grounds and garage for Hiram Walker and Sons Ltd.

He said even if Woodpecker is successful next week, he'll unfortunately be unable to participate in the world competition because of the time commitment.

He's used up much of his holidays because of the racing schedule and he's had to take a leave of absence from work for the North American series.

However, he hopes to join crew members for some racing during the winter in the prestigious Southern Ocean Racing Circuit in Florida.

No time for play

Hubbell said racing on Woodpecker, where he's a watch captain and helmsman, requires a lot of work and leaves no time for cruising.

He said the sound of grinding winches is like music to the skipper's ears, even when he's trying to sleep. So, there's no cleating of spinnakers during a race.

"The spinnaker won't fly itself," Hubbell said Schreck chides the crew.

Hubbell said during the Chicago to Mackinac Island race this year, for example, the entire crew elected to sail all night during heavy weather rather than break off into watches.

"Everyone just said there would be plenty of time to rest after the race was over," he said.

Hubbell said that while Schreck is an unforgiving taskmaster during a race, he's appreciative of the crew's efforts after an event.

In Mackinac competition this year and last, Woodpecker finished in the overall top 10 twice, even against much larger boats.

The boat also won the Harbour Springs regatta and the Tawas to Alpena race this year.

He said Schreck, who started his racing career on 19-foot Lightnings, has plans to eventually race Two Ton yachts, the same as those in Canada's Cup competition.

Hubbell said he has jokingly told Schreck that as a Canadian on a U.S. boat, there's a limit to his loyalty.

He's told his skipper that if they should have the lead in the final race of a Canada's Cup series, "Charlie, I'll cut the halyard," he said with a laugh.

Schreck also has another Hubbell to draw on eventually if Pete should retire.

Hubbell said his son, Rick, 9, is following in his wake on the family's Sunfish, kept at the cottage.

Give us a shout

Here's a reminder to clubs that results of major regattas or achievements will be published in this column — providing, of course, we're aware of them.

Let us know about events you have planned and arrangements will be made to obtain results.

Also, we'd enjoy receiving copies of club bulletins or news of other significant club events.

An example of what can be learned from reviewing bulletins is an item in the recent Windsor Power Squadron log.

There's a report of a hazard near Lakewood Golf Club. A van that fell through the ice into about eight feet of water last winter hasn't been removed.

It has caused damage to unsuspecting mariners this season.

The van's located about a half-mile west of the golf course and about five-eighths to three-quarters of a mile off-shore.

Rick Hubbell works on his coin collection with his mother

By Janice Vansickle
Star Staff Reporter

Rick Hubbell has an insatiable appetite for learning, a question always poised on his young lips.

"Who's the most famous or interesting person you've ever met?" he asks a newspaper reporter. "How do news photographers know where to go for pictures? Are there police reporters who cover things like when Lee Harvey Oswald was shot?"

That last question shows his curiosity about events which happened before his birth 10 years ago. But Rick hasn't always found answers to his questions. In fact, his first years at school were filled with boredom and conflict.

A child of above average intelligence, being at the top of his class was taken for granted. Being nicknamed the brain was a plague that went with his achievements and caused trouble with peers.

"I was so afraid he would say, 'I'm not going to be called brainy. I'm going to be dumb for a while' so he would fit in," says his mother, Kathleen.

School held no promise of fulfilment for Rick. "He wasn't really frustrated. He was bored," she says.

But two years ago, at the age of eight, his fortunes changed. He was accepted in a pilot program for gifted fourth graders in South Windsor. The program, located at Glenwood Public School, now handles grades 4 and 5 on a daily basis. It's one of few programs catering to bright children, a group that has long been ignored.

Our community lost another of its older and highly respected citizens when Thomas Huggard, 88 years, passed away, November 15th at the Essex Nursing Home after a lingering illness. Dear father of (Elizabeth) Mrs. Vern McKim, Colchester North Twp., (Norma) Mrs. Sterling Elford, Harrow, (Lou) Mrs. Don Montgomery, Toronto, Edgar, Colchester N. Twp.; Olin, Pittsburg, Penn. One brother, Wallace, Colchester N. Twp. 12 grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren also survive. To all of whom goes our deepest sympathy. A devoted and kind father, grandfather and brother, he will be greatly missed not only by his family but by friends and relatives who sincerely mourn his passing. Funeral services in charge of Dodson and Habkirk Funeral Home, Essex, were held at the funeral home, Monday, November 17th at 2 p.m. with The Rev. T. Koning officiating. Interment was in St. Stephen's Cemetery.

HUGGARD—Mabel, 80 years, December 12, 1971, at Grace Hospital, Windsor. Late residence Colchester North Township. Beloved wife of Thomas Huggard. Girls skate their way home

By MARY BOTOSAN

After a four-month tour of some of the largest cities in the United States, Cydney Hurley and Janice Law have come home.

The girls left Windsor last June for San Francisco where they spent two months in intensive training for the 1968 edition of Shipstads and Johnston's Ice Follies, which opened Tuesday evening at the Olympia in Detroit.

Janice and Cydney were members of the Windsor Figure Skating Club and won one-year contracts with a two-year option with the Ice Follies at auditions held at the Olympia during the company's tour last winter.

After six months as professionals, Cydney and Janice are still enthusiastic about their new careers. "I think it has been the biggest experience in my life. It is something I can always look back on," said Janice in an interview Wednesday morning.

Janice is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Law of Randolph St., and it was Janice's father and her instructor, Mrs. Sandee Clark, who encouraged her to audition for the ice show. Janice's parents were at the opening night performance and Janice said her mother now thinks it was the best thing she could have done.

Cydney's mother was also on hand for the opening night performance, in time to see her daughter take an unexpected spill over a prop during one of the most popular production numbers of the show.

"I was in the first line and knew the prop was behind me, but I thought if anyone tripped over it, it would be the girl in the second line. Janice kept saying, 'the prop Cydney, the prop', but I guess I didn't hear her. My mother thought it was very funny," Cydney said. Cydney is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hurley of Croyden Ave.

Both girls have fallen during performances and they said it is not uncommon—even the principals fall, sometimes the ice is at fault. In San Francisco, Janice was performing a difficult turn on the ice and the tip of her skate caught and she fell, seriously hurting her knee. She still has a bruise from the fall but feels she is fortunate she didn't permanently damage her leg.

In San Francisco the girls spent most of their time practising and at rehearsals and had little time for sight-seeing. Since they have been on tour the girls have had an opportunity to do a lot of sightseeing in the various cities such as Denver, Colo., Chicago, Ill., and St. Louis, Mo. "We also do a lot of shopping, usually on Thursdays, which is payday," Cydney said.

Most of Janice's spare time is spent in private and group lessons. Ken and Paulette Ormsby, principals in the show, give lessons, and Janice is working towards her American silver dance awards and eventually hopes to win the gold award.

Cydney hasn't been taking private lessons but often stays after the show to practice.

Every girl on the line would some day like to be a principal in the show, but both Cydney and Janice agree that it takes a lot of hard work and practice. Line skaters are often auditioned for certain spots and usually they understudy for the principals.

"If a girls wants a solo spot she usually works out her own routine or practises the routine of one of the principals and if she is good enough she gets the chance to understudy.

I think it is every girl's ambition but it takes a lot of hard work and effort," Janice said.

Both girls plan to stay on with the show at least for the duration of their present contract. They also both expressed desire to teach figure skating at some time in the future. Janice would like to become a school teacher and teach ice-skating as her avocation.

The girls arrived by plane Sunday night and are staying with their parents during the two weeks the Ice Follies will be in Detroit. When the show closes November 26 they will leave for Syracuse, N.Y. and the eastern tour of the show. They plan a four-week vacation at home in May.

Set to spin

By SHIRLEY WALKER

Sixteen-year-old Cydney Hurley will be doing Friday night what she has "always wanted to do". For four years she has taken private skating lessons, and she will be one of 12 local skaters to compete in the Western Ontario Sectional Figure Skating Championships Friday.

This year's three-day competition, beginning Thursday, is being held in Windsor for the first time.

Cydney's mother, Mrs. Arthur Hurley of Croyden Rd., calls her daughter an "enthusiastic skater".

The girl herself says: "I could skate all day and all night. I just love to be on the ice. I can't express the way it feels."

Mrs. Hurley said that neither she nor her husband figure skate and devotion to the sport is "all Cydney's idea". Their younger daughter, Mary, takes group skating lessons, but their son prefers other sports.

Cydney became interested in figure skating when she went Saturdays to skate at Windsor Arena. She took group lessons for a while and then at the age of 12 started skating "seriously".

For the past three summers she has taken lessons in St. Thomas where she almost did skate "all day and all night". The students were on the ice by 6 a.m., skated periodically throughout the day and even on into the evening.

This season she skates week days after school and six hours on Sundays. Having amateur coach training, she acts as a monitor and spends three hours each Saturday teaching younger children to skate.

Cydney holds the silver dance medal in figure skating, for which she had to dance with another person on ice. She is currently working towards the gold medal and hopes, when she completes high school, to join the Ice Follies.

She said her greatest inspiration came from watching Petra Burka skate last year.

"Seeing someone like that makes you want to work harder," Cydney said.

And she isn't discouraged by falls on the ice. In fact, to her, a solid thud from the "sitter-downer" meeting ice is a good sign.

"If you fall, it means you're progressing; it means you're trying something new," Cydney said. "You just have to get up and try again."

She has been practising her number for this week's competition since October. One of 23 entrants in the novice ladies' free skating division, Cydney has prepared a 2½-minute solo. All entrants will perform three figures, and just the 10 of those judged as the best skaters will do their solos.

The competitions, taking place at Windsor Arena Thursday night, at Riverside Arena Friday and back at Windsor Arena Saturday, include those in all divisions from juveniles to seniors. A person's entrance in a particular division is based on qualification, not age.

Winners of all events will skate their winning numbers at the Saturday night exhibition. Also on the program will be an exhibition by Donald Jackson, Canadian men's single figure skating champion. "All events" tickets and Saturday tickets are available for spectators at the Windsor Arena box office.

Between 25 and 30 judges from all over Ontario will judge the more than 150 contestants in the competitions.

Junior and senior winners of these Western Ontario competitions will compete in the Canadian Figure Skating Championships to be held in Peterborough, Ont., in February.

Cydney Hurley (above) is one of 12 local skaters who will compete in the Western Ontario Sectional Figure Skating championships to be held in Windsor this weekend. Competitions include skaters in all divisions from juveniles to seniors.

Century Farm Signs

The Spring of 1987 marks the 20th Anniversary of the Century Farm Project. To commemorate this special occasion, the Public Awareness Committee on behalf of the Junior Farmers' Association of Ontario is conducting a province-wide community betterment project to recognize agriculture. This province-wide project as been designed not only to celebrate the anniversary, but also to remind farm owners that the "CENTURY FARM SIGNS" are still available. To be eligible, the farm must be resided upon and be in active operation, as well as have been owned by direct descendants of the same family for 100 or more years, as of January 1st, 1987. Farm owners wishing to apply for the designation of a Century Farm can obtain the necessary application from their County Junior Farmer Provincial Director. The Essex County Director is Brian Hyland, R. 1, Maidstone, 776-5092. The application, upon completion must be accompanied by a cheque or money order for $15.00. Farms which obtained signs in the past 20 years and wish to replace a sign may also order them.

There are Hyland members from Montreal, Ottawa, Kars, Trenton, Sudbury, Toronto, Grimsby, London, Royal Oak, Mich., etc. registered to attend.

Mrs. Hilliard Neice (Dolly) one of the eldest fourth generation Hylands will be in charge of our guest book.

The Maidstone area and many points of interest will be visited on a bus tour conducted by Walter Hyland and Gary Tucker on Monday forenoon, July 2nd. The Maidstone U.C. women are serving a hot turkey dinner at 1 p.m. followed by a short program, in charge of Donald C. Hyland and committee.

Games of interest to both young and old are planned for an exciting afternoon.

Hope to see all the Hyland clan participating on July 1st and 2nd. Bring your pictures and cameras, folks. Let's make it an event to remember.

BRIAN W. HYLAND

At the Convocation at the University of Guelph on Friday, June 7th Brian received a Degree in Bachelor of Science in Agriculture (Honours Program). At a noon luncheon the same day Brian also received two awards - the A. Gordon Skinner OIA Scholarship and the Robert Keegan Memorial Scholarship.

Brian Hyland shows his 4-H guest, Jeane Snow, his secretary records.

The 4-H program is different, types of farming are different, even the countryside is different, says Jeane Snow of Gap Mills, West Virginia who is on an exchange visit for 4-H members.

Jeane, 17, is one of 46 4-H members visiting throughout Ontario. She is the only one in Essex County and is returning the 1977 visit of Joanne Hyland, hosted by Susan and Brian Hyland because Joanne is now in Kenora.

Jeane's father is a member of the United States army so she and her mother operate their beef breeding farm of 20 cows in a mountainous area of the country.

When asked what she thought of this part of Ontario, she stated, "it's flat." But she thinks it is pretty and is fascinated by getting her first glimpse of Detroit from the Canadian side, 15 miles distant.

Crops grown on the family farm are mainly forage and corn for the cattle which are on pasture and are fed only during the four cold months of the year.

All members of the 4-H program meet together in West Virginia, rather than a club for each project as we have here. Jeane thinks one group learning together is better because they learn about a greater variety of projects.

The group came to Ontario at Niagara Falls and scattered to the different homes they were to visit while Jeane continued by bus to Chatham where the Hylands met her. The group assembled in

This year's Sun Parlour Food Tour gave visitors a look at tomato processing, from the field crop to the packaged cans.

Thomas Canning factory, home of Utopia tomatoes in Maidstone Township, was one of 5 stops on the third Essex County food tour sponsored by CBC radio, Essex County farm organizations and the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food.

At the cannery, operated by the Thomas family, visitors saw the harvesting and processing of ripe tomatoes. In adjoining fields pickers were at work, tomatoes were being unloaded, inspected and graded, washed, peeled and packed into the cans.

A methodical clink of a cube of salt being dropped into each can as it passed a machine intrigued most visitors as did the machine that slapped a label on a can faster than the eye could see, as it rolled along the line.

The beef finishing and cow-calf operation of Dale Bedford gave insight into the amount of beef a consumer gets from a 500 pound side and the mark up from the farm price to the cost for the consumer. Beef is the main product of the 80-year old Bedford family farm, with one of few cow-calf production herds in Essex County.

Insight into the cost of equipment needed for a 2700 acre cash crop operation, producing corn, soybeans and wheat was provided at the Frank Lafferty farm.

How much it cost to feed a dairy cow and the required standards for A classification in milk production was explained by Walter Hyland, owner of a 25 cow herd.

The family farm of Henry Mergl was the headquarters for the four busloads (plus several carloads) of visitors from Windsor and the county. It was there the picnic lunch of pork sausage, soybean bread, fruits, vegetables, including hot buttered corn on the cob, and milk between lush crops of corn and soybeans.

CBC's Radio Noon was broadcast from the Mergl farm where Barbara Peacock and Herb Colling were joined by special guests from the farm community. Bluegrass music by The County Pioneers gave a lively, toe-tapping background for the picnic.

Fund to Aid in Fire Tragedy

The fire that claimed the life of a former Essex resident's child also destroyed the home and everything belonging to the family. A trust fund has been established by Essex United Church.

Jason Kosloski, 2½, son of Bob and Joanne Kosloski of Kenora, perished when the family home burned the afternoon of March 6.

Joanne is the daughter of Walter and Muriel Hyland of R.R. 1 Maidstone.

Reports say a neighbour phoned Joanne to report the house was on fire but she was unable to get to the little boy. Another son, Jim, was in school at the time and the home was built last year.

According to a report received Monday, the fire marshal was unable to identify the cause of the blaze.

Donations may be made to assist the young couple at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Canada, Essex, to Rev. Douglas Mitchel, in trust.

Funeral services for Jason were held Wednesday.

PRESIDENT AND OFFICERS OF ESSEX COUNTY JR. FARMERS -

JOSEPH G. HENNIN was born in the Township of Sandwich East (now the Town of Tecumseh) on the 15th day of September, 1881. He attended the Tecumseh Public School, and the Windsor Collegiate Institute.

At the age of 17 was given a permit by the late Theodule Girardot Inspector of Public Schools to teach school and was appointed a member of the teaching staff of the Tecumseh Public School Board at a salary of $150.00 a year.

After one year he resigned that position and operated a grocery store in Tecumseh. In the year 1903 was married to his present wife, nee Alice Lefevre, and shortly after, opened the first grocery store in the hamlet of Jackson's Corners (now Roseland).

Shortly after was appointed the first Post Master of Jackson's Corners. In December 1922 the business and premises were sold to the present owner I. L. Whipple.

In the year 1923, was elected a member of the Sandwich South Township Council, and after serving two years as a Councillor, was elected Reeve for that Township and continued in that office for twenty three (23) consecutive years thereafter.

Was elected Warden for the County of Essex in the year 1941. Was always interested in church and social work, particularly child welfare, and neglected children.

Was the chief advocate of the formation of the Essex County and Pelee Island Children's Aid Society, and for five years while this Society operated and until it amalgamated with the Windsor Society, was its only president.

Upon the amalgamation of the two Societies was elected its first president.

Immediately after disposing of the grocery business in 1922, became an associate of the late Joseph Breault, in the Fire and Automobile Insurance and Mortgage Loans. Acquired this business for himself in the year 1932, and continued until 1948 when he sold the Insurance part of the business.

Since that time is operating a private Mortgage Loan and Conveyancing Business with offices on his own premises at 195 Goyeau St. Windsor Ontario.

Notes on JOSEPH HENNIN -- Dick Roe.

In the early days it was the custom in France to send out to the Colonies young men who were studying for the Priesthood. It was thought advisable to thus give them an opportunity to make certain that they wished to continue in the church ministry.

Among those who decided not to continue were three young students Girardo, Christino and Hennin. Young Mr. Hennin who became the grandfather of Mr. Joe Hennin our former Reeve, married and became a school teacher, teaching at Tecumseh for thirty years.

Girardo started a winery at Sandwich, whilst Christino became Postmaster at Tecumseh.

Joe's father was a farmer and Joe was born on a farm at Tecumseh Joe taught school until he went into business with a team and grocer's wagon. His route was through our local countryside. He became a well known figure as he went from farm to farm, and settlement to settlement with groceries and meat. He married Alice Lefevre, both being quite young, dashing and handsome.

Alice's mother was a Ducharme, a sister of Mrs. Virginia Morand. She died when Alice was an infant and Alice was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Parent. Her foster parents had received a grant of land from the British Government for taking up arms under the British cause in repelling the invaders from the South. About 1905 a friend advised Joe to settle in Jackson's Corners.

A small four roomed house was moved from its location on the South end of 25 acres owned by Mr. Ed. Turk to the North end about where Hutson's store now stands. Mr. Ed. Turk was an Englishman and his 25 acres were from the Lennon drain (which crosses Howard near Mr.

Saville's) to the present Cabana Road.

The Lennon Drain derives its name from a Mr. Lennon who owned 25 acres from the Drain to the Point at Howard and Dougall. Mr. Lennon was a bachelor, who, after his sister died lived alone. One night he fell while carrying an oil lantern, he burnt to death and the house burned down. Mr. Ferdine Morand was one of those who discovered the body. The ruins of this house can still be seen in a clump of trees near the Point.

Joe brought Alice along to look at the four roomed house, with the idea of starting in business as storekeeper. In spite of the fact that the place was run down, overrun with weeds and conveniences were nil, Alice undertook to make her home there, and Joe went into business. This old house is now a part of the home of Ellis Loyst.

Joe had the only telephone for miles around and he just loved to be called night after night, by people living in the country, to call a doctor for them. He was the first postmaster of Jackson's Corners, and served for some years. He later moved across the street where there was a hotel, and started a store there. Bill Whipple bought him out in 1923 and Joe went into Insurance with Joe Breault. When Mr. Breault died. Joe took over the business. Talking about those years with his friends, I find they all agree that Joe was a hard worker, a good solid citizen and a pillar of strength to the growing community. He was Reeve of Sandwich South for twenty three years, Councillor two, making twenty five years in municipal service. He assisted financially and in other ways, The Women's Institute, The Community League, The Roseland Girl Guides, The United Church Sunday School, The Roseland Library and Roseland Home and School Association in addition to his interest and activities in his own church. He could always be counted on for a speech anywhere and any time and was a good talker.

He has always been a strong supporter of British Institutions and during the war displayed the largest Union Jack in the village. He has always enjoyed his public work, and has been a source of strength to the Councils of Sandwich South and Essex County.

He owns and lives in a fine home at the corner of Howard and Schofield Aves. Retired from Municipal activities at the end of 1947. A reception was tendered him on Jan. 28th, 1948 in Roseland Women's Institute Hall with the ladies of the Institute serving the delicious banquet. This banquet was attended by Rev. Jos. Tully, and Mrs. Tully, who had gone into retirement at Amherstburgh after being rector of St. Stephen's Anglican Church for eighteen years, here in Sandwich South. This was the last public function the late Mrs. Maude Tully attended as she passed away very suddenly early in February, 1948.

United Way dishes out assistance

ESSEX — A hot meal once a day may be taken for granted by most people, but not by 87-year-old Nellie Herdman.

Nellie, who has difficulty preparing her food, is the grateful daily recipient of a hot meal courtesy of the Meals on Wheels program of the Essex and District Social Planning Council, a United Way county demonstration project.

The former school teacher lives on her own in a senior citizens complex in Essex; one of 12 people in town who are assisted by the program. She has been on her own for 22 years since her husband died.

And she finds the meals ample enough to fill her hearty appetite.

"I'm a farm girl you know, so I have a good appetite," says the bright-eyed native of Hagersville, Ont., near Hamilton. "I think the meals are nice — they give you good slices of meat and nice vegetables."

"AND THE MEALS aren't monotonous. They change them all the time. All I have to do is make my own tea."

The meals, which consist of soup, meat, vegetables and a dessert, cost $1.50 each and are delivered to seniors' tables Monday, Wednesday and Friday at the noon hour. The elderly can also take advantage of a Meals to Wheels program on Tuesdays and Thursdays, sponsored by a local seniors group, through which they are taken to a senior's home for lunch.

Janny Vanveen, coordinator of the 19-month-old Meals on Wheels program, says enthusiastic volunteer help at the Essex Nursing Home (where the meals are prepared) and from interested citizens makes the program a success.

"The kitchen staff that prepares the meals do it without pay and the meals are delivered by volunteers in their own cars," she says.

VANVEEN IS assisted by staff members Mary Richards and Joan Foster who Donna Lawton, Meals on Wheels volunteer, serves up a piping hot lunch to 87-year-old Nellie Herdman at Nellie's apartment in Essex.

coordinate drivers and patients.

Vanveen said there is little problem getting volunteers as local churches and women's groups take turns at delivery service.

And the best feature of the program, according to Vanveen, is that it is self-supporting.

"We have no budget. The $1.50 goes straight from the people to the nursing home to pay for the food. All the work is volunteer."

Six weekly volunteers run two meal routes with containers donated by Sun Parlour Home in Leamington. Two people make each run, one driver, and one to deliver the meals.

Of the 12 people served by the program, half live in seniors' homes, the other half live in their own homes or in those of their family.

Joyce Gold, executive secretary of the Essex and District Social Planning Council says she is pleased with the response the Meals on Wheels project has received.

"Response has been very good," says Gold, who began her career with the council in 1975 as a volunteer with the Community Information Service. "The only problem getting volunteers is around Christmas and summer vacations, but that's to be expected."

The social planning council was born in 1975 after studies by various citizens groups determined there was a need for family services and an information and referral centre in Essex.

WORKING WITH FUNDING from the United Way, and the provincial ministries of community and social services and culture and recreation, the planning council now offers a Community Information Service, and a handi-yan transportation for seniors and the handicapped in Essex.

Gold estimates the 1980 budget to be about $25,000. In 1980, the council received $15,548 from the United Way and worked with the remainder of a $5,700 grant it received as a United Way special project in 1978.

Gold says because of more funding from the government this year, the demand of the council on the already strained coffers of the United Way will be less in 1981. But she adds the decrease in demand will not affect services.

Future plans for the council include a look into the problems of adolescents and youths in the Essex area.

FRED HERDMAN WORKS on developing special lubricant formulas for the tool-cutting industry

Firm leads in lubricants

By Bob Meyer

Star Business Reporter

Commonwealth Oil, of Harrow, is one of the biggest little oil companies in this part of the country.

It employs only six persons full time, but somehow this scarcely known lube-blending plant supplies nearly every tooling shop in these parts as well as some of the major auto manufacturers in the world with its lubricants.

So Fred H. Herdman, president, can say without hesitation: "Commonwealth Oil has the best electric discharge machining (EDM) fluid in the world."

Technology Today, a publication of the Ontario Research Foundation, quoted him recently for saying it, as did Tech Talk, a plant management and engineering publication, in its recent October edition.

Commonwealth Oil has been producing that particular machining fluid for only a few months, yet the Ontario Research Foundation and dozens of users in Southwestern Ontario have said they think Herdman's new product will soon become a big seller.

ALREADY, SOME of the largest firms in North America with electric discharge machining tools have switched to using Commonwealth Oil's EDM fluid. Ford Motor Co., Peerless Plastics, Rockwell, Canadian Salt Company Ltd., National Auto Radiator Mfg. Co. Ltd, Litton Systems in Toronto, Allied Chemical, General Electric in New York, now are buying large quantities of Commonwealth Oil lubricants.

Most recently, Herdman was discussing a "turnkey" contract with a major oil company in South Korea, which could result in Commonwealth Oil building and equipping a lube-blending plant in South Korea for sale to the new owners when it is operating satisfactorily.

"We would build the plant and equip it with our technology. They could then blend lubricants using our formulas. It appears that South Korea knows all about the technology of tooling and building automobiles, but they don't have the lubricants that we do," Herdman said.

TWO OTHER unnamed firms in countries abroad are considering similar arrangements.

Herdman said he is optimistic about such contracts. He sees how Commonwealth Oil products could become world products much quicker if they are blended in other countries. Already, the Harrow firm is selling EDM fluids and lubricants to a major tooling firm in Switzerland.

The EDM fluid is only one of many natural and synthetic lubricants the little Harrow firm has developed. Its products range from automatic transmission fluids to HD motor oils, from synthetic lubricants to hydraulic oils.

HERDMAN CONCEDES it may take several years to happen, but believes that his formulations will put Commonwealth Oil among the three big producers of EDM fluids in North America, a market with a total value of $20 million annually. Herdman's story dates back to when Herdman was a boy and "must have gotten it (the oil) mixed in my blood while riding around with dad in his oil truck making oil deliveries." He says the oil business has been an important part of his life ever since he was old enough to tinker with it.

"It's like a hobby now. I live it and breathe it. I wake up in the morning and been compounding industrial lubricants since 1983. But it has only been in the past year or so that a number of his lubricants have swept many of the other well-known names off the shelves of just about every tool and die or machining shop in Essex, Kent and Lambton Counties.

"BUT I'M NOT alone. Vince Curtis, a consultant and chemist working out of Hamilton, is responsible for the EDM, for one thing. He spends most of his time in our lab. And Rick Dawson, in charge of sales and technical service, is doing his part in showing many of the local shops why our products are better than many."

Curtis was a specialist in lubricants and specialty petroleum products for the Ontario Research Foundation when Herdman enlisted the foundation to help him formulate a superior EDM fluid. His dad, Jack Herdman, who has been in the oil business for more than 30 years, "is my right hand. I couldn't possibly get along without him. He's here day and night, doing things I wouldn't think of doing....we burn a lot of midnight oil," Herdman says.

He said EDM fluid must remain physically and chemically stable during use and have a low density in order to promote rapid separation of the metal particles produced by the machining action.

EDM FLUIDS used throughout the tooling industry before Commonwealth Oil formulated its EDM fluid were white, odorous and lacking in an extended lifetime.

"We introduced EDM-244, a truly superior and revolutionary fluid because it has a longer fluid life, it has a proven field performance, reduces chances of fire . . . has more rapid flushing at the point of cut and has extremely low odor levels," Herdman said.

Dawson said the health and safety features of Commonwealth products are as important to Herdman and Curtis as the lubricating and cutting features. Their products have a low order of toxicity, or skin, eye and lung irritation. None of the lubricants and synthetics are flammable nor will they deteriorate even after years of being exposed to light and air.

EVEN THE floor absorbent powder Floor-Dry, that Commonwealth Oil imports for local distribution is non-toxic, non-corrosive and odorless. Herdman said he imports it from Nevada because of its safety features — it absorbs spills immediately leaving the floor dry and safe.

The dozens of products Commonwealth Oil blends begin as virgin oil from a refinery in Sarnia. It oil is trucked to the plant in Harrow where it is mixed in seven blending tanks ranging in size from 6,000 to 16,000 litres.

Delivery trucks carry the blends to their destinations, daily to locations in Essex, Kent and Lambton Counties.

Commonwealth Oil was one of the first lube-blending firms in North America to color-code its oil drums for safety purposes. Herdman said that because the lubricants are nearly colorless and odorless, it is almost impossible to tell them apart. But one mistake could wreck an expensive cutting or metal-working tool.

Funeral services were held this week for the late Tom Imeson, of Walker Rd. who passed away at the age of eighty-three.

Mr. Imeson was a long time resident of Sandwich South, residing on what is known as the Snake Lane and later moving to Walker Rd.

Leo Vincent newly born son of Leo Jansen of 8th Conc. was christened at St. Mary's R.C. Church by Rev. J.P. Gleason last Sunday.

We paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Leo Jansen and family near Comber the past week. Mr. and Mrs. Jansen were former residents here, Mr. Jansen at one time was a member here of the Oldcastle Co-Op staff and asks about many of his friends and former customers here.

Mrs. Jansen (Agnes), claims, she runs across an Essex Free Press and likes to read about the folks in this area. Mr. and Mrs. were at a local event of recent and Agnes wanted a place to sit down on the hood of the car but recent rain had dampened the hood. Some kind friend offered her a newspaper and it was the life saver Free Press that drew her attention. Part of the paper became a dry seat and the other part was saved to read about old friends in these parts.

Born - week of July 22, 1932
Mr. & Mrs. W. Jennings - son on July 20.

Our Mr. Jennings of North Talbot Road and now retired former W. D. Lowe teacher is still enjoying the winter sport of bird feeding and claims he is learning more of bird habits each year. One problem he claims is that the birds might eat him out of house and home but he still carries on. Mr. Jennings claims the cardinal is one clan of birds that fight other members of their clan for just one little bit of eating territory and that the pheasants seem to enjoy his feeding tidbits the most and he has seen as high as some forty pheasants around at one time.

You notice we say Mr. Jennings, in our high school days most of us addressed a teacher as Mr. or Miss and it was sir and no sir and so on down the line. There was none of this so called first name calling a teacher or all this buddie buddie as is done in many educational institutions of to-day.

Teachers were teachers and most classes knew that and respected a teacher for the image of the boss of the class. There was the tyrant among teachers as well as students and a teacher or student of that type was never liked or lasted among fellow teachers or students.

From a interesting article read the Toronto Star about teachers and would be teachers. Times may have changed but all this student self expression just plain poor manners of some students have sure made a mess of many educational institutions today. We will go back to our bird feeding friend Mr. Jennings teaching days if we had the chance and still enjoy the three R's from people who were our best friends and turned out some of the best men and women this world has seen or will probably ever see.

Mr. Richardson gave his daughter in marriage and she was attended by her sister, Mrs. E. Paul Wilson, as matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Donald G. Hooper, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Peter S. Jarvis. Nancy Richardson, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

Dr. Raymond Yaworsky of Montreal was best man and the guests were ushered by Mr. Ross Richardson and Mr. Hugh McGugan of Palmerston, cousin of the bridegroom.

For her marriage, the bride chose a floor-length gown of rose point lace and tulle over slipper satin, fashioned with a Sabrina neckline edged with clipped lace flowers, and long lace sleeves extending into points over her wrists. The bouffant skirt was accented with front and side panels. Her veil of illusion was held by a small lace Juliet cap embroidered with sequins and seed pearls, and she carried gardenias and white baby chrysanthemums.

Her attendants wore similar gowns of pale pink peau de seiche, fashioned on Empire lines, with square necklines, full skirts and deep purple velvet sashes extending into long streamers at the back.

The reception was held in the Parkdale Memorial Hall. For her going-away ensemble, Mrs. Jennings chose a brown light-weight tweed dress with dusty rose satin trim and matching rose accessories. Her corsage was of white gladioli tips and chrysanthemums.

Dr. and Mrs. Jennings will reside in Montreal where Dr. Jennings is interning at Montreal Hospital. Both Dr. and Mrs. Jennings are graduates of Queen's University, Kingston.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included, besides the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Johnston of Essex, Mr. and Mrs. A. McGugan, Miss Agnes McGugan and Mr. Hugh McGugan of Palmerston, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. J. Osborne of Windsor, Dr. and Mrs. Donald G. Hooper of Kingston, and Mr. and Mrs. Arlington Dundy of Cochrane.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Herbert Richardson of Ottawa announce the engagement of their daughter, Gail Elizabeth, to Dr. Donald Baine Jennings, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jennings of North Talbot Rd., Oldcastle. The marriage will take place Saturday afternoon, Aug. 24, at 2 o'clock, in Parkdale United Church, Ottawa.

Two Retiring Teachers Honored

Tribute Paid to G. F. Dean, W. H. Jennings

Two men, who have been instrumental in making Windsor schools excel, George F. Dean and W. H. Jennings were honored by approximately 185 colleagues, friends and former students during a retirement dinner Wednesday evening at the University of Windsor Student Centre.

Having together amassed 71 years of teaching in Windsor Secondary Schools, the two men will retire at the end of the school year in June.

Mr. Dean, who has been principal of Harry E. Guppy High School of Commerce since its beginning in 1959, began teaching 37 years ago at Lowe Vocational. During his 10 years as teacher at Lowe, 18 years as commercial director and nine years as principal, Mr. Dean has come in contact with approximately 40,000 students.

GRADUATION DAY — Retiring High School of Commerce principal L.A. Cook discusses the past year with the school's two top students during graduation services held by the school at the Cleary Auditorium Tuesday night. Linda Staudt, left, was awarded the Benson Scholarship and the Commerce Faculty Award while Helene Savard, right, was awarded the W.H. Jennings Bursary. Miss Staudt was also valedictorian. One hundred and forty students graduated.

Apr. 5. 76

Though Mr. Jennings joined the Lowe staff 34 years ago he began his teaching career at the age of 15 in a rural school in Newfoundland.

An estimated 40,000 students have come in contact with Mr. Jennings during his years in Windsor as a commercial teacher and commercial director at Lowe Vocational and Commerce respectively. Countless other students throughout the province have been influenced by Mr. Jennings as he is the author of several textbooks on law and business arithmetic.

Tributes were paid by colleagues, friends, former students, by Lewis Cook, who will assume duties of vice-principal at Commerce and by Miss May Connerty, English department head at Commerce.

Mr. Cook and Miss Connerty presented gifts to the two guests of honor.

Regardless of all the headlines in the big daily papers the weekly paper brings home news of the old stamping grounds that is worth more than all the cash in the banks. Mrs. Peck is confined to her bed at home at 519 McKay Ave., in Windsor, due to the crippling forces of Arthritis that has plagued her for many years. Regardless of all her ills, she still enjoys her friends calling to her by the phone at her bedside.

No doubt many of you who know her would like to have an old friendly chat just by turning the dial and recall by-gone days. Dial Clearwater 2-1374 at Windsor and we hope she will have had her afternoon nap.

Back row: Diana Brown was winner in competition for boys or girls from 14 to 17 years, and Allan Rogers was best in 4-H competition.

Oldcastle 4-H Club

Oldcastle 4-H Club spent their third meeting at the Maidstone Conservation Area. Everyone met at St. Mary's Church. We opened our meeting with the pledge and motto lead by our president, Robert Jessop. Some of the things discussed at this meeting were: exploring nature, the diversity of nature, endangered species, and photography. We talked about the five senses and what they have to do with nature. We took a short quiz to see how much we knew about endangered species. We then discussed good composition of pictures and tips for the "Shutterbug."

There were two guests at our meeting, Mrs. Jane Tofflemire and Mr. Tim Halford. During the meeting we did many extra activities like scavenger hunt, nature walk and a game of tag. The nature walk gave us time to examine nature and to take pictures of nature with our newly found knowledge of photography.

Just before closing our meeting, we enjoyed a delicious picnic snack. We closed our meeting by picking up our garbage and leaving the park as we found it.

On May 7 the Oldcastle 4-H club held their fifth meeting at the home of Mrs. Doris Johnston. We discussed the purpose of our outing. We then planned our "big-day". We will be going to Pt. Pelee on Saturday, May 14. Everyone was assigned a duty for our outing.

Please dress accordingly and Robert, don't forget the matches and charcoal, Wendy and Aimee, don't forget the food. See you at Mrs. Halford's 8:45 a.m. sharp.

Co-op Holds Annual Meeting

The 34th annual directors' and shareholders' meeting of the Oldcastle Co-op was held in the Sandwich South Town Hall, Monday afternoon. Some 30 shareholders attended to hear financial and business reports of the company for the past year.

Sickness, for the first time in a number of years, led to the absence of three of the company's directors — President Henry Hartley and directors, Steve Esping and John Bart. James Weston took the chair and conducted the meeting in the absence of Mr. Hartley. James was re-elected and accepted by the shareholders for another term of office.

V. W. Jones, company auditor, read the annual report and commented on its findings. Mr. Jones complimented the company on its showing in the past five years, claiming that the local co-op was shown to be one of the fastest expanding co-op's in Western Ontario. He also urged the shareholders to find new members and more working capital for the company. The Essex auditor reported that some grain purchases were down due to low prices and the storing of farmers' grain. Mr. Jones was re-appointed company auditor for the 1955-56 year.

The death of Newton Holden left a vacancy on the directors' board of the company and Bruce Banwell, one of Sandwich South's younger farmers, was elected to his position on the board.

Manager James Cordery, of the Imperial Bank, of Essex, attended the meeting. Mr. Cordery claimed that the company had shown wonderful advances and claimed that this probably would be another good year, with the exception that grain prices were now reaching a level and the farmers main draw back would be the high cost of living and farm machinery.

Harry Pettypiece, a member of the Essex County Medical Co-op, explained some of the benefits of hospitalization. Mr. Pettypiece also explained that the Medical Co-op at times, was in a position to lend money to county co-op's.

Some discussion arose as to the seed cleaner of the company. Millard Warner, local plant inspector, pointed out that the Co-op seed cleaner would be a great accommodation to farmers in this district.

Walter Jessop, manager of the company, spoke to the gathering with great praise of the company's late director, Newton Holden. Mr. Jessop also complimented the auditor, V. W. Jones, for his work, and the members of the staff.

After about one hour of business reports, the meeting was adjourned, and a tasty luncheon was served by the Oldcastle Women's Institute.

ESS, ESSEX, ONOLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

(by Carson Jessop)

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Because of the Christmas holiday arriving in the middle of next week, we will send out our yearly message this week. Each year at this time, we just forget the usual words and messages of this old Highlights and put our minds to the meaning of Christmas and what it is and what it should mean in a world that is highly commercialized, advertised and sometimes money is the exchange for true thoughts and true meanings.

Christmas is without any doubt the birthday of Jesus Christ and any true Christian believer will not doubt this date though the birth of Christ was almost two thousand years ago and was a happening in a land far remote from ours and a land that boils and is fired by the same differences of belief that it was at the birth of Christ.

From the new testament this gift of the new born son to a Virgin Mary and her devoted husband Joseph from the Lord God will be a mystery yet to-day and even we with much faith, must stop to ponder the same question that has torn nation against nation and people against people with bitterness down through the history of the Bible from the old testament, new and modern religion.

Jewish prophets foretold of the coming of the Messiah but this future Messiah was not expected to be the ordinary look of an Eastern human being and it was their right to believe him to be not the true son of a loving God. Followers of Christ saw with their own eyes the miracles Christ performed and they had the same right to their own beliefs that this was the son sent from God.

Christ could be said the leader of a revolution almost the same kind that is happening not only in our Western world but in almost every nation on earth today. Christ's teachings were away from the old established religion but those that believed then had no idea that those teachings would stir nations and people remote from the Eastern Jewish rights that had come down from the history of time.

What causes we ordinary citizens to ponder, is why the teachings of Christ had to become political and become so involved that to-day it divides nations against nations, people against people and is a barrier in many faces of just common everyday living.

On the pages of our press, radio, T.V. and every known use that communicates to the public we have hippies, flower people drug addicts and a large downward trend to religious attendance among much of our youth in the youthful world. Many homes have the two car garage and employment is at its highest peak and the so called affluent society is restless and torn between the divorce market, the highest crime rate and social upheaval.

Some place along the line the meaning of Christmas and the simple teachings of love of man kind and its resulting peace that was taught by this Son of God has been pushed aside for the power of man and riches of the dollar sign.

Man has sought to play God long ago even before the birth of Christ and even down through our Christian history our leaders of both religion and politics took down the wrong road that divided and sowed the seeds of much of our present discontent even here in the Western world of democratic ideas of free speech and freedom of man under law.

All is not lost even on this Christmas of 1968 regardless of our faults and our stumbling in the darkness to find a light like this new born son that was sent as a gift of God to his people. We only have to substitute a few moments of thoughts of love of ones neighbor, a few kind words of acts and remember the art of prayer that sometimes is lost in a fast moving society. We only need to be honest with ourselves and use the often forgotten inner voice of our souls that is peace to men of good will and those about us. May your Christmas be a happy one and may old Santa fill your house with the spirit of the Christ born on this day.

It is quite odd sometimes that the T.V. stations and radio broadcasting units hunt all over for headline talent to satisfy the needs and wants of advertisers. Either the talent must be one who demands the big cheque or is of course U. S. products or Canadians who have made it big across the line.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop

Laast Sunday in many homes the dad's of the house were the glamour boys for the celebration of Father's Day which now has gained popularity in our Western world celebrations. In many a home also there would be no cheers for a father who probably had passed on and was only a memory of the person who was known as just paw or pop or dad.

Our dad's are sometimes not always the halo celebrated member of the family like mother's are. Dad just don't have the babys and he just cannot compare with the woman of the house when it comes to the small talk that sometimes makes the family tick. Just the same dad in his way is a very big cog in a happy close knit family that takes its place in this world.

Father is the boss of the offsprings and his example and self-discipline sets the stage for the success of any member of a family.

Without the sweat of his brow and bringing in the bacon along with large decisions both at home and at work no family can exist and if it does the hand of a upright father is always sadly missed. Poor or rich as a king the example of a God loving father who practises what he preaches is the set example for his family to follow and the generations that follow.

We must forward our deepest appreciation of two wonderful complimentary letters forwarded to us about two recent articles that have appeared in these columns.

One from Mrs. E. J. Banwell, of Roseland, and one from Mrs. Tom (Cloe) Chittle, of Los Angeles, Cal. It is of course most gratifying to know that punching these keys has brought a bit of light into the darkness that at times we all experience.

In this old scribe business as an amateur we have also had the share of the barbed comments and the misinterpretation of articles. One pays his price and takes his choice in any field of just trying to make a better world. Like the old man who told the youth about girls, "Be like Jesus lad and love'em all". Thanks again for you who care to write and appreciate.

This week will also be the birthday of "Yankeeland" and the good old U. S. A. Fourth of July will see hundreds of Americans crossing the border into Canada in memory of their differences with Red Coats of England and the starting of so called democratic living in the Western hemisphere.

Although our American friends don't always fly Canadian flags as a matter of courtesy in U. S. land and they have a fit of heart seizure when you pass them a Canadian dollar or miss that almighty exchange we still like our border neighbours. Who else would we rather have on our borders than "Yanks" even if they tell tall stories like Texans or say "New Yoik" and a lieutenant is a lootenant and Canadians to them sometimes are rather dull.

Us would-be writers are not prone to write about ourselves, but after 21 years one has to look back at times and more or less take a little inventory. Even in those small few years the world has never stood still and changes come and go and we have countless blessings that can never be measured in dollar bills or a large bank account.

To top it off 21 years ago the past week the weather hit 94 degrees and here lately the weather was down in fifty marks and a furnace zipping on and off.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

Boxing day is over in Canada and everybody should by now be recuperating from the month long rush to find presents, preparing meals, decorating trees, homes and churches and settling down to a bottle of bicarbonate of soda and a box of aspirins to take off the sudden after effects of a bundle of nerves and loss of sleep.

On the other hand we have another weekend to go to get rid of the calendar year of 1967 and greet the new infant of 1968 and another new year to look forward to. Like all infants 1968 likely will be like most of us, it will after three hundred and sixty-five days wish it had stayed young and innocent instead of growing up and understanding the kick in the belly that a world can give it. Like all youngsters, 1968 will not heed father time's advise and will grow to understand by experience and from another years antics the worldly people will either go on to better things or fall by the wayside as some do.

In some respects it was a great year for Canada, as it celebrated its one hundred years as a nation, and the great Expo of Montreal brought thousands of people to these shores to see a nation they little understood around the world. In the same token like the rebel child we are at times, we still are not matured in growing up as the Quebec problem reared a problem head and instead of Canadians some of us still think of ourselves as a people of other nations and still live in the history books that need to be changed.

In this area and many parts of Southern Ontario the one hundred year 1967 will be one to be remembered and one to be forgotten just as fast. Our 1967 was a terror for the farming community in ways of weather and it let farmers down month after month not only price wise but in time, worry that will be carried forward in the new year and will leave a bad mark on many districts.

Like anything new its time to throw out the old and broken down ways and look forward to better ways of living and understanding one another and prepare for a happier more contented universe. Pope Paul the sixth of Rome, and a leader of Catholicism that spans much of the world, in his Christmas message saw the need for people not to dwell so much on the material things of life.

For some reason or other the old fashioned mirror has lost its lure for both men and women and the younger generations over the past year. Once upon a time everybody took a good look at themselves in the mirror and it would change a persons look, in not only dress, but in character, and it ended up in a prouder more respectable citizen. To-days youth forget to take a long good look at the untidy, upset specimens as many appear in the public of our domains.

There was a time that the hand that rocked the cradle was behind many a man in the world but in the same token we wonder if some of our future cradle rockers are not the ones upsetting that same old cradle that seems to upset the younger generations.

Not so very long ago a woman or girl forced the man to show pride in his dress and his daily work and outlook on life. for some reason or other the tabloids show that the young beautiful girl has let down on that aspect or she would refuse to even mix in society with some of our so called young men.

Oh well, it has been a great year and after twenty years of wedded life this year the breaker blew in the fuse box, the furnace blew up, the water pump had its day, the sump pump called quits on the wettest day of the year, the T.V. decided a year was a year and two more kittens were added to our already enough cats and it has been a great year. "HAPPY NEW YEAR TO MY MANY GOOD FRIENDS AND THOSE THAT LIKE TO TURN THE PAGE OVER".

Canada's 100th anniversary binge has more or less settled down, to back to the ranch and getting on with everyday living of eating, sleeping and getting up with the alarm clock to scrounge around for another work day to get shoes for the kids, feed for the cows and parts for the broken down jalopy.

Some of us who have seen fifty years or more of this wonderful nation's one hundred years have laughed with it, cried with it and almost died with it, can appreciate what it means to be a Canadian citizen. We have seen the height of prosperity, the moral beater of depression, the sadness of war and again the levelling off of prosperity again for the second time.

So much is made to-day in every magazine, press, radio and T.V. of "What is a Canadian" that it gets to be a bored, monotonous lot of "gook" dreamed up by writers who evidently have little to do and either just delight in blab or punch keys to put in time and expect the public to gobble it up in one gulp and enjoy it with our indigestion.

Canadians are just people, human beings but some of these big press agents want Canadians to be some kind of circus freak running around the world beating their chests and hollering, "Look I am a Canadian". Canadians will be recognized all over the world and no fan fare is needed even if at times they appear a little Americanized.

Granted that Canada has been the buffer nation for many years between United States, Great Britain and France and many other nations of Europe its people are still Canadian educated and he may speak a little French accent or have a River Canard and English slang, Scottish burr and Irish twang or some other European dialect or even oriental look but all the same he has a mark of the solid Canadian that will stand out any place he chooses to wander.

Our government census forms probably stall us in becoming Canadian citizens when it asks are you British, French, Dutch, etc., etc., lets just get rid of that line and ask us if we are Johnny Canucks and the correct answer will be given.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

Old Father Time has crept up on the past year of 1968 and in a few days we will add another new year of 1969 to the calendar. Old 1968 in some ways took a beating from the human race and no doubt he will be glad to retire to the place where ever retired years go to in the history of three hundred and sixty-five days of worldly living.

To some of us the old year went by with a swoosh of a fast moving vehicle and there just never seems enough hours in a day to do the things we want or would like to do. To others who suffer the hour glass, minutes, seconds, days, weeks and months drag by and time never stops.

In some other minds a year is a boring time for the simple reason they only live for one person, themselves, and they have no thought of others or what a life is supposed to be done with in the time allotted for a year. Most of these people of God's earth go through a lifetime forgetting to take stock, look in a mirror or ask themselves why am I here in the first place.

To brighten your day: The lady bachelor bought herself a parrot to brighten her lonely hours. The parrot's name was Billy, and he was a charming bird with but one small fault. Whenever the mild-mannered lady had company in, Billy used language he had picked up from his previous owner that was not to her liking.

The lady discussed this problem with her pastor, and after witnessing a particularly purple display, the good man suggested "Get him interested in another of his species, and he'll soon forget his sinful past. I, myself have a parrot. Her name is Bessie and she is an unusually devout bird. She prays constantly. Let me bring her with me the next time I call. We'll keep them together for a few days. I'm certain her religious character will reform him."

Thus, the next time the pastor called, he brought his parrot and the two birds were placed in a single cage. They spent the first couple of minutes hopping about and sizing each other up, then Billy spoke up,

"I go for you sweetie," he whispered. "How about you and me shacking up?"

"You betcha big boy," said Bessie. "Whatcha think I've been praying for?"

Dies Suddenly

Manson Jessop, aged 52 years, manager of Oldcastle Co-Op the past several years, died suddenly in his room at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Tuesday evening. He was attending a Seed and Grain Convention at the time.

"Mush", as he was familiarly known, by friends, was always sports-minded, being one of the better ball players to play in the County, both as a pitcher and outfielder.

He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jessop and is survived by his widow, nee Phyllis Thompson; a son, Gary and two grandchildren; also a brother, Marshall.

Resting at the Morris Funeral Home, Windsor, where a service will be held on Friday, at 1 p.m., thence to St. Stephen's Church for service at 1:30 p.m.

Burial will be in the Church Cemetery.

Dec. 4.70

During the past week the season of Lent has begun in many of the Christian churches in preparation for the celebration of the Easter Sunday that will celebrate the arising of Jesus Christ from the grave and his ascending into the heavenly home of the Creator.

Many of the old rigid Lenten practices have gone with the modern Christian religious but any confessed Christian must contemplate on the life of Christ and what bearing it has on humanity in to-day's complex living.

Modern man of to-day must have something to hold on to if life is to mean anything worth while. If one could stop for a few minutes and do some real thinking the teachings of Christ are just as modern as they were at the hour of his crucifixion.

Some of our younger generation and older as well try to face life and its trials and pitfalls by drowning in local tavern fire water or being hopped up with L.S.D. and a number of other drugs or even becoming a member of the Hippie clans. When the smoke clears away and fog has gone its still the same world with its people with weaknesses, good sides and bad sides and the same world that Adam and Eve spoiled by eating on a plain apple.

Christ's teachings are pure and simple to those who listen to the inner human being conscience that is the guide to what is fair and proper and the meaning of a lifetime with a purpose "to do unto others what you would have them do unto you." Some of our practice to-day is to belt the other guy first before he even has a chance in other words gyp him, get all you can and let the chips fall, who cares.

MAIDSTONE CROSS

The many friends and readers of his "High Lites" column in the Oldcastle District are remembering with sadness the date of June 12th, 1969, when Carson Jessop answered the last call, something we all must do and wanting his beloved wife Mary (nee Austin) and Carson's family to know we do not forget and we miss him and his column.

Jun. 12.70

Many of us drag through a year with only thoughts of our own self and little thought of others. Others have troubles and often more than our own but some of us have the selfish idea that the world is made just for our image. Some of us go through a year on one big binge getting into nothing but the worst kind of troubles that are strictly against organized society and its laws and we expect to become the most popular man on the street, which of course is the wrong end of the cow. We forget that the head is used for a much better purpose in thinking and acting accordingly for the betterment of our fellowman and the enrichment of our own life.

In the mood of high fun around the New Year's celebrations we are always resolved to turn over the page and come up with better dispositions, no cheating, no fits of temper and all the rest of the emotions that puts poison into one's life and those about. Many of us do not think seriously that we would keep the peace and all the things we claim to do in the middle of Auld Lang Syne in the wee hours of the morning.

New Year 1966 will have sorrows, happiness and pitfalls to avoid, the same as the years that commenced the Roman calendar. Yet if you are a student of history we have come a long ways in humanity and no one cares to go back to the early years of our first calendar inventors. Even back in those days there were men who believed in keeping resolutions and people who said what I am going to say right now — "HAPPY NEW YEAR IN 1966".

HAPPY NEW YEAR

Now that the holiday of Christmas is on into the start of a new 1966 we must not lose track of the happy and wonderful spirit that we found in the giving and receiving that was ours the past week.

Christian ways and teachings are not just something that are supposed to be worn for one week and then thrown to the winds and picked up at random, it is a way of life that should be forever.

Many of us will look at a new year as just another year added to our already too many and we feel like just not counting. It is the time for many of us to look back instead of forward. Regardless of the years gone on one can't go in reverse one must live with the present whether it be a new born babe or some of us so called over the hill humans.

In the great business world its the time to take stock and inventory of the stock and look over the profits. Many of us people like the business man should stop and meditate our past year's life. For instance we should look at the mirror if one could be inclined to look on the outside and not on the inside of one's character.

Like the artist the human being should be striving to become the perfect machine that God invented but because we have little quirks that come out of us we will never be like a machine. Human beings have what is known as a heart and if our heart has no feelings then we should all take a great inventory for 1966.

We received a letter this week from Mrs. James L. Coakley, of South Amboy, New Jersey. Mrs. Coakley is the former "Jerry" Halford of the Maidstone area. "Jerry" read of the instance of "Doc" Hannigan in the Free Press and forwarded two pictures taken after the famed Maidstone Shamrock-R. C. A. F. game. Believe you me she was not in favour of parting with those pictures as she said they left two vacant spots in her scrap book.

We returned the two pictures as two of the identical photos had also been forwarded almost a month ago by your scribbler.

It is hoped they returned safely and she shall have them for her memories of Maidstone and its baseball glory. Just the same it was a nice thought from a Maidstoner far from home.

Christmas is a wonderful season of good wishes and tidings. No doubt many of the local post office people wished it wasn't quite so friendly. On top of all the Christmas mail the Bell Telephone Co. decided to send out all their new telephone books at the same time by mail. Mostly the telephone books are sent out in the month of October but are later this year.

Post office people could be made happy if people address their cards correct and put the stamps on their cards at this time of year. It saves the heavily worked staffs to cope with Christmas mail. Mailing early also is of great aid to the Post office help.

Farming and its farmers got a break the past week from the weather. Very little rain has fallen only in small showers but the temperature still hovers in fifties with some frost in spots. Tractors are humming in most of the county and corn has been planted. Possibly the long wait for spring to finally arrive is upon us.

Coming of spring really shows up this Essex County and how thankful we as Canadians must be to have such a beautiful country to call home.

From Windsor to the borders of Essex County Mother Nature turns on its show in every farm and hamlet.

Most every retired man will chomp at the bit now to get at his tulips and roses. Flowers are blooming all over the place as you drive about the highways and rear roads. In this day and age when the retirement pension rolls around every man should have a little plot of ground to stick a shovel in.

Many a man loses interest in himself and life, with no interest to challenge a body and mind that is made to appreciate the wonders of nature.

We have seen men die at early sixties with no hobby or interest outside of the everyday job. When that job is done many a man withers because life has no interest left.

Just how can a man go through a lifetime without turning a God-given mind to the things about him.

Men will spend a lifetime behind a wooden desk, yet do not know how a blade of grass grows or how the bud on a flower forms.

In your own community there are thousands of things to be done and other interests that will keep a great mind at work.

If you don't go to church it's time you did. Every church has openings for men of action on youth organizations that are badly needed.

For instance there are kids' ball teams that need managers and kids that need guidance.

Your township has a council, maybe you could get yourself elected and start something worthwhile in your community.

You say you are tired after twenty or thirty years at a job. Man you will be a lot more tired out if you sit all day and worry about yourself and the world.

Lord Almighty made a human body as perfect as any machine and it is expected to do something as long as it is able to.

Show me the man who has fished, gardened, played ball, worked at church work and you will find a man who has lived life and enjoyed every inch of it.

Many of our senior citizens are not of the healthy type. To those there are some of the finest books to be read and an imagination to be stirred of far off places that most of us will never see.

Television today has become one of the finest medias of education and entertainment in our time. People without one of these little talking boxes today will miss a lot of life as it is around the world.

People all over the world love life and it behooves us to be so thankful to live in a country that provides us with so many of the good things of life.

When you suddenly go sour on life look about the world today and be so ever thankful that you live in the Western hemisphere. Only one thing remember to be free this hemisphere needs a lot more to be done to keep it that way.

Whether you be sixteen or seventy-six there is a place to do something to help your fellow man enjoy life to the fullest.

Band Concert

Essex and Kingsville Associated Boys' Band are presenting a concert in the Essex District High School at 8 o'clock this Sunday evening. This presentation will be in the interest of the retarded Children's School.

Highland dances by Little Scotland herself will be also presented to the public.

Little Scotland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Axcell, of Maidstone.

Admission will be 50c and children under 12 will be admitted free of charge.

During the past week, St. Valentines day would be celebrated and from truth and legend St. Valentine season was the time of the paring off and mating of the birds. From the result came the love version and the exchanging of good wishes of friends.

Believe you me, in the area, the weather man has not co-operated with this version of romance with the change about the back to sub zero temperatures and biting frosty winds. If there has been any mating of birds human or otherwise it has been in the confines of warm furnace heat and when one scans the fuel bills its some Valentine with hearts beating on another tune that forces some of our Valentines here to head South.

On the farm market fronts very little action has hepped up the farmer world. Corn still is holding at the $1.22 price and word is out that some corn is spoiling due to the damp weather that ensued at harvest time. On the soyabean market $2.66 per bus. had stalled for the past week. No market would be out Monday due to the Lincoln holiday in the U. S.

over the New Year holiday.

From reports of public cemeterys, the rate of deaths are on the increase and many of the passed on are younger people. Victoria Memorial Cemetery officials reported forty-six funerals in December their highest record of any year was around thirty some funerals in the past.

Sooner or later a serious investigation will have to be probed of why so many younger people are leaving this earth. No doubt one of our big problems is speed, people cannot go fast enough to keep up with the Medicine age.

Factorys belching smoke and gas and our cities and highways polluted with exhaust fumes we just don't breathe enough pure air. For every disease that science and medicine cures another breaks out. We do not live in a healthy atmosphere like the days of yore with hard work and rest, to-day we go faster with bodies that are not accustomed to real hard work.

Local folk in the hospital would likely appreciate your cheerful words: Malcolm Mac-tier, Mrs. Harry Reyner, Mrs. Fred Peck and Mrs. George Jessop.

We wish to thank the Anonymous writer of the "Farmer's Lament", that appeared in the Free Press pages last week.

We only hope that the "Anonymous" writer will only continue this kind of work that contains humour and fact combined, in this most modern way of putting words on paper.

We cannot express what readers always think but here is work we have not seen since the day of Eddy Guest. Only this writer "Anonymous" would put down the gripes and doings of the rural setting, so alive and real.

To visit a cemetery in some folks way of thinking is not always a pleasant one as the visit will bring back memory of lost ones departed.

In particular area cemeteries are some of the most beautiful well kept spots and a tribute to their caretakers. Green Lawn, Victoria Memorial, Heavenly Rest, St. Stephen's Church, are all cemeteries that add to the beauty of this community.

One can only feel from looks that departed ones are resting in a peaceful, beautiful home that God intended it to be.

One of our locals watched a group of sparrows busy chirping and pecking away happily the other day. "Funny" he said, "those birds get all they want to drink and eat and they don't seem to worry. I am convinced that the thing that makes man's world a worry, is money and things it buys. We have all the modern conveniences and make more money then we used to and yet nobody seems happy."

"Yep" it all leads back to a snake, a woman called Eve and a man called Adam, who flipped his biscuit when Eve wiggled her palm leaf and showed him a nice juicy apple and lost a garden called Eden.

Oldcastle is still on the map and your pen pusher is still alive much to the disgust of those who would rather turn the page. We just took off on a little tour to see how the other side of humanity exists.

When one travels only six hundred miles in about thirteen hours and end up at a place called Blind River then you begin to realize how big this country of Canada is.

Northern Ontario has its fishing, hunting, boating, rocks and black flies, and its low humidity. So all in all its a matter of where you live and what you become accustomed to.

Home is home no matter what kind of a shack you dwell in.

Southern Ontario is still a part tropical part of Canada, so you live with its heat, rain, humidity, lines of traffic and its busy almost Yankee speed of life.

One big difference when you decided to put a spade in the ground you don't have to move a ton of rock to do so.

Most crops have been seeded in this area the past two weeks and in many places corn is up. Light rain showers and hot weather so far has urged planted grain along.

June has its rare days but if you call rare the red colour of meat then there are some rare cases of sun burned citizens around our local Oldcastle.

Folk who ride tractors are burned to a crisp and sun burned lips are carried by all.

Hot weather has chased some to the beaches to see if they can fit into last year's bikini. Others have taken to the rod and reel and say they have marked the spot x for the bass season.

Some of the local golf folk also are burned by this sudden June sun that has broke forth.

On the grain front, corn prices have declined and the soyabeans are tapering down again.

Reports from the Ontario Wheat Board is that a price of $1.40 per bushel is being negotiated for the July crop.

One farmer claims "how can you store and handle a crop for 6c a bushel". "Nuts, I'll sell her from the combine."

By six cents he means what will be the graduated up price over the next few months.

Friday, Jun. 16. 61

In this modern fast moving world some of the old principals that there is a God at times is tossed out the window with anything else that is not modern thinking or is reality.

World wide it is a reality that some of our younger generation are confused on what is wrong and what is right and can be laid at the door step of some of our hep teacher and professors and even ministers of the gospel who refute God and the ten commandments. Some of the modern thinking and teaching has only led to a community of LSD little Hitlers, rabble rousers and Communist ideals. Belief in God, Jesus and just plain horse-sense has no part in books today.

Proof of the two teachings appeared in the press reports the past week of the defection of Svetiana Stalin to the United States from Communist Russia. Svetiana said, "I found it was impossible to exist without God in one's heart. I can to that conclusion myself without anybody's help or preaching."

Here was a member of the world's community of modern Communistic revolutionary teaching brought up in a land that has become Godless in much of its thinking. Here is one of her kind not brain-washed about God like some of our Western teaching that is supposed to be the last stand of freedom and free thinking. Some of our modern teachers need to look beyond the classroom windows and go out and look at the stars in the heavens some night and then come back and tell their students that their is a God in heaven and there are such things as ten commandments.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop
Merry Christmas

For one whole year of the Roman calendar the Christian world has gone about its daily every day duty and the climax of that Christian year now is upon us.

As children, the week before Christmas we were told that Santa Claus would bring no presents and that a big black mark would be against us if we did not behave. As a result most of us just behaved a little better than usual. Instead our little chores got done with little more cheerfulness and we acted a little more civil to our parents, brothers and sisters.

Throughout the Christian year the scholars and bookworms berate parents because children are not told more often the story of the birth of Jesus on Christmas Day.

True it is, children should be taught the story of Jesus but little minds do not often grasp the meaning of the birthday of the Christian Saint. But at the same time the story of the roly-polly kind Saint Nick or Santa Claus does mean a great deal. Santa Claus means the spirit of receiving and giving and general good will toward one another.

As life rolls along and we become more mature, gradually Santa Claus fades a little and the true story and spirit of Christmas comes to realization.

Some, at this time of year, it is said, by many, "For some reason or other I just can't get the spirit of Christmas".

That spirit is not how much bottled spirits one can consume or how lavish money is spent or how much a stomach can consume food.

Just look away from the glitter of lights and extra pay cheques and seek a bright place that is quiet in meditation at any Christian house of God, your own local Christian Church. Here is the true spirit of the Christian life in prayer and song and worship of the birth of Jesus who was sent by God on earth.

Humble birth in a stable by poor parents this Jesus was born. Not in a world of bright lights and lavish spending, yet from this humble beginning came the Christian religion that was to span much of the known world.

Many of our Christians are called luke-warm believers, the story of the Bible goes in one ear and out the other and yet does not register a serious thought. Most of the lukewarm people dwell in the material side of life from which comes no peace of mind, the thought of humble forgiveness, prayer, is far from their thoughts.

On the other hand the teachings of Jesus has left a mark on everyone who has been brought up in a Christian home.

Regardless of how far that body may leave the teachings in a year of drunkenness, pride, cheating and high living that body will be found in a Christian church at least one day of the year and that will be on Christmas Day.

On this Christmas of 1961 the world faces probably the biggest crisis of unrest in its history.

Here in the Western world and still the seat of freedom all races and religions must be free to carry out the teachings of Jesus whose birthday Christians celebrate.

Jesus teachings and the verses of the Bible have never accepted a challenge as it does today from outside ideologies.

Western people with their high standard of living and belief in God and Jesus are inclined to grow indifferent and lax in their belief that God is only with them.

Let us not forget on this Christmas that Christians and the people who live in that realm of peace and freedom must draw closer and allow that light to shine brighter than ever on this Christmas of 1961.

Let the birthday of Jesus be just as bright as the star that drew the shepherds to that stable so many years ago in a very Merry Christmas to all my readers far and near.

Now that the citizens have come off the Christmas and New Year binge of spending, being nice to one another and even religious for a few days we will get back to griping, cussing and throw all the resolutions and get into the new 1969 dog fight.

First we wish to thank our many friends and readers for the many gifts, kind words and many Yuletide greetings and make another resolution after the New Year to try and do better in the old Highlights for 1969.

Our new spanking baby believes it or not gave everybody a cold shoulder and a weather punishing to start its 1969 antics. Temperatures have hovered around the zero marks and to add insult the past few days this new delinquent has dumped some four inches of snow and made travelling very treacherous. So 1969 might be a new baby but in the weather vanes it has inherited some mean traits from as far back as its nature godparents can go. On we go and the battle of nature and man never stops even in a new year.

Most homes will be settling down to the old routine as the kids get back to school to argue who has the longest hair and the shortest dress. Once beautiful Christmas trees are out tossing in the wind or rubbish pile or up against the neighbors back fence and the newer types are packed away in the storage rooms. Old Fido is busy burying the turkey bones and the baby is howling because its new toys are busted and mom will be a nervous wreck for a week or two while pop sits examining his pocket book to see if he has enough to satisfy the income tax department.

Oh well, it still was a nice Christmas and a Happy New Year and we will just get on with it, take a go at it and live and let live for another year. God is in his heaven and all is right with the world and we shall take our lumps and jump over the back fence into a new snow bank and hope for the best.

On the grain fronts the New Year started out right with a five cent jump in the price of corn. Corn prices jumped from $1.12 to one dollar and seventeen cents for shelled corn and from $1.10 to one dollar and fifteen cents for cob corn. Soyabeans had again started a downward trend from $2.50 to around two dollar and forty-nine cents here Monday. Wheat would be up to $1.88 from the Wheat Board schedule.

One morning, last week, we let the family fox terrier out for a sniff of the morning air and to see how many posts he could count on one leg. "Pepper", had other ideas that distracted his morning toilet though. Smack in the back yard was a large orange-coloured, stray, tom-cat and the chase was on.

On a straight line, both tore into the old hen house and then both ended up spitting and yapping at one another and no action involved.

Tom figured this was enough, so he took off, for what we figured was places unknown and the terrier ran around in circles for no reason. We ended back for breakfast and considered the morning fun all over.

We travelled almost 3 miles to work, in the family car, on No. 3 highway, and suddenly near Oldcastle, we heard a decided thump under the old Chev and had no idea what it was. No cars were near, no pedestrians got in the way and yet the car had thumped some blasted thing.

Sure enough we looked in the rear-view mirror and there was the same cat rolling on the pavement. Old Tom spun like a top about three times, picked himself up and took off on all fours for better hunting grounds.

It is said a cat has nine lives and we believe it.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Christmas means many things to many people throughout the Christian world. Regardless of the commercial aspect of our Western world the same spirit of giving and the same spirit of happy times celebrates the event that happened those many years ago in the birth of Christ in the Holy Land.

Most of us youngsters thought of a red-faced, roly polly happy man called Santa Claus or St. Nicholas or other images that spelled out fun and gifts and the life of Christ was just something to learn at the next Sunday School session or when the man of God in the pulpit spoke to the people at church.

Christmas was the day to visit grannie and gramps at the old, big, white farm house on Howard Ave. and see the big giant of a Christmas tree lit with real live candles. One sat by the pot-bellied stove that glowed in the front room and waited for Santa Claus to dole out the gifts to big and little alike. Santa would laugh and pat our heads and with big ho, ho laughs talk to us, pat our heads some more and then dig around for your gift on or under the tree. One year Santa's beard caught fire on one of the lighted candles and that almost was a calamity to all.

Youngsters grow to young men and women and the meaning of Christmas takes on a different meaning to a true Christian living person. Toys and turkey and all the other glittering symbols of Christmas time we find is just a small part of the real meaning of December 25th.

Jesus was the redeemer to redeem the slaved people of that part of the East from the intolerable life of injustice that had been thrown upon them from the beginning of slavery as told in the old testament. This same humble Jesus later became the teacher whose teachings spread like a forest fire throughout the world that is now known as the Christian world.

If the people of the Christian world could have followed his teachings of the word of God and love of his fellowman the known world of Christianity could have been the most wonderful Garden of Eden to live in. Human beings, weak as many of us are, maintained the original sins of Adam and Eve and could not follow the simple teachings of this teacher and thus down through history the Christian world has yet to become the garden of beauty that it could be.

With all its failings Christianity is still an enlightened way of life and the lovers of Jesus and his God in heaven will still have faith of prayer that will give life a meaning on his happy Christmas of 1965.

May your Christmas be a happy one and may the spirit that was born of Jesus so many years ago still be with you and yours.

To Mothers

Sunday will be a day for many families to gather and play host to the Mothers all over the world. Some of us will not be able to whisper "Hi" Mom but will be only able to say a prayer that our Moms are happy in God's home.

Home without just mom is a vacant place and that familiar face that washes the clothes, mends the torn pants, stems the tears or scolds, bakes, scrubs and comforts our ills or rocked our cradle is now a memory of life.

Mother of the modern day age we believe have a job that demands even more than the mom of forty or even fifty years ago. To-day's jet-age of family life is stepped up and the modern family can be far flung across a nation as it grows and matures.

Canada and the Western world is no more largely agricultural but on the contrary developing more and more to the suburban, urban and metropolitan faze of living. On this faze of living the family of closeness has gave way to a different growing family that gets away from the old time family that prayed and stayed together.

Mothers of to-day are the truck driver, bus driver, bookkeeper, nurse, doctor and jack of all trade raising a family in a world that sometimes confuses the best of level heads.

Lets pay tribute to this beehive of the home whether she be graying and wrinkled or thinking of a mini skirt, without that Mother who plays the leading role of a home, without a mother there could be no Adam or Eve. God bless 'em all.

Happy New Year

By now most of us are recuperating from the spirit of Christmas and yet looking forward to a new 1959. Probably of all the celebrating of the new year most loved is the celebrating of the French and Scottish people for they love the kissing of one another and that is a tradition that is not hard to celebrate. Our Chinese people believe in cleaning up their debts and wiping old debts off the books for a new year.

Some think that the new year is just another day of the calendar and they continue to do the wrongs they have continued to do all their miserable lives. New Year's is the beginning of something new just as it means. Clean the slate off, start fresh and strive for something better that is what a new year is for.

For business people the new year is the taking of inventory and stock and balance one against the other to find just profits. No doubt most of us could take a little inventory of our own lives and see how 1958 did by us. Without a doubt we will find that we can improve our lot as well as those around us.

Possibly we will make the same mistakes as in 1958 but a little inventory will remind us that there were pitfalls that can be avoided in 1959.

Out of 1958 came the most extensive try at space travel that man has wondered at since the advance of time. Will space travel improve our lot on earth or will it be our destruction? Man is never satisfied and in many ways his impatience with nature has improved his lot on earth and at times it has destroyed all the good he has done.

In the new year of 1959 it will be most interesting to observe earth people at work and at play. Some will live to help his fellow man, others to destroy and the continued battle of life will go on. Could man forget his love of power for himself in unselfish deeds and think of others then earth could be a paradise to live in.

Regardless of how bad your plight was in 1958 have hope and courage and pray a little more in this new 1959 and "Oldcastle Highlights" will be right along with you wishing you a

It seems South Windsorites are growling about the stench of their prize garbage dump. Here in Sandwich South and parts of Sandwich West it seems the local drainage ditches are becoming open dumps for all sorts of refuse from tin cans to God knows what all.

From a recent report city garbage collectors refuse to pick up certain types of garbage. We wonder if the city dweller finds the outlying ditches a better place to dump his garbage and at the same time scream murder on the subject of water pollution in the Detroit River or the Great Lakes.

Many of our suburban movers find the open ditch a great hazard to yelp and scream about. It really seems funny to the farm community livers whose youngsters found the roadside ditch their playground for years and yet they seen very little danger in a ditch full of water. On the weather front here, things have calmed down to some peaceful winter living after gusty winds that found holes in ones underwear and snow that blew around to slow up hell for leather people. Temperatures hovered around the zero marks and below and kept the home thermostats jumping up and down in search for more fuel to keep the wind outside where it was supposed to be but was often found playing high opera in window cracks and soon in some of our old time farm homes.

Very little has happened on the grain fronts due to the rough weather. Beans did get back to around $2.51 and from reports the little tap on the wrist on the recent U. S. corn has now been polished off again.

Many of the farm community lads have hit for the city lights and paved street jungles for winter work, some for just some thing to do over winter months and some to just be able to pay the present taxes and the ones that are promised in the future.

It is getting to be about the time of year when the birthday of the man who chased the snakes out of Ireland will be celebrated. Irish people will celebrate the day of good St. Patrick on March 17th. Clay pipes will be displayed and the green shamrock will be worn by a smiling-eyed people that often melts the character of the worst crank.

Some say the good Saint chased the snakes out of the land but what he is most noted for is his explanation of the Holy Trinity to a heathen land in his time God was three persons in one, from the Shamrock leaves, God was three divine persons, Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

Erin Go Brah and those of that race that have graced many a land.

In Christian churches the season of Lent is upon its people and the mourning period of its greatest benefactor Jesus Christ will be celebrated in churches throughout the lands of many nations of the world.

Lenten restrictions having been eased to what they were a few years ago, many a human is included to let down in this busy hurry up world and prayer and moments of meditation of what Christ stood for are passed by.

Many church pews will be empty and a man of the cloth will often wonder if the human being is a human being or just another animal that runs on the face of the earth. Pastors of many churches will tell the story of the Son of God who was man's greatest friend in his short time on earth. Pastor's will wonder what causes a human being to turn away from a friend who laid His life down for the highest ideals and a way of life that could have been a second Eden.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

For some reason or other your old Highlighter at this time of the year pushes aside the regular items of his Highlights for no other reason then to dwell upon the reason for all this rushing around for presents, good wishes and good tidings and a spirit of humans that is never seen at any other time of the year.

Some of us so called high spirited kids in our younger days walked on glass for a month before Christmas day just to be sure that the rolly polly Santa Claus would look over our behaviour and not have a black mark chalked up on our side of the ledger. Fond memories look back at a younger brother who shushed everybody up because the wind whistling around the house reminded him that old Santa was on his way with his deer, Rudolph and all and a cloud across the moon was the St. Nick himself. We kids, who a week before, had probably snapped and argued and drove the folks nuts now suddenly became lambs and laughed and played in harmony just because of a spirit that is called Christmas.

In the days before the birth of Christ the Jewish people under the yoke of the Roman governors probably resembled the unruly child. Jewish people were divided even among themselves in many respects because of the conquerors who divided them and as long as that could be done the Jewish power could be sent to the four winds. On the other hand the Jewish people had a faith that a Redeemer would come and that undying faith is one of the reasons that Christianity exists and the feeling of Christmas that comes into ones soul.

There is a difference to-day in that belief of Jesus, Christians believe that Jesus has come and the Jewish outlook is that a Redeemer is still to come. There is many differences in these two theories of strong belief, yet the two combine to build the Western world that leads the world in the highest standard of living and away of life that is compatible to many races, creeds and colours.

In this day and age of the Atom scare, hippie movement and solar exploration the man on the street often wonders where it all will lead to and if our generation will fall by the wayside and be consumed by a world of fools and despots. Many men to-day challenge the word of Christ and his wonderful teachings and the religion of the Western world must come face to face with the reality that down through history man has misconstrued so many of Christs words that to-day generations are rising and want the answer corrected that they can live as friends and neighbors without any hidden taboos of race or colour.

Right in this era the Western worlds rate of crime exceeds that of any other part of the world and yet we seek to go forth to teach other people of how right we are. Down through our history leaders of our Christian heritage have failed to grasp the teaching of Jesus and have only left a younger generation to pick up the pieces and grope for the answer that will spell out, "Peace on earth good will among men."

Here in this district of Ontario and other parts of the province different faiths have felt one another out in their differences of beliefs and it has been heart warming in some of the results that brings about a better understanding among people who brush shoulder to shoulder in many walks of life. We must look about us and see the suffering, the despotic rulers and the unjust of the common man in many countries, then compare the plenty and the rights of man in the continent of North America. We still must bear in mind that we still, regardless of our faults, hold the word of God and the teachings of the new born babe Jesus to be a strong faith held high.

Few days remain until the bells will toll the birth of the man who was to become the spirit of Christmas. Let us remember him as well as all the goodies that come with that spirit and may you enjoy the MERRIEST CHRISTMAS EVER.

Here in Essex County this area is known as the Sun Parlor of Canada and sometimes the Banana Belt, but the past few weeks the weather has been a much talked about subject because there are few bananas in bloom and the weather has changed off and on like the whims of a June bride to be. From downpours of rain and sleet, fog that would have a Londoner from over 'ome feel at home and high temperatures that broke the records, returned to snow and winds. One is either acting like a poor drunk wondering which end will fall first or trying to see through fog like a sight through a milk stained glass.

Many of our men of the clergy in their sermons point out that a human mortal is born to die and we should be constantly pre paring for the happy hunting grounds. It seems to me that many of our highway drivers are over zealous about dieing and we wonder if they have done any praying of late. One can witness hundreds of drivers driving without any lights in the heaviest of fogs. It sure must be great to have that feeling of going to meet one's Maker behind a steering wheel with so much confidence that one is saved and accidents only happen to the other nut who drives with his lights on. Oh well, the insurance rates will only jump up in this inflated world and whats one more accident or more and the obit columns always have lots and lots of extra space.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

Life seems at times a series of frustrations and as the late General Eisenhower claimed in the greatest decisions of the late Great War, "It was the little things that bothered him the most". We are finding that illness can be a frustrating part of life and yet it has its compensations in allowing a person to stop and think and to take stock and see the pattern of God's workings set out for the human being on earth.

For instance man is not the only part of life that has its frustrations, we watched the old home cat try to take a snooze in the crotch of a tree at home and found that Minnie had her troubles as well. Three sparrows spotted Minnie and they perched themselves on a branch just out of the reach of her paws and chirped and yapped at the old cat until she became disgusted, stretched, yawned and climbed out of the tree to find more pleasant surroundings. On the other hand we also watched a bumble bee flitting about on blooms only to find other bees had robbed it of the nectar and it had to buzz angrily on to other blooms.

There is a difference between our wild life and we humans though, our wild friends can just take off from their frustrations but we miserable ones must stay and fight them out. We can snarl like the bee or move on like the cat but our frustrations are not that easy to cope with and it seems at times the wild life appreciate the Good Lord's surroundings far more than we do.

We who have worked with the many words of the English language for so many years find we are unable to find enough words to say thanks to the many friends of this old blabber in his recent grounding due to illness over the past few weeks. We have received hundreds of cards and lovely gifts and hospital visits that encourages the lowest down of mortals to get on the ball, get with it and find out that life is still worth all the kicking about that it does hand out at times. We again say from the bottom of the heart to all a most deeply appreciated thanks of things that money or a hundred dollar signs cannot buy in terms of true friendship shown to a most flattered old Highlighter.

On the grain markets locally corn had moved up to $1.25 for top grade shelled corn and $1.23 for eared corn. Soyabeans moved to $2.58, oats was at 60c and wheat on the Ontario Board price would be down to $1.85.

Windsor's recent University expansion is not meeting with the approval of the public. From the outlook the public is getting sore at the giving and no responsible appreciation from the younger generation as good money has gone down the drain in destruction of property in many U. S. and Canadian communities. Hundreds of youthful people who are serious about study and taking their place in the swim of this society will also be robbed of studies they may have to find at other universities.

Young people have a good side and if more of it was shown like the recent capturing of thieves at a break-in of the Norman Nantais home in Sandwich West recently, youth could be looked at for leadership.

Three local neighbor lads of the Nantais family caught armed thieves breaking into the Nantais home and were responsible in police capture. Here we must compliment these young men in helping the law at their own risk and showing the leadership and respect for the law that is lacking in many a home to-day.

New England Trip Follows Cottam Rites

COTTAM — Mr. and Mrs. Gary Peter Jessop are on a trip to the New England States following their wedding in Cottam United Church with Rev. A. F. Thrower officiating.

The bride is the former Margaret Rose Chambers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Chambers of Cottam. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Manson Jessop of Oldcastle.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length grosgrain silk gown featuring a bouffant skirt, a scooped neckline and two large matching fabric roses at the waistline. A fabric rose also formed the bride's headpiece, which held a three-tiered illusion veil. The bride wore a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Kathy Quick the bride's sister, was matron of honor. Betty and Carol Chambers, other sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Wayne Jessop was best man. Jim Ellis and Dick Gibb were ushers.

A reception was held in the Poplar Inn, Cottam.

For travelling the bride chose a navy dress and hat, a coral coat and a white orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessop will reside in the Beverly Apartments, Leamington.

NURSE TO WED — Mr. and Mrs. William Chambers of Cottam announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Rose Mary, to Gary Peter Jessop, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manson Jessop of North Talbot Rd. The wedding will take place on Saturday, May 26, at 7 p.m., in Cottam United Church. The bride-elect is a graduate of Women's College Hospital, School of Nursing, in Toronto.

Neal Jessop, 42, knows well the uneasiness such threats can bring. There was a time in the detective's career when his family required constant protection.

Because of his involvement in a murder investigation during the 1970s, someone threatened to bomb Jessop's home. "And a few of them would enjoy it," he says.

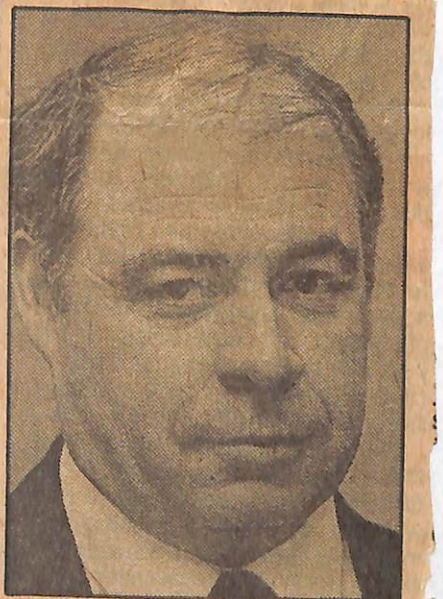

IT DIDN'T happen, but Jessop, who is president of the Ontario Police Association, has not forgotten how he felt while his family was held hostage in their own home.

"The way you feel is that they can try to do anything they want to me because that's what I do for a living. But when they start threatening to come home to your house, that's just outside the bounds of the game.

"We don't do it when we're talking to the other side. When we go and arrest some guy we don't say to him 'we're going to go back and harass your family.'

"No policeman that I've ever met would even contemplate such a thing. But there's no rules for the other side."

Almost as difficult to handle are the disruptions the family faces.

Windsor police plan ratification meeting Friday

A contract showdown between city police officers and the Windsor Police Commission has been averted.

The Windsor Police Association and the city's police commission reached a tentative contract Monday afternoon.

Association president Neil Jessop said he will recommend the one-year contract to the 345 members in a ratification meeting Friday, 7:30 p.m., at the Cabota Club.

The new pact emerged from bargaining Monday but no details were released, pending ratification.

"It was a lot of work," said Jessop. "It was the toughest bargaining I've ever experienced since I've been in the association ... and the longest."

THE AGREEMENT comes after the two parties seemed locked in a bitter impasse a month ago.

The association had threatened to go to arbitration after it rejected a police commission offer the association described as an eight-per-cent pay increase.

The association had demanded a 10.4-per-cent wage hike and other benefits.

"It is a kind of unique package," was all Jessop would say about the tentative agreement.

Police commission bargainers had resisted a move to arbitration, fearing a tribunal would order an increase that city taxpayers could not afford.

Mayor Bert Weeks, one of the three police commissioner bargainers, rejected the charge. He said Windsor police pay had gone up 244 per cent in the last decade.

AS POSITIONS hardened, police and the commission had traded angry charges. Jessop said the police commission damaged employee morale with a threat to appeal in arbitrated settlement outside the city guidelines.

"Just because other Ontario cities have capitulated to police association demands or arbitration awards is no justification for Windsor to submit without opposition," Weeks said.

Jessop said the arbitration route was the best bargaining system available to police.

"We don't have the right to strike nor do we believe in a right to strike," he said. "We believe the system we have works."

The contract will be retroactive to Dec. 31.

Police wage dispute to go to conciliation

By Ted Shaw
Star Staff Reporter

The stalled talks between Windsor's Police Commission and the police association are going to conciliation in an attempt to resolve differences over wage demands in a new contract.

Commission Chairman Judge Joseph P. McMahon said Friday the conciliation talks will start Feb. 24.

Judge McMahon, in the commission's sharpest criticism so far of the wage demands, criticized the police association for ignoring an economic depression in the city and demanding unrealistic wage increases in recent contract negotiations.

Judge McMahon said the requested increase could put an added $2.5-million burden on taxpayers by January, 1982.

He also said this year's police budget will have to be scrutinized "with a very sharp pencil."

Judge McMahon also said, at the commission's monthly meeting, wage parity with other provincial forces is not a realistic goal for city policemen.

The police association in a Jan. 26 general meeting decided to seek provincial arbitration in the dispute. The commission followed with an application for conciliation.

"IT IS THE VIEW of this commission that any offer must realistically take into consideration the ravaging effects of inflation," Judge McMahon said.

"The Windsor Police Association should not be forced to accept a decrease in real wages like Chrysler. But that is a long way from saying the commission should be paying the association members a substantial increase."

Negotiations came to an abrupt halt Jan. 20 during a bargaining session at the National Travellers Motel. At that meeting, both sides agreed to end negotiations because they were too far apart.

NEAL JESSOP, association president, said after the January meeting wage parity with police forces in Toronto and the Regional Municipalities of Peel and Hamilton-Wentworth is behind the the association's demands.

Jessop re-iterated that claim Friday night, adding there is even more reason to hold out for parity after receiving word of a Thursday settlement in the Regional Municipality of Halton that was exactly the same as the one reached in December in Peel.

"We just think if we're going to be expected to do the job in the fashion we've always done," Jessop said, "then we expect to be paid as well as policemen in other areas where the crime situation is not as difficult as ours."

The association is believed to be asking for a 13-per-cent wage hike over two years while the commission has offered about seven per cent.

Judge McMahon said Windsor's economic climate is vastly different than Hamilton or Toronto.

"Toronto and Hamilton have something like a three-per-cent unemployment rate," he said. "Windsor is looking at 16.5 per cent."

Statistics Canada released figures Friday indicating that figure now is above 18 per cent.

THE FATE OF Chrysler Canada Ltd. also is in the balance and the automaker's demise could leave Windsor in a financial bind, Judge McMahon said.

"Faced with these realities, you can't attempt to achieve parity."

But Jessop did not accept Judge McMahon's arguments.

"In the past, they (the commission) have always compared us to other policemen, not to auto workers," he said. "We feel this is an emergency service and our people are doing an exceptional job."

Noose no deterrent: police leader

Neal Jessop, president of the Windsor' Police Association and chairman of the Police Association of Ontario, said he has serious doubts that a return to capital punishment would pose an effective deterrent to murder in Canada.

"My experience tells me that criminals do not plan murders with the thought that they could get caught and executed," Jessop, a city police detective, said at a meeting of the Windsor Police Commission Tuesday.

"In most cases the murder wasn't planned," he said. "Something went out of control."

Jessop told the commission he supports capital punishment as an option for judges to use in "very, very limited" first-degree murder cases in the killing of police officers or civilians where the courts "cannot (otherwise) do justice to certain individuals.

BUT HE SAID he has "great doubt" whether the return to capital punishment would mean a drop in the murder rate in Canada.

Jessop said the Police Association of Ontario, angered by the recent rash of police killings in Canada, has urged the federal government to have "a public referendum on capital punishment and abide by the wishes of the citizens."

He said the renewed debate on capital punishment is borne of frustration among police officers and the public, who see the justice system as being ineffective in dealing with a rising tide of violent crime in Canada.

"If we were to bring the justice system into line and give the results it should give to victims and their families, I think the frustration would go away."

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT was abolished by parliament in 1976 after a free vote in the House of Commons.

Canadian Centre for Justice statistics show a 13.7-per-cent increase in the number of homicide offences from 1974 to 1983. Canada's last executions were in 1962, when two men were hanged at Toronto's Don Jail.

Jessop said although some statistics show the murder rate has doubled since then, "who can say that it wouldn't have doubled if we had executions?"

He said he supports capital punishment for contract killers or serial killers who plan the crime. "It might be a deterrent in those limited cases," Jessop told reporters following the meeting.

"I don't think my opinion differs greatly from any experienced investigator," Jessop said.

First-class policemen's pay hiked to $33,020

Windsor police officers took only 20 minutes to approve Thursday two wage increases totalling 5.5 per cent over one year.

Nearly 200 officers turned out to vote overwhelmingly in favor of the 1984 pact.

The raise brings the salary of a first class constable to $33,020.88, according to Windsor Police Association president Neal Jessop.

The city's 347 police officers have been without a contract since Jan. 1. The association must still negotiate a new pact for the 75 civilian employees of the department.

Talks are expected to resume next month.

Jessop said the new contract includes a five-per-cent raise retroactive to Jan. 1 and an additional one-half of one per cent retroactive to July 1.

He said he is "very pleased" with the contract, which keeps wages for Windsor police officers fourth highest in the province, behind Toronto, Ottawa and London.

"We think that's a reasonable area for us to be in," Jessop said, adding that the Windsor department is one of the most respected in Ontario.

The new contract includes improvements in police officers' life insurance and dental care. Included is an eye-glass plan.

Jessop elected president

Det. Neal Jessop has been elected president of the Windsor Police Association (WPA), defeating incumbent Sgt. Ron Thompson and challengers Const. Rick Houston and Det. Jim Wirrell.

Jessop, 40, inherits contract talks which have been going on since January with the Windsor Police Commission.

The 420-member association, which represents 345 police officers and 75 civilian employees, has been without a contract since the end of last year.

Jessop said 325 members turned out for Thursday's vote.

Jessop, a 15-year veteran of the force, said the association bargaining committee and the commission are apart on "wages, pensions and benefits," but declined to specify differences.

He said "excellent settlements" reached by police in other cities "will influence our advice to the membership."

HE DESCRIBED those settlements as including annual wage increases between 5.5 and 6.5 per cent.

Jessop was president of the association from 1979 to 1983 when he was defeated by Thompson for the top spot.

Jessop is also chairman of the board for the 17,000-member Police Association of Ontario, a position which he hopes to retain when the Ontario body meets for elections in Toronto in August.

He said the association plans to support a court battle against provisions of the Police Act which would "impose restrictions on (contract) bargaining" for police officers.

Those provisions, expected to come into effect in the fall, would require provincial arbitrators to consider government fiscal restraints and local spending in a contract dispute between police associations and government, Jessop said.

THAT WOULD tie the arbitrator to provincial policy and deprive police, who are not allowed to strike, of a "fair" settlement.

The Police Association of Ontario also plans to challenge, under the charter of rights, changes in policy that would impose suspension without pay for police officers facing criminal proceedings "without benefit of a judicial trial."

Elected to the association's board of directors: Det. Murray Sinnott, Const. Michael Kelly, Det. Ed McNorton and Const. John Moor.

Constables Harry DeJong and James Patterson, who tied for the final spot in the voting, will face each other in a run-off vote to decide the fifth seat on the board.

Appointed to the executive were association secretary Const. Ray Sanders and treasurer Insp. William (Scotty) Laughland.

Police seeking parity

The Windsor Police Association, asking for a cost-of-living allowance and other benefits equal to recently-approved local UAW pacts, opened negotiations with the city's police commission today.

Det. Neal Jessop, president of the association, said that since police officers have to pay the same prices as UAW members, they should have similar contracts.

JUN. 8. 80 Star

ACE is an old sports moniker given those who perform with expertise and excellence.

And when given to someone like Ron Thompson, it also conjures up images of a bulky, red-faced man, with a close-cropped crewcut, the heart of a lion and a mind like a steel trap.

Thompson, Windsor Police Association president, was given that tag in the mid 1960s by Fred Brannagan, a recently retired inspector.

"I don't know why he called me that," Thompson says with a chuckle. But Brannagan remembers.

"He was a good hockey player and softball player," Brannagan says. And Thompson has always had what it takes to be a leader.

"IN ALL MY years in the police department, he was the greatest organizer of anything I've ever seen — whether it was police work or an association function."

Presumably, it was this ability that helped Thompson defeat popular incumbent Neal Jessop in an election last June.

Assuming presidency of the 400-plus member association is nothing new to the 50-year-old traffic sergeant. It'll be his sixth one-year term since 1962.

But Thompson won't be resting on his laurels.

"I know things have changed," he says. "It's a different administration. It's a different society. It's a different department of men (and women) and their personalities and grievances and complaints and outlooks are all different."

SEATED AT THE head of a long table inside police headquarters, Thompson willingly compares today's policeman to the one who directed traffic at London (now University) and Ouellette avenues during rush hour in the 1950s.

"I think the young man on the job today is a lot smarter," he says. "He learns quicker."

The only flaw in the makeup of today's policeman is his attitude toward discipline.

"He's a why-type person... he finds great difficulty in accepting any type of directive. I don't say I greeted discipline with open arms. I didn't. But I knew what it was about.

"YOU'VE GOT TO have consistent, fair discipline (or) your department will eventually break down... you can't have a force this big running in different directions."

This is one issue Thompson would like to tackle as president, but there are several others he considers more important.

Payment of legal fees for on-duty officers charged with criminal offences — also a high-priority with past presidents — is one of them.

Legal fees incurred when a citizen charges an on-duty officer with a criminal offence are paid by the Windsor Police Commission, but those incurred when an on-duty officer is charged by police are the officer's responsibility.

THOMPSON SAYS the topic is a "sore spot" with the association because of a 1979 incident involving a 23-year-old Windsor officer charged

The officer, who had a .44 calibre handgun in his car at the time, was in plain clothes when he attempted to stop a car being driven erratically. In his defence the officer said he "felt it was my responsibility as a police officer to get involved."

He was convicted for two weapons offences. Other charges were dismissed.

There are two key issues in situations like this, Thompson says.

"Is he on duty? And has he been found not guilty by the courts? If those two things can be established then (the commission) should pick up the responsibility.

"IF OUR OFFICERS are found guilty and they're fined, that's the officers' responsibility.

But if the commission doesn't provide more support, Thompson says, "they're (officers) going to be very reluctant to get involved in things and they're going to be turning their backs on things. And I don't think that's what our commission, or any commission, wants.

"If (an officer) is on-duty, he is representing this community. He is doing what he is supposed to be doing — acting as a policeman."

Is Thompson ever off-duty?

"I REALLY DON'T think it ever happens," he says, "and I'm sure that 80 per cent of our department is the same. That's the job. It gets into you like a cancer."

Thompson, married with four sons, says he sometimes finds himself comparing faces on the street with those on the most-wanted list. This kind of dedication led to the highlight of his career — the 1969 arrest of a 23-year-old man who murdered two Michigan men near Ottawa.

While investigating an armed robbery as a member of the department's criminal investigation division, Thompson and fellow officer, Ian Chippett, were led to a nearby basement where they found David Edward Dwyer hiding with a loaded sawed-off .22-calibre rifle.

WORKING WITH partner Al Marko, Thompson matched Dwyer to a description on a wanted bulletin originating from Carp, Ontario.

Dwyer, who is small in stature, confessed to shooting the men because they were taller than he.

"I was actually frightened afterwards," Thompson says of the arrest. "He told me, 'I just hate big people. I'd have dropped you... but I'm not hanging for any policeman.'"

Ironically, Thompson says he was almost denied a job as a police officer because he was too short. But his hairstyle made the difference because it added to his height.

About the only place Thompson doesn't think about police work is in the bowling alley.

AND HE WON'T hesitate to show you a ring he wears inscribed with the number 299. It was given to him after he rolled a near perfect game.

His attitude and tone of voice indicate he strives for perfection, both as a police officer and police association president. The reason, he says, is simple: "This police department has always been one of the best police departments in the province — and I want to make sure it stays that way."

Constable William Pheby is recovering at Metropolitan Hospital

Man dies, policemen hit in shootout

(See also Page 3)

By HARRY VAN VUGT
and GORD HENDERSON

One man is dead while two Windsor police constables are in Metropolitan Hospital after a shootout in the 600 block of Edinborough Street Friday night.

Police said the dead man, Daniel Horvath, 21, originally from the Tecumseh area but recently of no fixed address, had earlier hit a cab driver over the head and had stolen his cab in Sandwich South Township.

Constable William Ernest Glen, 30, is in intensive care in fair condition after sustaining a shotgun wound to the abdomen, apparently from a distance of only four or five feet.

He underwent surgery after being admitted to hospital.

His partner, 31-year-old Constable William Pheby, is in satisfactory condition with a gunshot wound to the left hand.

Constable Pheby was still in extreme pain this morning although he was sitting up in his bed at Metropolitan Hospital.

A massive bandage covered his left hand and arm, which he said were "ripped up" by the shotgun blast.

The left side of his face was bruised by shotgun pellets which "brushed" past him.

Constable Pheby said he was driving the cruiser and Constable Glen was beside him when they spotted the stolen cab at Eugenie Street and McDougall Avenue.

"He had been going north on McDougall and then he turned right on Eugenie Street . . . then he spotted us and began to run (speed)."

Constable Pheby said the chase through Remington Park was at speeds of 60 to 70 m.p.h. and he couldn't remember all the streets.

"He was stopping and making turns trying to lose us but we

CONSTABLE GLEN

Man killed

wound up on Edinborough with him only 20 or 30 feet ahead."

Constable Pheby said the taxi suddenly pulled to a stop and the driver "baled out on the driver's side.

"We got out with our guns in our hands and my partner yelled 'freeze' but he just opened up.

"The first blast caught me in the arm and across the side of the head—I went down," said Constable Pheby.

He thinks a second shotgun blast was fired at that time.

His partner then chased the gunman behind 640 Edinborough St. and shots followed.

Constable Pheby found his service revolver which had been shot from his left hand and ran up the driveway where he met Constable Glen, "stumbling out of the backyard holding his guts."

He thinks a total of three or four shotgun blasts and three or four revolver shots were fired in the incident.

Constable Pheby believes one shot was fired at the taxi by Constable Glen during the cruiser chase.

"I was very lucky," said Constable Pheby, touching the bruise on the side of his face.

He thinks he'll be sent home from hospital Sunday to continue his recovery there.

Constable Pheby said this is the first time he's been shot at.

He has a wife and daughter at home. Constable Glen and his wife have no children.

A post-mortem on the dead man, who apparently died instantly after being shot by Constable Glen, was held this morning at Grace Hospital.

The dead man was apparently shot behind 640 Edinborough St. after he had wounded the two policemen.

Windsor Police Chief Gordon Preston said the dead man was a suspect in a Thursday night holdup of the Mac's Milk Store, 13325 Riverside Dr. E. in St. Clair Beach.

Two men, one of whom was armed with what appeared to be a sawed-off rifle or shotgun, robbed the store of $80 to $100 and then forced a customer to drive them from the scene.

Moments after the shooting Friday night police took into custody a man living at 640 Edinborough St. and said they were questioning him in connection with the Thursday night holdup.

Police said he had nothing to do with the shootout.

Officers also removed a .20-gauge, single-barrel, sawed-off shotgun from near the body.

The chain of events which led to the shooting apparently began at the Welcome Traveller's Motel, 1830 Division Rd., where Veteran Cab Co. driver Raymond Joseph Lavallee, 2525 Dougall Ave., picked up a man who had apparently registered in the afternoon.

At Base Line and 12 Concession of Sandwich South Township, police said, the man struck Mr. Lavallee on the head and robbed him.

Mr. Lavallee's attacker then drove off with the cab.

The cab driver went to a nearby residence and alerted the Essex Ontario Provincial Police detachment.

Mr. Lavallee's cut required 12 stitches to close but he did not have to stay in hospital.

The stolen cab apparently headed into Windsor via Howard Avenue where it was observed by Constables Pheby and Glen, on cruiser patrol, and they gave chase.

The chase continued through Remington Park with some of the streets involved including Eugenie, Capitol, Stanley, and finally Edinborough.

Constable Pheby was shot as the two policemen jumped from their cruiser, with the man they were pursuing running from the stolen cab.

Constable Glen gave chase and there was apparently a shotgun blast, followed by scream, followed by several shots, leading police to believe the suspect shot first.

Constable Glen staggered out to the street and Constable Pheby called for help over the police radio, with Constables Neil Jessop and Mike Smith the next officers to arrive.

The dead man was reported shot once over the right eye by a slug from a .38-calibre police revolver.

Two Windsor Provincial ambulances were called to the scene but the two constables, who are married and who both joined the force in 1964, were taken to hospital in a single ambulance.

The chain of events which concluded with the shootings began shortly after 7.30 p.m.

It is believed Constable Pheby didn't fire although two shotgun blasts and at least three or four shots were heard.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brodeur, 636 Edinborough St., was in her kitchen, about 12 feet from where the body was located, and reports she heard only one shot, although that was, "quite loud.

"There may have been more but I didn't hear them," she said. Mrs. Brodeur is deaf in one ear.

"I have never in my whole life heard a gun go off but I knew instinctively that it was," she said breathlessly.

Mrs. Brodeur noted the incident took place about 7.50 p.m.

"I remember that because I was watching What's My Line?" Her dog, Blacky, barked in a way she had never heard before, she added, so, "I knew it was something real bad."

She also reported going to the door and noticing someone crouching at the railing of her house.

"He said, 'Get in the house.'

"I assumed he was a plain-clothes policeman."

Mrs. Brodeur, who was alone at the time, called her daughter, and recalled being terrified when her son-in-law arrived.

"When the doorbell rang, let me tell you, I was petrified."

Mr. Brodeur was Christmas shopping at the time of the incident.

She vowed never to stay alone again.

"We've been here for 23 years and there's never been anything happen," she commented. She did not actually see the man get shot near the fence just across the driveway from her residence.

Danny Matte, 13, of 643 Stanley St., was visiting his 14-year-old friend, Tod Kerr, 558 Edinborough, and was out in the garage when he heard what he thought was the sound of, "firecrackers."

Harvey Chevalier, RR3, Harrow, was visiting his sister, Mrs. Leona Kulbacki, 630 Edinborough St. He said the incident took less than five minutes.

"Within five minutes this street was all plugged up up (with patrol cars)," said Mr. Chevalier.

The persons in that house also reported that the shots sounded like firecrackers exploding.

"People are going around carrying loaded firearms and they're doing it for a reason. . . then when he gets cornered he is going to shoot," commented Chief Preston.

"We're running into a lot more firearms," he added.

On Oct. 21 Constable Paul Seguin, 27, a seven-year veteran of the city force, was shot in the right thigh during a raid on a Janette Avenue residence.

The raid, and one which followed it, resulted in the capture of three Collins Bay Penitentiary escapers.

Constable Seguin was sent home to recuperate after treatment at Grace Hospital.

The coroner at the scene of the Friday night shooting was Dr. J. M. Schulde.

The incident also marked the first time the city police emergency vehicle was used for lighting purposes.

The special vehicle's lighting equipment made it possible to cast a strong light on the area for a search after the shooting.

Det. Sgt. John Laforet of city police said he understood only "a very small amount" of money was stolen from the cab driver.

It was not immediately clear how the stolen cab's rear window sustained damage from what looked like the discharge of a gun.

'Desperate' robber sought for attack

By Eric Mayne/Star Police Reporter

Gloria Roby is the only person who can identify her attacker.

And she can't tell police because her injuries have left her unable to speak.

Police have been frustrated in their attempts to find the man who brutally beat and robbed the 69-year-old widow June 15, so they're asking the public for help.

"Basically, we're looking for anybody who was in the area of Riverside and Goyeau and noticed any unusual activity," said Det. Neal Jessop who, with Det. Ted Willis, is investigating the case.

Roby was attacked while in a parking garage beneath Le Goyeau Apartments, 111 Riverside Dr. E., where she lives. Her assailant, Jessop said, was armed with a "blunt instrument."

THE ATTACK OCCURRED about 8 p.m. Roby had returned home from Raleigh Township where she spent two days babysitting her grandson, Jessop said.

It's believed the man was after money, but he didn't get any. After striking his helpless victim, he fled with Roby's overnight bag which contained only clothing.

Bleeding heavily, Jessop said Roby struggled to her apartment and collapsed outside her door.

A neighbor found her lying on the floor. She was taken to hospital suffering from a fractured skull.

A tenant, who declined to divulge her name, said she comforted Roby until an ambulance arrived.

"She was barely conscious and tried to speak, but she couldn't," the tenant said. "Then her head just fell back."

ROBY REMAINED UNCONSCIOUS from the time of the incident until Tuesday when a hospital spokesman upgraded her condition to "good."

The left side of her face still appears grossly disfigured with swelling and she receives oxygen through tubes taped to her nostrils. Concerned for her safety, police have asked that the hospital where she is staying not be identified.

Jessop said he communicated with Roby for the first time since the incident this week, but she could only respond by nodding.

For this reason, police do not have a detailed description of the man, although Jessop added, "We have a number of suspects."

TWELVE POLICE OFFICERS canvassed building tenants and got a few leads. But time may be running out.

Jessop said Roby's attacker is capable of committing further acts of violence. Roby narrowly escaped death, but the man's next victim may not be so lucky.

Criminals who prey on the elderly, Jessop added, are "desperate." And they're often motivated by drug or alcohol addictions which can make them especially dangerous.

Initial theories suggested Roby was not a mugging victim, but an accident victim because her purse was found intact inside her apartment. Le Goyeau manager, Alma Jarvis, believes Roby fell and hit her head.

"I don't see how anybody could get in here," Jarvis said, noting a key is required just to enter the parking garage. A second key is needed to enter the building.

BUT POLICE DETERMINED Roby had not brought her purse when she left to visit her grandson. A tenant who saw Roby leave the building, told The Star she was carrying only the overnight bag.

And the police investigation indicates there were strangers in the building at the time, Jessop added.

The incident was the first of two attacks on elderly residents during a one-week period. Francesco Trigatti, 75, was beaten and robbed of $9.70 inside his Wyandotte Street East apartment June 21.

He suffered head injuries, was treated at Hotel Dieu Hospital and later released.

A 28-YEAR-OLD U.S. MAN was arrested and charged in connection with the incident.

The two robberies were in line with a recent rise in Windsor's violent crime rate.

Robberies and attempted robberies increased almost 90 per cent last month. Police investigated nine such incidents in May 1983 compared to 17 during the same period of this year.

Sympathy of the community goes out to the family of the late Harold (Sam) Jessop who passed away December 1, 1971. He was employed at Oldcastle Co-Op and would have received his 25 yr. pin December 4. He will be greatly missed by his many friends.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop
So far farmers in the area are gradually getting their spring planting completed. Most farmers have had to dodge showers throughout the past month.

Most of the month of April and May have seen plenty of rainfall. Considering other areas in Ontario this part of the province has been very lucky. Some areas have just only started the work of farming and in many areas water still lays in the fields.

Word was received from Blind River this past week that the population has increased by one more in that community. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brooks are proud parents of a new baby daughter.

Mrs. Brooks was the former Patricia Jessop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al "Beefy" Jessop of Huron Line.

Mr. and Mrs. "Al" employed at Oldcastle Co-Op left in a hurry on vacation to Blind River to see their new granddaughter.

This being the season of green grass and good power mowers, some thieves already have jumped the gun.

"Doug McCracken, of North Talbot Road has already lost his power mower to pilferers right out of his own tool shed. Mr. and Mrs. McCracken recently took up residence in the former Marshall Jessop home here.

Essex District High Selects Wayne Jessop

WAYNE JESSOP
- - - future in education

This is another in the 1959 Student Leaders Club series. The club is jointly sponsored by the University of Western Ontario and The London Free Press and honors outstanding secondary school students in Western Ontario.

Canada's future depends on the education of her youth, says Wayne Jessop, an honors student at Essex District High School who was chosen for membership in the Student Leaders' Club by the vice-principal and staff.

Wayne, a grade 12 candidate, described as an "excellent student" by his teachers, believes Canadian youth will miss their greatest opportunities if they fail to complete formal education.

"There will be no opportunity for youth unless they stay in school," he says. "For this reason I think the greatest opportunity for Canada's youth is school itself. After a boy or girl has finished his schooling, he will have boundless opportunity in many vocations."

Wayne, 17, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Jessop, of RR 2, Oldcastle. Besides attaining an honor standing at the end of each school year, he has been elected vice-president of the students' council, a member of the boys' athletic council for two years, and has served as company commander of the cadet corps.

But my most interesting school experience, Wayne says, was a trip to New York last fall.

Plays Many Games

"The trip gave me a chance to live and get along with those of my own age under circumstances unrelated to school," he explains. "It also widened my outlook on other peoples."

Wayne also belongs to the Anglican Young People's Association.

Active, too, in Essex District High's sports program, Wayne plays football, basketball, volleyball, baseball and track and field. The most thrilling sports moment in his life was the signing of his first baseball contract at the age of 13. Other players on the team were as much as five years older than Wayne.

FRIDAY, MARCH 25, 1955.

Kingdon-Jessop Wedding.

At a lovely double ring ceremony in St. Stephen's Anglican Church, Miss Eleanor Ann Jessop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Jessop, of Howard avenue, Roseland, and Cpl. Ronald R. Kingdon, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Kingdon, of Halifax, were recently married, with the Rev. J. E. Gordon Houghton officiating.

The bride, entering the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, was beautiful in a floor-length gown of white velvet, featuring a full skirt extending into a cathedral train. The fitted bodice had a round neckline finished with lace applique, seed pearls and rhinestones, and the sleeves extended into points and were finished with tiny buttons. Her three-tiered fingertip veil of illusion was held by a tiara of seed pearls and iridescent sequins and she carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses and lilies of the valley. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Florence Jessop, as her sister's maid of honor, and Miss Doreen Rudge and Mrs. Connie Brooks, as bridesmaids, were dressed identically in gowns of coral, blue and yellow velvet, respectively, with matching cloches, and carried cascades of carnations and chrysanthemums.

L.A.C. Charles McDonald was best man and the ushers were Donald Jessop, brother of the bride, and A. C. Frank Isnor, cousin of the bridegroom.

Miss Shirley McKnight sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love," accompanied by A. C. Nisbett, at the organ.

A reception followed the ceremony, for 100 guests, at the home of the bride's parents. The table was centered by a three-tiered wedding cake in a bed of white tulle and chrysanthemums flanked by tall tapers in double crystal candelabra.

The bride's mother chose a street length dress of intermission brown lace over taffeta, with golden brown accessories, and a corsage of talisman roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a two-piece dress of navy silk, with white accessories, and a corsage of white carnations.

For a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, New York, Mrs. Kingdon donned a three-piece winter white suit trimmed with brown mouton, and brown accessories, with a corsage of red roses.

On their return, Cpl. and Mrs. Kingdon will reside in Barrie.

Among the out-of-town guests were the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Kingdon, of Halifax; Mrs. A. H. Johnston, of Winnipeg, aunt of the bride; Mrs. T. M. Warburton, sister of the bridegroom, from Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Strieb and John and Robert Strieb, of Birmingham, Michigan, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl McCreight, of Essex.

Double-Ring Rites at St. Stephen's

At a lovely double-ring ceremony at St. Stephen's Anglican Church, Roseland, Miss Florence Louise Jessop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Jessop of Howard avenue, and LAC Charles McDonald, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McDonald of River Canard, were united in marriage by the Rev. J. E. Gordon Houghton.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of nylon net and lace over taffeta, with a peplum of Chantilly lace, and a long-sleeved jacket of the lace. She wore her sister's three-tiered veil of illusion held by a tiara of seed pearls and iridescent sequins, and carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses embedded.

Mrs. Ron Kingdon, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, and Miss Gloria Jessop, a cousin, and Miss Alma Bergoine, as bridesmaids, were dressed in identically styled gowns of lime green, mauve and yellow lace and nylon net, respectively, with jackets, and wore matching tiaras. They carried cascades of salmon, pink and blue carnations.

Cpl. Kingdon was best man, and the ushers were Mr. George H. McDonald, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. William D. Bennet. Mrs. Shirley McKnight sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love," accompanied by Mr. A. C. Nisbett at the organ.

A reception followed the ceremony for 100 guests, at the home of the bride's parents. The table was centred by a three-tiered wedding cake in a bed of pink and white tulle, flanked by tall tapers in crystal candelabra.

The bride's mother wore a street-length dress of brown lace over taffeta, with golden brown accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a street-length dress of blue silk with white dots, and pink carnations. Mrs. M. Cady, grandmother of the bridegroom, chose a dress of pale blue crepe and a corsage of white carnations.

For a wedding trip by car to Toledo Ohio, Toronto and Barrie, Mrs. McDonald wore a suit of navy with white flecks, and navy and white accessories. She wore a corsage of white carnations and pink roses. They will reside in Roseland.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, Mr. and Mrs. John Scarafia, Barbara and John Scarafia and Patrick Campbell of Buffalo, New York; Cpl. and Mrs. Kingdon of Barrie, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Parkinson of Detroit, Sgt. James Hamilton of Camp Ipperwash, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl McCreight of Essex.

With the announcement that Essex County will have a deer season in December is a break for the hunter who would like to get at something bigger. Of course the farmer with the Jersey cow herd will have to be on the watch. Some hunters can't tell a deer from a Jersey cow. If it moos it's not a deer so hold your fire.

Recent editorials of the Ford family and its car has stirred a lively interest to readers of the Windsor Daily Star. Ford's idea to sell cars in a price bracket for the ordinary working man made him a millionaire. Today's price for a car would seem that the average man has to be a millionaire to buy one. Times have changed either we all millionaires or somebody is being badly goofed.

Joyce Jessop and Gerald Hillman Married at Chalmers United Church

At a lovely ceremony, at Chalmers United Church, Rev. Wilson Morden united in marriage Miss Joyce Elaine Jessop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jessop of R.R. 1, and Mr. Gerald Richard Hillman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Hillman of Hildegarde St.

The bride, entering the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, was radiant in a floor length gown of lace over net. The bodice featured a scalloped neckline and long sleeves which ended in points at the wrist. Her veil of illusion was held to her head by a crown of sequins and seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis.

Mrs. Malcolm McPhail, as matron of honor, was gowned in a yellow floor length dress which featured a skirt of tiers of net, and a V neckline. She carried yellow gladioli and white chrysanthemums.

Miss Patricia Jessop, sister of the bride; Miss Mary Jean St. Julian, cousin of the bride, and Miss Donna Dumouchelle were gowned identically to the matron of honor in mauve dresses. Their bouquets were of yellow gladioli and white chrysanthemums.

Joanne Jessop, cousin of the bride, as flower girl, wore a yellow dress with white trim, and carried a bouquet similar to that of the bridesmaids.

Mr. Gary Hillman assisted his brother as best man with Mr. Stanley Hillman, Mr. Edward Hazel and Mr. Larry Jessop as ushers. Little Ricky Kenoe, nephew of the bridegroom, was the ring bearer.

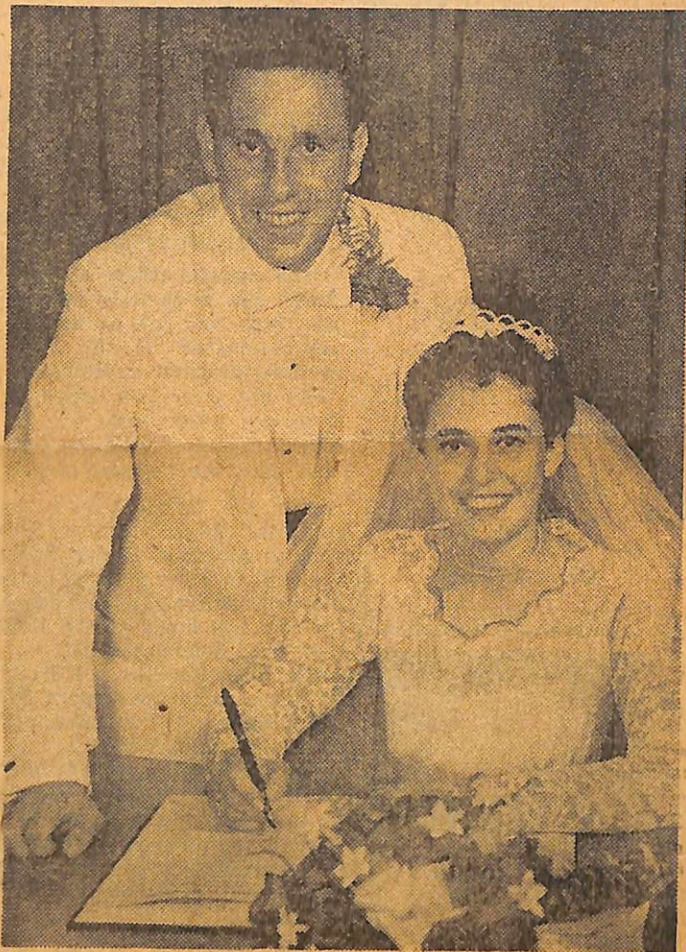

A reception for 400 guests was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Jessop chose a pale blue dress with blue accessories, a white picture hat and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Hillman chose a mauve dress with white accessories and yellow roses for her corsage.

For a wedding trip to Muskoka the bride donned a pale blue dress with a matching duster, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Hillman will reside at 3608 Howard Ave.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Thomas Murphy and family, of Sincere sympathy to the Jessop boys (Carson, Manson and Marshall) in the sudden loss of their beloved father, Walter Jessop. Mr. Jessop was 71 years old and was born in Sandwich West, where he resided until he married, moving then to North Talbot Road. He was always interested in baseball. He worked hard and backed many of the Oldcastle teams, in which his three sons excelled as ball players. He was manager of the Oldcastle Co-operative for years, until his last illness. He was a member of St. Stephen's Church and was known and highly respected by most of Essex County and had a jovial, happy disposition, and was never too busy to stop and chat with an acquaintance. The funeral was held from the Anderson Funeral Home, on Tuesday afternoon, to St. Stephen's Church, and interment was in St. Stephen's cemetery.

Hillman-Jessop Nuptials.

At a lovely ceremony, at Chalmers United Church, Rev. Wilson Morden united in marriage Miss Joyce Elaine Jessop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jessop, of R. R. 1, and Gerald Richard Hillman, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Hillman, Hildegarde St., Windsor.

The bride entering the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, was radiant in a floor length gown of lace over net. The bodice featured a scalloped neckline and long sleeves which ended in points at the wrist. Her veil of illusion was held to her head by a crown of sequins and seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis.

Mrs. Malcolm McPhail, as matron of honor, was gowned in a yellow floor length dress which featured a skirt of tiers of net, and a V neckline. She carried yellow gladioli and white chrysanthemums.

Miss Patricia Jessop, sister of the bride; Miss Mary Jean St. Julian, cousin of the bride, and Miss Donna Dumouchelle were gowned identically to the matron of honour in mauve dresses. Their bouquets were of yellow gladioli and white chrysanthemums.

Joanne Jessop, cousin of the bride, as flower girl, wore a yellow dress with white trim, and carried a bouquet similar to that of the bridesmaids.

Gary Hillman assisted his brother as best man, with Stanley Hillman, Edward Hazel and Larry Jessop as ushers. Little Ricky Kenoe, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

A reception for 400 guests was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Jessop chose a pale blue dress with blue accessories, a white picture hat and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Hillman chose a mauve dress with white accessories and yellow roses for her corsage.

For a wedding trip to Muskoka the bride donned a pale blue dress with a matching duster, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Hillman will reside at 3608 Howard avenue.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Thos. Murphy and family, of Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Bud Gruhler, of Toledo, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Aurel Trembley, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Faulaus, of Illinois, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker, of Woodslee

Thanksgiving

Canadian Thanksgiving was celebrated by Essex County churches of all denominations on Monday of the past week. Some of us go day by day with but little thought of how fortunate we are to have the good fruits that are provided for us in this country. In this rush and hustle world we live in, sometimes the idea of collecting the almighty dollar for material things shadows the works of the spirit of God that has made this wonderful country of Canada. Look around you ye children of the Lord and ye shall see the wonders that never cease to come from his hand. If you have never stopped to offer a short prayer, stop, bow down, and see the gratitude you will receive in being humble and thankful.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop
Season's Greetings

To my many friends and readers of this column there comes a time each year when Christians, regardless of race, religion or color, should put aside business and pleasure and dwell on the season of Christmas and the New Year.

Christmas and the birth of Jesus was also the New Year because it brought something new to the down-trodden peoples and a way of life and teachings that has lasted through wars, famines and depressions.

In some respects Christian nations do not deserve the teachings of Jesus Christ. Throughout much of world history Christian nations have armed against one another to cause the most wholesale cause of destruction and suffering that the world has ever known. Only here in the new world of North America have we been able to settle differences among nations by peaceful methods. Regardless of our democratic way of life that we think is the best in the hemisphere we still have a long way to go to carry out the teachings of Christianity.

Each year with the coming of a New Year we flock to our place of worship to place ourselves at the feet of the Holy One. Everybody becomes like new with the spirit of Jesus Christ. When the season's spirit wears away most of us become the imperfect human we are and revert back to our animal like ways of life. We forget the teachings of Christian life and worship the love of material things and it's still a dog eat dog world instead of a paradise that the Lord intended it to be.

Right at this very writing the Christian nations of the world are meeting in France to bolster a defence against an aggressor that is slowly trying to wipe out the life we know. When all seems lost let us forget the differences of race, creed and color among our many nations and turn in prayer and thanks.

POSTED

Now this week of all weeks if your disposition suddenly changes from a calm ordinary citizen to a feeling that a little cussin and temperament and a few cuss words mingle, don't worry. If gremlins get in your machinery of everyday life or things like leprechauns with a witty look are found in the limbs of tree outside the kitchen window its still nothing to get disturbed about.

On the other hand ye might light your clay pipe, hunt for a shamrock in the back pasture and come up with a snake that needs to be prayed for. Glory be to God man me name is McCloskey, McCauliffe, McLean, McGuire and the saints "presarve" me its not MacDuff, MacDonald, MacKenzie on this week of St. Patrick.

INTERMENT
St. Stephen's Church Cemetery

Back in the boom days millions of dollars was sunk in the real estates of Sandwich West Township. Roads were built, sidewalks put down and deep sewers dug for what was to be another metropolis like the city of Detroit.

Down, down into the depths of black went the money and discouraged lives of hundreds of investors as not ten years later the crash of the century hit. This great dream was just about 20 years too soon. One only has to scan the same district today and see the vast development of the same area.

These same weed grown over roads and cow-path estates are blooming into beautiful homes and suburban growth. Today on a Sunday morning one can hear sound of church bells and watch the ever coming and going of cars and people on their way to worship. Hand in hand the church and the school have again made a new community and new construction companies and real estate are opening the way to this project of once thought wilderness.

From now until the end of April most people will be chewing finger nails, pencils and even bubble gum along with wearing out the rubber end of pencils to try and fathom out who owes who when it comes to Income Tax. Each year one gets a larger pencil with more rubber and a pen with a larger refill but to no avail because the government men seem to be smarter. Our government men just add more paper to be filled out and tack on more tax that takes more night oil and more figuring and headaches and aspirin tablets. Some try to beat the men in Ottawa and Toronto and some are just plain honest and claim there was nothing in the pot when the year was finished.

If one is honest they investigate you anyway and if you have beaten the Tax men, you will laugh like a cat after it had eaten the pet canary but in a few years some smart clerk will see where you have added two and two and your arithmetic will not be of the modern classrooms and then what. "Pow", sorry judge I am a poor farmer and like the open spaces.

Open spaces it will not be. It will be a few thousand or else that new car you showed off to the neighbours will be gone.

St. Patrick's

Just about this time of year or any years gone by or coming, people who sometimes see red colours suddenly see nothing but green.

Names like McAuliffe, McCann, McGuire, Flannery, O'Flaherty, O'Hagen, O'Brien, Donovan, Carrigan, Casey and O'Hells-a-poppin (that last name slipped) all these names suddenly get itching for a celebration of some kind.

Naturally its the celebration of the Irish clans of the good St. Patrick, who hated the snake in the grass type and decided to do something about it.

In the Village of McGregor this Saturday night, even all the Frenchmen and La Femmes will change the bright red for bright green at the K. of C. Hall, at a St. Patrick's Dance.

At Roseland Golf Club all you veterans and friends of veterans can celebrate this Saturday nite. Branch 594 of the newly formed Royal Canadian Legion, in this district, are planning a St. Patrick's night. All you former veterans in this district who are not Legion members might get out and shake a leg and also get on the band wagon and become members of the new formed 594 and help your old comrades to put over the new Legion.

All the spraying, swatting and swiping fails to kill enough of the Lord's invention, the dive bomber summer mosquito. No matter how many old screens you patch or how many little cracks one plugs old whiner seems to get his two cents worth in on a pleasant summer night.

Now he can get in the middle of most amusing places ever invented. He can take the fun out of the words of a lover, break up a pleasant dream or break up a fine home by leaving splattered blood spots on the wife's newly painted ceiling.

One is willing to bet if Noah took this delicate high-noted devil on his ark that he sure must of had a ball stinging because there was supposed to be two animals of all kinds including the Noah family.

IN MEMORIAM
JOBIN - In loving memory of Alec (Lloyd) Jobin, who passed away November 30, 1973.

He has solved life's wonderful problem,

The deepest, the strangest, the last,

And into the school of the angels

With the answer forever has passed.

How strange he should sleep so profoundly,

So young, so unworn by the strife,

While beside him brimful of hope's nectar

Untouched, stood the goblet of life.

God knew all about it, how noble,

How gentle he was and how brave,

How bright his possible future,

Yet put him to sleep in his grave,

God knew all about those who loved him,

How bitter the trial must be,

And right through it all God is loving,

And knows so much better than we.

Brook-Jessop Nuptials

At a lovely ceremony at Holy Name Church, Essex, Rev. I. O'Neil recently united in marriage Miss Patricia Ann Jessop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jessop of R. R. 1 Windsor, and Raymond Francis J. Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Brooks of Moy Avenue, Windsor.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length dress of lace and tulle over satin, fashioned with a scalloped neckline and alternating layers of tulle and lace in the skirt. Her veil of French illusion was held to her head by a tiara of seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Patsy Dumouchelle, as maid of honor, wore a pale blue velvet cocktail dress with a sweetheart neckline, and a matching feather hat, and carried a cascade of pink carnations. Mrs. Gerald Hillman, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, was gowned identically to the maid of honor.

Arthur Brooks, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were Larry Jessop, brother of the bride and Mr. Hillman.

A reception followed at the Poplar Inn, where the bride's mother wore a pale blue dress with navy and pink accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a pale rose dress with rose and black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

For their wedding trip to Blind River where they will reside, Mrs. Brooks wore a gray tweed suit with pink and black accessories and a corsage of deep pink roses.

Rumbling

From reports Canada may have an election this coming June and from the attitude at present of some voters the Federal Member of Parliament may have to work for his seat this year. Canada's people were nice quite smug voters on the way with a wide open prosperity ever since the ending of World War II. Presently Canadian people from the outlook are rumbling and snarling as money becomes tight, and living costs are on the upgrade. Whether this present feeling will continue to reflect the Essex County feeling cannot be foretold in a general election. So far people are content to vote conservative landslide in provincial election and the same in a Dominion with the Liberal party. Voters in Canada for many years are content to vote the party politics and then howl when things are not up to snuff. Action cannot be gained by sitting down like the farmers dog and howl after the rabbit got away. Present partys in both Ontario and Dominion are considered too strong for opposition and many people are resenting that fact. Automobile manufacturers, farmers and the middle class man are all snarling in Essex County at the present High cost of living, low prices and high tax is putting a pinch on every pocket. Putting the blame on the government just will do no good unless a concerted action is made for a change. People are the voters and people are the same thing that wins or loses an election.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Pace of Reddock Ave. announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Louise, to Grant Franklin Jessop of RR 2 Windsor, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Jessop. The wedding will take place September 24 at 4 p.m. in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Essex. Rev. Walter C. Barnes will officiate.

Dorothy Jessop Passes

Many folk of this area were saddened the past week as they learned of the death of Mrs. Wilbert (Bill) Jessop, at Hotel Dieu Hospital. Mrs. Jessop failed to recover from a serious operation two weeks ago.

Mrs. Jessop is survived by her husband, Wilbert; a son, Grant; two daughters, Rose Mary and Joanne, all of 6th Concession, Sandwich South. Mrs. Jessop was 43 years of age and was born in Montreal, Que., and was the former Dorothy Giles before her marriage.

Services were held from the Anderson Funeral Home, Windsor, and St. Stephen's Anglican Church, here last Saturday. Burial was in St. Stephen's Cemetery with the Rev. E. C. Grey conducting the funeral services.

Thanks

The family of the late Dorothy Audrey Jessop, of Oldcastle, wish through this column to extend their sincere thanks and appreciation to their many relatives, and neighbours for floral tributes and messages of sympathy shown them in the loss of a loving wife and mother. Special thanks to the doctor's staff and special nurses at Hotel Dieu Hospital, pallbearers, Rev. E. C. Grey, Nelson Shuttleworth, organist and choir of St. Stephen's Church and Anderson Funeral Home.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

Many Thanks

"Hoot Mon" all you readers of this corner of Essex County. With the help of God, wonderful surgery, good care, and of all things your prayers, cards, flowers and your many good down to earth wishes, we are back on the map and if the good Lord and your prayers are still with me we will do this little bit of the banana belt with two eyes instead of one.

In this day and age of the almighty dollar we often forget that God has given us things that a dollar bill cannot buy. Four years ago this corner would have been totally blind had it not been for more than just surgery. Doctors can only do so much God bless them, there is power in Heaven and earth that is sometimes beyond our reach, at least we think so. Many times it is there and we refuse to admit it and we have only to drop our animal ego and ask for it.

Cataracts of the eye are dangerous to the loss of sight, sometimes forever, but shortly I will be able to see with both eyes, to be able to read and do all the things that make life worth while from good sight. When life is at its lowest ebb one cannot realize how much friendly wishes mean. Friendship is a thing that is not bought or sold across the counter of life. Your friendly gifts are genuine God given goodness and a thing that makes a fellow feel good way down inside.

My advice to you, from a person who has experienced cataracts, is find a first class surgeon, trust in him as you never trusted before and then pray like you never prayed before and put every trust in the good Lord that you have at your disposal.

Oldcastle residents as well as many Essex County residents feel they are lucky this week following the big blow and heavy electrical storm that brewed such a witch's brew throughout the U. S. A. states.

Loss of life and property from the weekend tornadoes missed here but many locals here were anxious, about relatives and friends living in the stricken areas.

Signs were blown down along with some buildings and barns in the area but so far no injury has been reported.

Bob Sylvester had a beautiful evergreen uprooted in his farmyard and signs were blown down at the Variety Store and at the A. D. Kavanagh home and other minor accidents happened around the village.

We spent a few hours with Auntie Olive Tansley (Ollie Jessop) at Four Counties Hospital, at Newbury, near Wardsville, the past Sunday. From reports, she may be another month before she will be allowed up on her hip that was broken in a recent fall.

Auntie claims she is going to walk and sends her regards and thanks to her many friends and asks that all to come and visit her and write. Mrs. Tansey says to excuse her for not answering all her letters.

In visiting this smaller hospital it came to mind of recent talks of a hospital here in this area outside the Windsor city district that takes in much of the rural area's of Essex, Harrow, McGregor and Amherstburg and surrounding districts. If it can be done at Newbury it can be done in this county area as well and has much food for thought in these areas.

Four County Hospital is a hospital to be proud of and a tribute to the men and women of that district that pooled their resources of mind and money to found this present efficient institution.

News and Views from St. Mary's Maidstone

By Diane Burling

Cleary Auditorium was the site of the grade 5/6 field trip. The reason they were there was to listen to the Windsor Symphony. They had a great time!

Wednesday morning we started off with an Ash Wednesday mass. The teachers placed ashes on their students foreheads. It was a beautiful mass.

The school assembled in the gym Wednesday afternoon to listen to speeches. First in the junior division was Wendy Angelini with "Boys", 2nd Justin Johnston, "Nothing", 3rd Michele Cloutier, "Sisters". In the senior division David Robson was first with "Curiosity", Mary Anne Benoit, "Peer Pressure", Kristy Foyd, "Cancer" and Diane Burling "Homework".

Saturday all the winners went to the legion in Essex to the next competition. We only had one winner, Justin Johnston, who took first in the junior division. Congratulations!

Winter Day was lots of fun. All the students enjoyed the many events that took place. Special thanks to the parent helpers and the Parent Advisory Committee for the delicious soup at lunch. Also, special thanks to the teachers and the grade 8 students who ran the events.

Thursday afternoon all the students assembled in the gym to watch Old Yeller and The Electric Grandmother.

Friday, February 26, all the students will be participating in the Read-A-Thon.

The students whose projects will be sent for display at the County Science Fair are: Diane Burling, 8, Robert Jessop 8, Aimee Martel 8, Wendy Angelini 6, Justin Johnston 6 and Paul Agos, 6.

A Stinker for a Pet

People who never have experienced a small portion of rural life have never lived. Down on the old farm most kids learn about nature in a clean, wholesome manner.

Most fellas have a pet or two but the young set at Sid Shuttleworth's have two or three. Last year their menagerie included a pet rabbit, raccoon and a stinker. You can guess what a stinker is. Just plain skunk.

Most stories of the skunk family are not pleasant but the young Shuttleworths' association with skunks is a happy one. Mr. Skunk plays around with his farm friends as any cat would without as much as one little squirt of backwoods perfume.

Sorry to say Sid doesn't trust "Skunky" like the youngsters, which adds to the old saying, "there is no color-line among the very young."

Progress may be good for a nation but parts of that nation and people who are accustomed to the quiet side of community never seem to become used to progress. Farming people never have quite got used to progress in some parts of the northern areas of Sandwich South. Planes overhead, roar of cars and trucks on New 401 combined with a wail of the electric horns from diesel railway locomotives turns a quiet summer night into various sounds that is foreign to the ears of a quiet country. Peaceful crickets, moan of the wind or the barking of a far off dog is drowned out by something that is not in harmony with nature. Doctors claim today that many of the nervous diseases are the result of the noise of machinery we live with. No more does the human system have a chance to live and relax in quiet calmness of a countryside. People who are accustomed to these noises cannot relax when the sudden shell of a quiet interlude appears around them.

Reports are that our sanitoriums are filled with people suddenly gone mad from a world of progress. So it's either progress and madness or just live and let live you pay your money and take your choice.

Free Press Goes South

Folks away from home and in the big city miss the chit chat around the local corner and sometimes the large daily paper cannot make the space for little things that mean much to their happiness.

Last week we received a very fine letter from Mr. and Mrs. Tom Chittle who once made their home at Maidstone and now are at Los Angeles California. Mr. and Mrs. Chittle received the January 7th issue of the Free Press in which this corner went to work again. In our letter Mr. and Mrs. Chittle drooled at receiving news from home, a compliment that gives the local worker a good down to earth feeling to know that little things can still be appreciated.

We hope the Free Press will still reach them and will bring them hours of happy reading.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS.

To you who read this column we have been on a small leave until the old peepers returned to normal. Thanks for your patience and inquiries on the state of my health. We shall endeavor to scrape the barrel and send out reports from little Oldcastle again.

Two former residents of this district passed away in Windsor hospitals over the past week. Albert 'Bert' Long, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Long passed away after a lengthy illness. Mrs. Long was the former 'Mayme' Jessop, daughter of the late Frank Jessop. Allen Clark, who operated Clark's Service Station on No. 3 Highway for many years also passed away, Tuesday morning, following a short illness. The Clark family moved to Windsor shortly before World War II and many people in this district were surprised to hear of the death of Sandwich South's famous Scotsman, Allen Clark. New Year's to residents of New No. 3 Highway will never be forgotten when they think of the late Allen Clark. Every new years Allen would parade up and down with the skirl of his bag-pipes singing on the night air. Mr. Clark was for many years a piper with the Essex Scottish regiment of Windsor.

Please say another prayer for me, and with the good Lord's blessing we hope to be back with you soon.

Out there in the Pacific, we received a fine card from one of our former boys in the person of Father Tim Kavanagh. Father Tim, of course, has a parish of his own now on the island of Guam. Out there he claims they haven't much, but they're happy. Here we got too much and nobody seems satisfied.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Chittle, at Los Angeles, Calif., still like to hear what's cookin' here in Sandwich South. These former Maidstone's inform us we should journey out there to see Hollywood.

We see some of Hollywood in the local papers, that sends the blood rushin' to the head now, and then. Then, when we get through pantin' a little, we have figured one can't have every-thing.

The terrific electric storm and wind and rain that broke over this community on Election Day, Monday afternoon left much damage in its wake. Trees, limbs, telephone lines and hydro suffered. The voters turning out, despite the weather, showed the interest in this locality taken, especially in the Canadian Dollar being de valued, that has hit hard on the common man. Essex County returns gave the Honourable Paul Martin, M.P., of Essex East; Herb Gray, Essex West and Eugene Whelan, Reeve of Anderdon and Warden of Essex County, all convincing victories for the Liberal Party. Mr. Whelan really "thrashing" Mr. Thrasher the incumbent. Mr. Whelan being a whale of a man. Essex County farmers want a real farmer to represent them and showed it by their vote. So, Congratulations, to all.

Oldcastle 4-H - Encounter the Outdoors

On Saturday, April 2, the Oldcastle 4-H Club held their first meeting at the home of Mrs. Linda Halford.

We started our meeting with introductions and games and then we welcomed our new members, Louise and Luann Tofflemire, Karen Hebert, Kit Higginbottom, and Tania Petrucci. We then elected officers President Robert Jessop, V.P. Lisa Johnston, Sec. Karen Hebert, Press Reporter Jenny Halford, Junior Leader Jackie Vanhoorne, Leaders Doris Johnston, Linda Halford and Wendy Pulleyblank. Other members in our club are Diane Burling, Nicole Johnston, Aimee Martel.

"Softwood is for kindling hardwood is for firewood", these are just some of the things we learned at our first meeting. Our president Robert Jessop helped us build a fire using the proper methods, guided by our guest speaker Mr. Tim Halford. We started with the Teepee Style and then built it into a Log Cabin, no we are not talking about homes, we have just learned two different methods of constructing an outdoor fire. We then made a couple of our campfire recipes.

On Saturday, April 9, the Oldcastle 4-H "Encounter the outdoors" Club held their second meeting with all 12 members present. We discussed "Weather Signs", Temperature and cloud types. We then discussed the "do's and don't's of picking out a campsite. Robert Jessop showed us how to tell time with our hand and what way the wind was blowing. We discussed the sleeping area, shelter, cooking area, and how to store our food so that animals don't get in it. Robert showed us how to tie knots using Aimee's are for a tree. We learned how to set-up and leave a campsite.

Our next meeting will be held April 23 at 12:30 at the Maidstone-Essex Conservation Authority (on 98 Hwy.). Everyone welcome.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop
Season's Greetings

We who enjoy the use of the pen so that others may read the printed word probably enjoy Christmas sometimes just a little bit more. Now that is to many a most unfriendly statement. What we are referring to is the Holy Bible, that was written that millions would understand the meaning of Christmas. Written in a simple language that even a child can read and digest its meaning. Considering the hundreds of words printed and many volumes the Bible is still the most popular book written today.

Without the writer's pen and many many verses of the Bible, there likely would be no Christmas or no Christian nations to celebrate the birthday of Christ. Life would be an endless, un-inspired, worthless thing to live.

Many years ago the meaning of Christmas meant the wishing of one-another good tidings, and a simple present that meant down to earth blessings. We here in the Western world, sometimes lose the meaning of Christmas and what it stands for. There are people today who think that Christmas is just another day, because they have no spirit or emotion which moves them to remember and believe in Christ. Why? Amid this turmoil of money and men, the spirit of God or Christ has no place in their heart. Only the cold dollar bill and the production line is the spirit of Christmas in the heart of many.

Jesus was not born just for the kids on Christmas day. Every last one of us that is a human being came into the teachings of Christ. Sinner, rich, poor, children alike, Christ came upon earth to teach the word of God.

Man rejected Christ because he could not understand something that was much in His likeness and yet also have the power of spirit he could not see. Reason today would prove that Jesus was such a person, both God and man. One can feel the wind but cannot see it, and it yet has the power to destroy hundreds of lives.

Many years have passed by since the crucifixion of Jesus but His spirit remains on earth in every human being. The spirit of Christ may be in a person's soul but for a few minutes of a kind deed but it is proof of the great Teacher.

People can be mean, nasty, miserly and hateful all through one year and yet Christmas season will bring out a spirit of goodness never seen before. Why cannot that same person have the spirit of Christ throughout the rest of the year? People tend to believe their ideas are all that matters without the help of God. Without prayer no man can enjoy the fruits of life's meaning. Just to wish a friend or neighbor a Merry Christmas is a small deed but from that deed can come years of friendship and goodwill and memories that never fade. Why all the Christmas card writing? Just to wish your friends a Merry Christmas is the giving and receiving of the spirit of Christ.

To those who read this column and enjoy it, and to those who wish they had never read it, we will leave this Christmas card message:

Never a Christmas morning

Never the old year ends,

But someone thinks of someone,

Old days, old times, old friends.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop

When this script from the corner of Oldcastle lands on our editor's desk he not only will be surprised but will also scratch the editorial noggin and wonder just what did become of Oldcastle Highlights for the past two years. Some of his ardent readers also ask the same question. Just what became of the column that had so much junk and balogna?

Oldcastle did not burn down or float away, in fact it is very much alive, only the pen pusher that sent out its happenings took a holiday that he did not ask for. Did you ever hear of a thing called a cataract of the eye? This cataract is not one like you would find at Niagara Falls or some other turbulent water-works, it's just one of those things that stops one from the sight of things that you should see and be able to see the things that you should not.

Your would-be writer has much to be thankful for especially at a time of Christmas and the New Year when all of us should be more thankful for the gifts and prosperity that the good Lord has allowed in our western world. In our every day life there are the heart-aches and undoings that grieve us but to lose the human sight of the eye that is the telegraph of all the good things of life, can be most uncomfortable. Thanks to the most wonderful surgery and modern hospitalization, your Oldcastle Highlighter can today be able to read and to run a typewriter that was not possible a short time ago.

In this first edition of Oldcastle your writer must thank all his many friends for the beautiful cards and gifts sent to me while in hospital. I have just been able to read them and this new eye has brought out and magnified colors and print that even the good eyes cannot see.

All that is left that one can glean from the old 1954 around here at this writing is the cleaning up. That is just exactly what Oldcastle bergers are in the process of doing now and what all should put the shoulder to. When a mess is made it has to be cleaned up and some of the past year was a mess. Mess or no mess this is 1955 and time to wipe the slate clean and ask the teacher for a clean piece of chalk to start a new lesson in the art of living life.

Local garbage cans seem to tilt at the top lid as many odd shaped empty bottles nose from the bowels of the can. Wonder if maw was a little late doing her canning this year and just discarded the empty ones. Some stores have done good business selling soda and it's not all pop either. Poor old Christmas tree that once did its modeling in the front room now keeps company with the ash heap. Last year's toys will soon be out of date and all that remains is a loud but peaceful snore from the chesterfield as pcg sleeps and dreams of the dough that can't buy a new tractor.

Christmas Tidings

Everybody, everyday, each year, either we celebrate a birthday of our own or a near friend. Does it not seem odd that now on the 25th of December we celebrate the birthday of one person. Every Christian nation and its people celebrate the birthday of not only a human being but a God as well.

Jesus Christ was a Jewish boy born in a humble stable of poor parents and yet rich and poor look forward to that one day each year. Hundreds of races, and religions throughout the world celebrate one birthday.

Different creeds squabble and rabble over different points of the Bible year after year call themselves Christians and yet celebrate this man's birthday. Why should it be so?

History has recorded nations rising to kill one another over Holy wars because of this man's right to bring about a teaching that still remains centuries after his birth.

People can all year be selfish, mean and just plain devilish to his fellow man and at Christmas be seen in a church pew on Christmas Day. Surely back of all a human beings failings a spirit of someone still remains that is Christianlike.

Today Christian nations are about to fate this Christian God's doctrine throughout the civilized world in the face of Communism. Differences appear between Christian nations even now but yet Christ's teachings will come to the front even when nations waver.

Regardless of how different creeds differ we must look to the under-surface of Jesus and his teachings. The blind were made to see, the deaf to hear, the dead to rise and hundreds of other miracles that no human being has been able to duplicate hereafter.

Let us on this Christmas Day bow down to his works that it may bring us to a fuller appreciation and understanding of one another.

Merry Christmas.

Happy New Year

Presents have been opened, all the carols have been sung, glasses have been tipped, prayers have been said thus ending the Christmas for another year.

What are you "doin" New Year's Eve? Kicking the old out and ringing in the new baby of 1957. New Years is celebrated in many different ways in all lands throughout the world. In China it is, a disgrace not to pay up all debts at the end of the old year.

To some a new year is no different, it's just another day to live. The word New should ring a bell in our character and tell us that this is the time to put away our old habits and start fresh. Our misgivings, errors and little troubles must be put away in the old cupboard and forgotten. 1957 is a new broom to sweep the floor with and see if we can't get it clean.

No matter how good we thought we swept the 1956 floor it is no time to let down. We surely can sweep it just a little better this year.

Comedians of the stage are supposed to be happy go-lucky guys who do nothing but make the public laugh. Modern thinking is well spoken in the words of Groucho Marx, the cigar tippler of the stage. He quotes, from TV Guide, "I think we've proved that all people are basically the same, even though their skin is lighter or darker. The color of their skin and the costumes they wear aren't very important. What's important is that they all have the same sense of humor, the same troubles, the same desires and the same little faults that we have here in America.

"What it all boils down to is this: No matter what country you're born in we're all members of the same race—the human race. And we'd better learn to like each other and live together, lest we all disappear from the earth."

From that all of us need to think what humanity is and for a comedian it is not comedy. It's truth.

DEDICATION

To alleviate the sorrow of parting, is to render a service to mankind. To this our every effort is respectfully dedicated.

Monday was again the traditional celebration of St. Patrick's Day, the patron Saint of the bearers of the colour of green or to you Irishmen and women all over the world. With a wisecrack that will floor you and a cocky walk of confidence you will know true Irish he-man all over the world.

If she has a sparkle in the eye and a come hither look and a temper that will blast you out of your dreams its Irish Colleen through and through.

Sandwich South has much to thank its Irish blood between Maidstone and the outskirts of Windsor and may they live forever.

that once was an independent are just another timid soul

One Wonders.

Just what can this part of humanity be? This part of human life that is called the soft, kind, weaker sex, upholder of the family morals. Men just melt before its onslaught, us the rocker of the cradle, wars have been fought over the female sex. "Weaker sex, my eye,"

Did you ever get dressed up in the best suit and end up in your local church to be a pious man for one day of the week, at least. Just one day for the Lord. What do you find as you are about to settle into your pew? Smack in front of you, giving your two little mean eyes to look at, is a fur around the weaker sex's neck. Oh, it doesn't seem to make much difference how it adorns our fair sex. Tails can hang here or there, or a couple of heads can peer out at you with a little black nose almost sniffing you. Well, you might even see a tail being bitten in one of the mouths. Weaker sex, "my eye" sitting in church with a dead animal around your neck, how can one have the conscience.

Men never understood women because they are too dumb we guess (I mean the men). But a thing that will run from a mouse and at the same time wear a fur of some animal around their neck on Sunday — you figure it out.

Just a word of caution to the wise fun-loving bachelors of our community. In case your memory fails you, this is leap year and a lot of local lassies might get jumped upon in case they don't jog their memory. One can just turn around in a circle and count ten around here and the bachelor population sure can be counted in good numbers. Regardless of the outcome, having a little cutie to confide in is not always the worst thing in the world. Probably the bachelor always thinks though of the little cutie as a false face. Wait until the man with the book says, "Let no man put asunder," then the next day it is "pow," and you Usual procedure to a sergeant in command of troupes is to give the command "dig in" when fire from the enemy gets too hot.

Here in the county and local area, the past week, it was not dig in but digging out to the tune of the weatherman who gave a command of over fourteen inches of drifting, snarling snow.

From grandma down to the youngest in the local tribes, everybody that was shy of a scoop shovel got better acquainted and became back busting bosom buddies for at least two days.

At this writing travel is back to normal, much to the credit of township, county and provincial highway crews who are still pushing the white blanket around.

Out here in the county, the farm and suburban folk with a little more room to move around are back to everyday life and looking for a "buck" and trading blizzard stories like old hens over a bunch of cracked eggs.

From reports the Border Cities and some county towns will be days getting snow moved around.

In a blizzard emergency, the everyday milkman, breadman and mailman turned many local mothers from the can on the shelf back to the oven of old time baking and cooking and reading papers that usually cover the kitchen floor.

Grain hauling was stopped up due to the weather for a couple of days but is back to normal again.

Prices at this penning have shown little change. Soyabeans fell off to $3.05, corn was down to $1.35.

On the past weekend, Canada tossed off its 100th birthday and became one year older. Most of the farming areas would be slightly idle due to heavy storms that passed over here the past week. Some three to four inches of rainfall were calculated to have fallen. Candy, the named storm that passed over this area should have been dubbed the "baptizer" because it dunked everything from fields to local basements and the only thing left dry was the local beer stores out on strike.

Canada also became fed up with the bickering at Ottawa and gave Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau a thumping majority to the Liberal party and a majority government. Mr. Trudeau now will have five years to mend the fences of his party and see what he can do to rule this vast land. Voting day was not the best for most voters as buckets of water fell most of the day and that did not stop voters as some 70 percent or more across the land used their right to vote. One of our local French colleagues claimed that Mr. Trudeau must have lived up to his name. In the French language the name Trudeau means water hole or water puddle and to govern this country and keep all happy, one can sure get into one big puddle.

Some deliveries of grain fell off due to heavy rains. Truckers were mired in some farmyards. Soyabeans came back some and at this writing went back to $2.57.

JESSOP--Wilhimina (Babe), 69 years, April 9, 1972. Late of 4575 Howard Avenue, Windsor. Predeceased by her husband William Wesley, (1963). Easter is Here

In many Christian homes this week end families of many religions will bow down to pray for the one perfect man and God that has been the background of their heritage.

Little ones in many homes also will look to the funny looking bunny rabbit and the hen with the baby chicks. None will forget the large chocolate eggs in the basket.

Regardless of all the fantasy of Easter the one reason for this holiday should be imprinted on all our minds at a very early age.

Jesus Christ proved that there was a greater power than all the human world could muster. Following his terrible agony on the third day he was not found in the tomb. No human could have removed the stone that imprisoned his lifeless body.

People at that time looked for a leader that they could believe in and yet they tossed the one chance away to the wind. Like many leaders down through history his truth was not known until years following his death.

Christian upon Christian died following his truths before it became a reality that Christ died that people would defeat death and ascend to a life of peace if they followed his truths.

Odd as it may seem the Western world still remains the seat and power of Christian truths. In our greatest troubled times people have followed a leader who arose from the masses. Our world has returned to peaceful living regardless of our many differences and troubles.

Principles of our living hinges on the teachings of Jesus Christ. May our leaders in every walk of life continue to uphold them and we shall forever celebrate the glorious Easter.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop

Along with the weather this has been in many ways a black week for people of this area. Monday was not only a blue Monday to start out the week but it was a carry over of a bad binge of a weekend that touched the home of many Oldcastlers and Canadians and world at large.

Many of Canada's servicemen of the past wars as well as world wide the death of Britain's Winston Churchill touched in many corners of the globe.

"Winnie" with his famous V for victory is gone, but a page of history will be written that will no doubt capture the imagination and goal to go by for the future generations.

FRIDAY, JUNE 8, 1956.

Janisse's garage had caught fire following a severe storm.

George Jessop tried to be a little co-operative with a fire engine here this week and ended up with the side of his new car all dented up. George was on his way to the weekly Kiwanis meeting at the Dominion Golf Club, travelling south on No. 3 Highway. Suddenly the sound of a fire engine made George pull to the right side of the road and allow the engine the right of way.

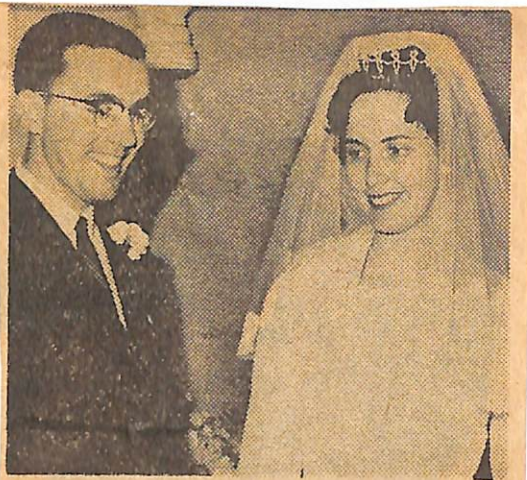

Instead of the fire truck driver taking the left side of the road and continuing on his way, he swerved to the right and slammed into George.

The engine was a Windsor Fire Department truck heading for the farm of Rene Janisse on Huron Line. Mr.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lavin of Maidstone. Cheryl Blair was the maid of honor and John Lavin, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lavin are residing in Maidstone following a wedding trip to Niagara Falls. The couple were wed in St. Anne's Church. The bride is the former Janet Jessop, daughter of Mr. Harold Jessop of Oldcastle and the late Mrs. Josephine Jessop. Mr. Lavin is the son of

MR. AND MRS. DAVID R. HERSEY
THE WINDSOR STAR, JULY 15, 1964
Hersey-Jessop

Of wide interest was the marriage in St. Stephen's Church of Margaret Lucas Jessop to David R. Hersey. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. William Jessop of Oldcastle, and the bridegroom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Lewis R. Hersey of Loraine Ave. Rev. E. C. Grey officiated at the service, assisted by Rev. W. K. Morrison of Port Stanley.

The bride, entering the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, wore floor-length Chantilly lace and organza, the fitted lace bodice featuring long sleeves and a scalloped Sabrina neckline highlighted with pearls and sequins, and the bouffant skirt edged with lace scallops caught up by rosettes. A pearl and crystal tiara held her illusion veil, which was edged with scalloped lace, and she carried white roses, pink carnations and ivy.

Her sister, Elizabeth Jessop, was her maid of honor, and the bridegroom's cousin, Kimberley Crozier of London, was flower girl.

Dr. Lewis W. Hersey of London was his brother's best man and John Park, Jon Levine and the bride's brother, Charles Jessop, were ushers.

After a reception in Tully Hall of the church, Mr. and Mrs. Hersey left for a weekend wedding trip. They will live in London for the summer, going to Barrie in the fall to take up permanent residence.

Guests from a distance at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Philip Major and Mrs. Charles Palmer of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Crozier and their children and Dr. and Mrs. Lewis W. Hersey and their children of London, Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Morrison of Port Stanley and Thomas Holmes of Chelsea, Mich.

This community was saddened Thursday afternoon by the death of Carson Jessop, 54 years old, in Hotel Dieu after a long illness. Carson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jessop, was a lifelong resident of North Talbot Rd. He received his elementary school education at S. S. No. 6 Sandwich South (now the Percy McKee Public School). He graduated from Windsor Vocational school and became a member of the Oldcastle Co-Operative Office Staff, which position he held prior to his death. In his younger days, he was a valued member of the Oldcastle Titans and always took a great interest in hockey. For many years, he wrote a weekly column "Oldcastle Highlights" for the Essex Free Press which was eagerly read and enjoyed by all its subscribers. Carson had a flair for writing and would have gone to the top in the newspaper world, but his eyesight kept him back. He was a faithful member of Our Lady Of Mount Carmel Church. Surviving are his beloved wife, the former Mary Austin and 2 brothers, Marshall of Streeville and Manson of Windsor, to all of whom we extend our deepest sympathy. The Funeral services were held from Janisse Brothers Funeral Home to Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church. Monday morning was largely attended. His pastor and friend for 16 years Rev. P. J. Donovan officiated at the Requiem Mass. Interment was in Heavenly Rest Cemetery.

It is with deepest regret and sincere sympathy to Mrs. Carson W. Jessop (Mary Austin), wife and brothers Marshall and Manson in the sudden passing of a beloved husband, Carson, and beloved brother. It has been a long time since this community has been saddened to such a degree, as the news of passing of Carson, spread rapidly. He had written the Oldcastle Column, for years and it was a "first" for the hundreds of subscribers to the Essex Free Press and he will be sincerely missed. Carson had a sense of humour unmatched by any reporter and often was re-copied by the Star. The long queue of friends, acquaintances and relatives at the funeral home all Saturday and Sunday, and the abundance of beautiful floral tributes and his large funeral on Monday morning at Our Lady of Carmel Church, surely showed the love and affection for an ace-high citizen and christian gentleman. A good sport, having been a good baseball player, a friendly person who always had a kind word, when he met a person and fine linguist with a good sense of humour. So its "thirty" to Carson, but, who will be remembered for many a year. It is good news to hear that Manson Jessop, manager of Oldcastle Co-op, is showing improvement in Grace Hospital. Keep getting well, you are indeed needed, even more than ever now, for your family and friends.

Diane Jessop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jessop, and cheer leader for the "Teck" football crew, cheered hard and "Midge" strutted her stuff, but still the "Teck" eleven were outclassed by Kennedy eleven, who, in turn, were downed at the W.O.S.S.A. meet in London. Just the same, win or lose, "Midge" had a chance to become a local headliner for one day, and now is just another bird dog, taking closer looks at the 6th concession fence posts and wondering where she left off.

Employees of the Ford Motor Company in this area were jubilant that they would return to work soon, following long negotiations that lasted three months. Working on an adage that one must lose something to gain, points to a different outlook on union-company relations in the Windsor area in the future. Reports are that some of the housewives gained in the strike, more so than working hubby during the strike. Union vouchers gave momma a chance to keep tab on her needs in the home and the man who tipped his pay-check away was lost for a time.

In Arms

The old battle of city-bred and rural-bred people broke out in the township again the past month. Tax payers bordering Howard avenue clashed with the School Board over differences of opinion, the past week. Some taxpayers wanted to transfer their assessment to Ivor Chandler School in Sandwich West Township. One of the main reasons was over bathrooms which the School Board has promised to refurbish. From reports there were many other differences but the promise of bathrooms seems to clear the air some.

Country peddlers that once roamed the countryside are back again in circulation, but just in a little different aspect. Many are immigrants who are forced to sell wares to make their way in this country. Some of the finest Irish linens are displayed at prices well reduced. Beautiful handworked cloths that have taken hours of work have been purchased by some of our locals at a price that local shops would shove to the limit.

Canada and the U.S.A., the fairland of the world, is the goal of many of our immigrants, but they also find that one must have money to live here and the exchange of European cash limits many a newcomer as he arrives here.

Television this past week on Channel 9 produced a picture of a glory of a forgotten era in this district. Many gents who at one time found work on the famous Kenilworth and Devonshire racetracks some time ago well remember the famous race between Man of War and Sir Barton. That race was shown and the outcome of the great Man of War winning. Racetracks in this county have since gone out of existence and today both great tracks are just a pile of weeds and rubble. Fond memoirs can be recalled of the show places of the county at one time and the many men employed that these places could be something to be proud of. The sport of kings no longer is here.

Pete recently built a new home and a hive of bees has taken possession of his old home. From reports Pete claims "he still has plenty to learn about the striped jets of the honey world."

Our old grandfather could likely show Pete some points if he were alive. Even granddad would lose his temper when the bee was in the wrong mood and decided granddad's cuss words were not music either.

Green may be the color that goes in harmony with St. Patrick's Day of the Irish next Tuesday but around this part of county very little green dots the countryside to harmonize with, "My Wild Irish Rose." Wearing of the green though seems to have gone out though and many of the solid Irish just seem to take it as another day. One of the big things of St. Patrick according to the legend was his driving the snakes out of the Emerald Isle and if he was here today we believe good old St. Pat could drive a lot more snakes out of humanity.

Things never yet have got straightened out as to whether the learned saint was French or Irish by decent.

Regardless of race St. Patrick was a great man for the Irish and a greater people could not be his symbol. Wit, smiles and a fire that explodes ilke a cannon all go to make those that are of Irish breed. "God bless 'em, we need a lot more of 'em."

Residents of the Township called the dog-gone area are complaining about the new by-law of being tied to a chain. Most of Mr. and Mrs. Fido and family complain in loud barks at this unfair treatment of their masters. Mrs. Rooch says now she cannot take her family out walking in the local groves. Mr. Terrier claimed his friends the Cat family can go where they please without any law touching him. Old man Boxer yells loudly that its no fun raising a leg on the back porch and not on a thistle bush.

Oh well folks, civilization has come to the local dog-gone area and sniffing local roses and chasing local cats is out so Mr. Police pup signs and yells loudly to no avail.

Many township whites read of the U. S. A. troubles of integration of races and thought this is a far cry from here. Windsor is tossing to the winds for its new community centre and its over-flow population will be moving to outlying townships which include many colored people. Already the local locality has found that out, from recent reports, as colored people are purchasing property in Sandwich South. Regardless of the consequences of the Windsor move, communities must keep in mind that the Lord did not make us all the same color, language or creed. Heads must be kept with tact, respect and human understanding, or the Ku Klux Klan of hate and prejudice will raise its ugly head even here.

One of our local farm wives recently noticed her husband spending a lot of time discing close to one of the farm buildings and she was curious to know why. "What's all the extra work for pappie." Pappie promptly was angered at momma telling him how to farm his land and told her "she was long on hair and short on brain and to promptly mind her own dishes." Pop was doing the extra work near the buildings because now and then he got extra thirsty and he had some extra special thirst quencher hidden in the near-by building.

People who love Essex County rural communities are more and more turning away from Windsor for their business. Farmers are tired of the sound of "strike" because they know that for every strike is a rise in price for something they buy.

Labor needs organization to keep up the standard of living but bull-dozer methods of dragging other parts of the country to its high cost of living is of no credit.

The sooner we forget "strike" and get down to business, of honor, co-operation, and live and let live and being proud of the community we build and live in the sooner life will be worth living and a more peace of mind we will receive.

Reporting of the loss of Detroit and Windsor industry losses throughout the past years does not seem to warn the leaders of labor.

Windsor and Detroit are becoming places for industry to call hands off, these are no places for us to settle.

Border towns have a name for rough tough reputation and no place for a decent citizen to live in.

Unless these two communities soon stop going around with a labor chip on the shoulder their industry will be nil.

Members of the Shur-Gain, dealers of Essex and Kent County paid a visit to CJSP radio station at Leamington on Monday evening last.

Many of the County's farmers depend a great deal on the Leamington station each day for farm markets and valuable information.

Without a doubt the Leamington station is for Essex County and Canada which has been needed in this area for some time. Canadian news and information for Canadians makes locals feel like Canadians.

John Garton, former Essex County Baseball League star and sports announcer, renewed old acquaintances along with manager Al Bruner and announcer Stewart Brandy as well as other CJSP personalities.

Essex County folk should pay a visit to this fine radio station to realize what can be done with nothing into something over a short period of three years. Visits can be arranged very easily with the station management.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop
Merry Christmas

Once again we of the Christian world have come to the birth of Jesus Christ the Saviour of mankind. December 25th over 2,000 years ago to parents very poor and born in a stable came this God and man to bring a message and teaching that has lasted down thru the ages.

We put away our daily work to crowd hundreds of churches with many different religions and races to pay homage to this human being that did wonders that no man has duplicated since.

Healing the sick, raising people from the dead and teaching his flock this man lived but a short life of 30 years.

Those days people waited a long time for the "Messiah" to come as their Saviour yet when his wonders were shown to them they refused to believe in him. Crucified on a lonely mound beside those of thieves this man died that people would be saved of sin and his teachings would last until the end of time.

Since that birthday when wise men brought incense, myrrh, and gold, the custom of giving to show good will of one another has remained in the Christian world. People who do not believe in Christ today live and prosper in a world where the teachings of Christ are upheld. Just as a small light flickers in the dark the word and teachings of Christ lead people to truth and peace. We live in an age of push buttons and atomic science but as long as men still believe in Jesus and teachings of good will, we still light the way of darkness in insecurity and unbelief.

Two factions today hover in the world, that of democratic living where the light still flickers and that of the communistic worlds where the word of Christ is stamped out. Not perfect as the Lord would have it the seed of democratic living still prevails but it must never relax its guard for an instance. Many of our brethren within the Christian world take the birth of Christ as a sham by believing and on the other hand lead lives of drunkenness and upholding the world of material things. Should the world of material goods become our god then the teachings of Christ will become a world of downtrodden, suffering degrading peoples. May this Christmas be a most happy one to you and yours and may the light of Christ shine on you as never before.

"Geese Are In"

Many of us who love this county have yet to see the wonder of Canada's goose resting at the Miner Sanctuary. We who have been lucky to witness their wonderful bit of nature will always cherish its memory and think of the thing that Mr. Miner did for our wild life here in Canada as well as Essex County.

Canada is known and advertised just by this piece of preservation for its famed goose. When you think of Canada you always think of its graceful goose that rides high in the famous formation it is known for every fall.

Winter can be clocked as sure as we have four seasons by the return of the geese from its winter nesting place far up in the Hudson Bay area. Here in this sanctuary the geese are arriving by the thousands day and night to rest and feed at this famous "goose motel" on their way to the southern climates for the winter. Presently around five thousand or more are putting up for a rest right in the broad sight of thousands of people and cars. No fear of hunters or other dangers is a worry to them they know the Miner Sanctuary is a place of peace and prayer.

Each year the hunter kills off the wild life we understand to preserve balance of life but we wonder as we see these birds of grace drop gently and return. We wonder if killing is the thing to do to preserve balance and peace. Nations and people have tried killing one another off through the years by war in an effort to gain peace and freedom. Somehow it appears as if our wild creatures can teach us a mighty lesson. Stay at peace and contentment and there will be no worry. Instead of working to satisfying our lives with the mighty "buck" maybe a little thought to peace and contentment would do more good.

November 11th has passed but to many of us who served Canada's fighting forces it is a sad day of recollection and days also of fond memories of many good buddies sleeping among the poppies in foreign soil.

Time passes quick and too often people forget the hundreds of men maimed and crippled for life in Canada's hospitals.

We cannot bring back a life but a few minutes of silence and prayer for those who paid dearly for the life we live today. Finding a place to send a few packs of cigarettes or gifts of books or magazines or letters to a friend far off for Christmas can always help.

Twisting hoops and wriggling hips has taken the country by storm. Every place you look the youngsters are twirling the hoola hoop like mad. Many of our senior citizens have even gone so far as to try putting their creaking curves through the hoop. Sorry to say most of us end up in a heap on the hard soil below. Mom, who has added a few extra pounds, might give dad a new outlook on life when she starts twirling her hips in the hoop.

Duck Stuff.

North Talbot Road has a new kind of sentinels or watch dogs that parade, especially every morning. People who use this road find themselves coming to a sudden halt at the bottom of the new overpass. Parading in twos and threes, marching back and forth are a flock of ducks, which laugh in the face of oncoming cars. You put on the brakes and yell "shoo," and all you get back is a duck standing up on his hind legs flapping his wings and giving you a duck laugh of "quack, quack." Drivers wonder who the quack is but soon find out they mean you. Most drivers ease up on the speed and give the waddlers the right of way, but now and then we find the odd duck has gone to his duck heaven because some hurry up driver won the argument.

Duck or no duck one would miss this happy gang either sneering at you for the right to travel the road or chatting to another about duck business and crowding the Burke brothers' front porch.

We actually heard one say to the other one morning: "Wonder

Prices Improve for Wheat Farmers . . .

Robert Jessop, of Windsor, chairman of the board of directors of the Essex County Wheat Growers' Association and Robert Butter, of Kent County, 1st vice-chairman of the Ontario Wheat Marketing Board at the Essex County Growers' annual meeting. In the background between them is Russell Rogers, of Kingsville, chairman of the Ontario Wheat Producers Marketing Board.

Price of the 1978 crop of wheat will be almost twice that of the 1979 and Chairman of the Ontario Wheat Producers Marketing Board, Russell Rogers of Kingsville said the 1979 outlook is good.

He was speaking to about 120 Essex County growers at their annual meeting Thursday.

Rogers predicted the final total they receive will be about $4. per bushel. The final price for the 1977 crop was $2.26 per bushel. The growers marketed a record 32 million bushels in 1977 compared to only 12 million in 1978 which is now being marketed by the board.

Yield was cut by poor weather conditions which curtailed the acreage planted in the fall and killed much of that during the severe winter of '77-78.

Rogers attributed the price increase to higher prices for domestic wheat, the wheat used in Canada for manufacture of food products, and export wheat.

The price for domestic winter wheat presently is $4.35 a bushel. The price growers receive is based on the average of domestic and export prices.

Recently the federal government announced it will make stabilization payment of 87 cents per bushel on the 1977 crop. When that crop was being marketed the export price was between $2.55 and $2.65 per bushel.

Rogers predicted the 1979 harvest of wheat at 25 million bushels and he expected world prices would remain good.

To cut transportation costs for producers, the marketing board will try to make direct export sales from elevators on Great Lakes ports, Rogers said.

The cost of marketing the 1977 crop was about 30 cents per bushel for domestic wheat and 80 to 90 cents for export.

More wheat can be used as animal feed in Canada to expand the domestic market, and the board is sponsoring a trade mission to increase markets in England and Italy, Rogers said.

The wheat board will meet representatives of United Co-operatives of Ontario in March to discuss their new grain terminal in Windsor.

The Hare Raisers 4-H Club held their May 18 meeting at the Nelson home. Following the pledge we introduced ourselves to Christopher Kirwan who is our newest member. Then the secretary and press reporter gave their reports.

We went over our display board from last year and talked about ideas for a new one. Alan talked about different kinds of rabbit food. We had a quiz with bubble gum as the prize.

Then it was outside to check on Andrea and Renee's sunflowers that they planted in rabbit manure. We also checked on the does, hoping there will soon be baby bunnies.

Our next meeting will be at a barbecue at Alan Jessop's house where he will help us set up our rabbits for judging.

By the time this penning has been read St. Valentine's Day will be over and all the Valentine cards will be either discarded or piled up in the old cupboards. Just the same the thought of the merry Saint and his dart shooting pal Cupid will still remain.

Love and its wonderful thought can mean many things, even in this so-called modern world.

Possibly it could mean the little blue-eyed blonde who sat ahead of you in your school days. "Yeah" you pulled her hair or stuck her curls in the ink-well but look you are now all knotted up in a thing called a wedding and probably three or four "Indians" tearing the house apart to prove it.

Love of a girl, love of a flower, a dog or cat, or horse, or a dear friend it can all mean many things but it still is spelled the same way in each heart a different way.

Family life at one time was a back bone of a nation but today in many western laws it seems something to tear down.

Marriage and love seems an old fashioned idea and to sanctify of a wedding ceremony seems to be just something that is made to be broken.

Our laws of marriage are becoming easier every year to break and St. Valentine or Cupid and the word "Love" means anything is hard to tell in the future. Too many folk only look at love as the movies predict it and instead of looking to the future of ten or fifteen years off.

That blue-eyed blonde may be the hand that rocks the cradle and you also have to bring in the bacon that is love in a big nutshell.

Merry Christmas

This year with Christmas and New Year's falling on Friday we will wish the seasons greetings a little early in the only way we know how.

People will write thousands of Christmas cards and go wild in an effort to find that yearly present. Amid all the glitter and colour of the yuletide season and the coming of St. Nick, there is still one part of Christmas that is the main thing to remember, why we celebrate December twenty-fifth.

Possibly in this fast day and age in too many homes the birth of Christ is pushed in the background amid all the glamour and colour.

Without the coming of Christ people of to-day would still believe as the pagans did two thousand years ago. Looking up to a golden dog or ox and believe that they are our redeemers.

We go back to the Bible which regardless of our modern day and age is still the book of truth that will last as long as Christians wish it to last. Discoverers of truth are still finding the truths of the Bible unearthed in the Holy Land to-day.

Mary and Joseph of a simple poor people born with a Son that was to become both God and human being. Born to suffer on a cross that the truth still lives on. Here in the Western hemisphere his truths although taught in many forms or religions is still taught to us who call ourselves Christians.

People are swayed by many other isms but merely because man refuses to believe in himself and his own destiny.

Darkness two thousand years ago was shoved away by the coming of this man who healed the sick, made the deaf to hear and raised the dead. People of a down trodden race were given a Redeemer and the Messiah and yet some refused to believe. No man has been able to do these things since and likely no man ever will unless he is sent by God to do so.

To-day nations wrangle over peace, those of Christian faith against those of the unbelievers. Could these men of nations sit down and work with the truths of Christ then peace on earth, good will toward men would be just as true as the verses of the Bible.

Merry Christmas to all and may your New Year be the happiest ever.

Dec 18. 59

Merry Christmas

Each year we pen extra words at this time, because it only seems easy to write about things that are true as day and night.

We wonder if all these words are so much "Blarney" or if writing about Christmas means only a dollar bill, that extra drink of spirits or the heavy laden Christmas table.

If you look at Christmas as a time to spend lavishly with money you cannot afford, you are not a true Christian.

If you can afford the extra spending and give in the spirit of being generous and at the same time believe in the teachings of Christ, you are a Christian.

If you give some little gift with a smile and mean it then you are a Christian.

Just to gobble until your stomach groans and drink like a human gone "daffy" and never see the inside of lighted Christian church, you cannot be called a true Christian.

We go back to the days of the birth of Jesus and we find that Jesus was not born amid the glitter of the modern day Christmas.

Humble birth in a stable among barn animals on a bed made of straw. God sent this saviour of man to earth to parents of humble belongings, not to parents who could lavish him with money, a ranch type home or a college education.

Over the years, especially in the Western world, Christmas has become in many homes just a day for Santa Claus, extra pay cheques and a day to watch the Rose Bowls on parade on TV with a beer.

Here in the seat of freedom of belief we sometimes forget the true meaning of Christmas. We forget, in many nations, that thousands of people would give a lot just to enter a beautiful home of Christ, the church, and hear those beautiful carols and bow down and pray in beauty of Jesus.

Hundreds of pastors of Christian churches are preparing for this beautiful birth throughout the Christian world. For some reason or other it seems the only time of the year he will see the church full and he will ponder what makes a human forget his story that is as true as the men who wrote it in the Bible.

God willing, we wish all a Christmas of joy, of bounty, of safety and the love of a spirit, made man and truth that Christians shall forever uphold.

UN Birthday"More We Are Together Happier We Will Be"

On Saturday, October 24, the United Nations observed its eighth birthday. The organization, successor to the former League of Nations, is currently meeting crisis after crisis as its members attempt to find solutions for the problems besetting the world.

To mark the birthday, Ford Graphic conducted a number of "roving reporter" interviews with Ford of Canada employees. The question asked them was "What is your opinion of the United Nations?"

Here are their answers:

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Esping and Mr. and Mrs. Carson Jessop journeyed to visit Mrs. Ollie Tansley at Beattie Haven at Wardsville. Ollie seemed in fine health and is happy at the beautiful surroundings of Beattie Haven and asks about her many friends here. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Tansley and Mrs. Frank Tansley, of Windsor, also paid Ollie a surprise visit.

Yours truly and cousin Jim got into a game of horse shoes and found out that we are Windsor heathens as they don't play cards or horseshoes at Wardsville on Sundays. Just the same we saw a good New York Yankee and Cleveland ball game on TV got off a couple of them danged stories to our auntie and was glad to see her happy with her many senior friends and their cheerful Beattie Haven staff.

In the meantime if you see the former Dora Banwell and her Reverend husband sometime tell them to say a prayer for us that we may reform our Essex County ways and sorry that we did not have time to stop and see her.

In one's travels on a off beat day and a strange place and to meet old friends never fails to arouse happy feelings in this old pen pushers heart. We bumped into Jack Shaw and wife and Jack's sister from Baltimore at Chatham. Mrs. Shaw was much surprised to find her own sister in the same place and not knowing her own kin was also about four or five tables away.

The last we saw of Jack that plate he was ready to tie into was no grape fruit juice diet and some that we gobbled was visa versa or some of the same and if we tried to buy a suit at Jack's store a few minutes after, the tape would sure have to be increased at the belt line.

are talking them over together is the important thing. In other words, the more we get together the happier we will be."

Accomplished Much

A member of the maintenance engineering sub-division, Marshall Jessop, said: "I think that so far the United Nations have accomplished a great deal. The one place they fail is in not being strict enough when a crisis arises. They show hesitation at these times and when this happens the more aggressive nations seem to dominate the assembly."

MAN and HIS MACHINEJessop Operates Giant "Copycat"

While little boys and girls in school are frequently punished for copying, Don Jessop of the tool room gets paid for it.

A hydro-tel is the machine Don operates, but it could very well be hailed as the giant copycat of Plant 8. Its purpose, Don explained, is to reproduce, by means of a tracer and spiral cutter, the shape of a master die onto a piece of cast iron or tool steel.

65,000 Pound Copycat

With this introduction, Don went on to explain the workings of this giant 65,000 pound copycat.

"When a die or tool needs to be fashioned, the master pattern is placed on the right side of the hydro-tel. Similarly, the die to be fashioned is clamped securely on the left side of the machine. This done, two arms representing a tracer and a cutter are brought to rest on the parts. On the master die rests the tracer; on the metal die is a cutter ranging in size from 1/8 to four inches in diameter."

The master die is made either in the tool room in Windsor or in the United States as the case may be.

At this point, the $95,000 machine is ready to go to work. Hydraulically operated, the machine once set becomes its own master, and Don needs only to keep a close vigilance to check that the cutter and tracer remain well on the dies.

Follows Every Contour

With the machine in motion, the tracer begins to travel over the entire surface of the master die following every contour, groove and hollow. Simultaneously, the cutter bites deep into the metal die, and cuts the same form and shape as that of the master die. In this fashion an exact replica, accurate to 1/1,000 of an inch, is obtained.

Operators of the four hydro-tel machines in Plant 8 are skilled craftsmen. In the case of Don Jessop, his experience gained in the tool room and trade school has proved invaluable.

Single, his great love in life, besides his machine, of course, is motor cycles.

Killed in Germany

Holiday season is a happy season for some and to others a time of sadness and unhappy memories.

Word was received, this past week, of the death of Leo Jansen's father. Mr. Jansen was instantly killed in an automobile accident in Germany while on business there.

Leo is one of Holland's immigrants and has been employed here in the mill at the Oldcastle Co-op for the past year. Our Dutch friend has made many friends among his customers and employees since his stay in Canada.

Much sympathy is extended to Leo and may the pain of his sorrows be eased by his years here in Canada.

The Jansen family in Holland owned a grading factory that graded apples and other fruits. Their business took them to many parts of Europe.

GARDEN CLUB AWARDS—Twenty-three members of the Forest Glade Greater Windsor Junior Garden Club received awards from the Greater Windsor Horticultural Society last Wednesday. The youngsters received certificates for their participation in horticultural competition and their work in the community. Above are Kathy Bryan, 10 (front), Jimmy Pegg, 9 (second row), Marty Cotey, 10, Bob Bryan, 11, Jerry Jessop, 10, Shaun Cotey, 10 (third row left to right), and Brian Craig, 14, Peter Patterson, 16, and Glenn Switzer, 15 (rear right to left). Absent are Chris Kool, 14, Danny Kool, 12, Chris Snyder, 13, Danny Blair, 14, Ticia Blair, 10, Brent Howe, 10, Laird Lake, 11, Graham Patterson, 13, Billy Craig, 14, Greg Murphy, 17, Liz Fraser, 16, Lindsay Wilkinson, 16, and Cheryle Renfrew, 10.

This is the home of Ken Jessop of 4475 Howard Avenue, Windsor and is rented by his daughter, Mrs. Norman Dobson.

Over the years, the house has not seen as many changes as the area in which it is situated. The house was built about 125 years ago by a pioneer in Essex, John Franklyn Jessop. He originally settled on the other side of Howard in a log cabin which he and his family built by hand.

John Jessop had 12 children, six boys and six girls. The 300 acres of his settlement were eventually divided among the boys. One son, William Leslie, had two sons, one of whom is Ken, the present owner of the home.

The second son, Robert, lives a few houses down on Howard and enjoys farming 38 of the original 300 acres. Both sons rent and farm about 325 acres in the vicinity of this white-framed house. Originally, the house was made of wood, but was later recovered with aluminum siding. At one time, it was one of three houses on Howard Avenue. Now there are more than 25 homes in the immediate area as well as a string of farms.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop

SEASON'S GREETINGS

Old Highlights each year just likes to forget the ills, the deaths, the funny jokes and everyday happenings in this old column just once a year.

Christmas has rolled around very fast to people in a busy world of business, sports, politics and getting up everyday to the alarm clock or the crow of the rooster.

This time of the year can be ever so happy to some and to some it can be the saddest.

Years go and come, scenery changes, lives change and the world changes but in the Christian world the teachings of Christ lives on regardless of how much this commercialized outlook puts on.

Throughout the Christian world the divided faiths will once again ready their churches for some of the most beautiful ceremonies that have come down the ages to celebrate the birth of God's given Son.

All the outside world glitters with lights, teeming shoppers, excited children and readiness for feasts one cannot imagine how much.

Truly though, the spirit of Christmas is not in the busy city hub-bub. Enter the church of your choice with its flickering candles, its serene quietness, the soft prayer of your pastor or the beautiful carols sang by trained choirs, then you will find Christmas and what Christ intended for the world.

This is the modern world you argue. One cannot compare the days of Christ with 1964, you claim.

Oh Yes, this is 1964 but the teachings of Jesus Christ holds as much today as it did almost two thousand years ago.

Break away from those teachings of this healer of the sick, teacher, forgiver of sins and your life will be as empty and as lonely as a man in a space-ship.

When the human being breaks away from kindness, forgiveness, faith, hope, charity and prayer, it is a return to a world of hostility that is foreign to any true Christian.

So far here in the western hemisphere we are free to believe in God and Christ and to worship as we choose. On this week before Christmas there are thousands of humans ever in fear of free worship throughout the world.

People live and prosper in the same world who do not believe as Christians. Those same people yet respect the laws that came from the teachings of Christ.

Christians must forever cling more strongly to the teachings of Christ, that freedom of thought and prayer will never be challenged to infinity as it is today in some areas of the world.

Rulers and Nations of Christian teachings through the pages of history have time and again thrown the Christmas Spirit of Christ to the wind by war and hate and greed and yet have revived that this man and God's teachings still survive and go on to a better world.

May your life be enriched by the Christmas Spirit and carry forth to a Happy and prosperous New Year.

Jerry Jessop, 9, and prize-winning vase of flowers

For nine-year-old Jerry Jessop, leisure is spare time in garden

Most nine-year-old boys spend their leisure time on skateboards, or in front of the television.

Not Jerry Jessop, however. The Sandwich South Township lad prefers to spend his spare time in his own garden, and the efforts of his green thumb paid off when he won three of seven junior classes in the most recent Greater Windsor Horticultural Society flower show.

Jerry, 29 other youngsters under 16 years, and nearly 180 adult society members participated in the show, the third of five to be held this year by the society.

For Jerry, the big win capped four years of participation in the society's junior club. He won a trophy for the best junior garden — a 16-by-20-foot plot at his home — and awards for the best vase of flowers and the best container of vegetables.

The Grade 4 student at Ivor Chandler School became interested in horticulture at the prompting of his mother.

"My mom asked me if I'd like to do it. It's fun to see the things grow."

Jerry was given seeds for four types of flowers and vegetables by the society, and did all the work himself on his garden, said Violet Shaw, president of the society's junior club.

Jerry said he spends two hours a day in the garden when he has the time. He also helps his father, who is a farmer, with chores. He would like to be a farmer when he grows up.

"I really think he'll become a horticulturist; he's a born one," says Mrs. Shaw.

In the adult classes of the same show, society member Leo Lemire won five trophies in various categories.

A red Toro rose won the Queen of the Show trophy for Frank Stuhmueller, Helen Hornyak won the novice class for the best rose in that category and Marie Johnston had the best arrangement.

Farmers, marketing boards and groups fight for changes

THE ESSEX FARMER, FEBRUARY 26, 1985

Robert Jessop Provincial Director

By Lisa Haskell

Essex wheat producers and committee members alike agreed that farmers must work together and cooperate with the Ontario Wheat Producers Marketing Board and other farm organizations such as the Ontario Federation of Agriculture to put pressure on the federal government to recover some economic stability in agriculture.

"Young farmers as well as older farmers have to get off their butts and start sharing the responsibility to do something about it," Tim Renaud told 75 Essex County Wheat Producers at a meeting in Essex, recently.

Renaud said with the current high debt picture and production coupled with low incomes, changes must be met to stop the misery in the industry.

He predicted that farmers have been dropping out of agriculture at a 45 per cent reduction over the past four years. Renaud estimated in 10 years, the percentage of farmers would be cut in half again.

"It is up to us (farmers) to convince commodity groups to put pressure on the government. The experts tell us where agriculture is going when they aren't even in agriculture," Renaud said.

Stoney Point farmer, Richard Pinsonneault told Board provincial director Robert Jessop the agricultural system has not worked and the system must be changed to free farmers from soaring production costs while trying to earn an adequate living when incomes don't improve with inflated operation costs.

"Farming has always been the way it is today. It is losing the young farmer generation, who can't make it in farming," said Pinsonneault adding farming will dwindle to nothing if this situation continues.

He further added that his "boys," who were interested in farming, were taught at the Ridgetown College of Agricultural Technology how to produce and be efficient but never taught how to market the products.

"There has to be production control. If you haven't got a buyer, you can't sell," he said.

"We have to fight this with facts and figures of what's happening to us Canadians," stated producer Russell Rogers. Marketing Boards should work as one board and convince farm organizations to "lock horns and fight for us. We must work together with no holding back," Rogers advised producers.

ROBERT JESSOP, Windsor - Yes, I think so, at least sooner or later, unless world conditions change. But if the pork producers opted for supply-management, it's likely they'd lose close to half the export market.

"Do you think supply-management is inevitable for the pork industry?" Mar. 2. 82. Essex Farmer

This coming Sunday is the annual day for Mothers all over to celebrate. Only one advice, when all the clan comes home to roost, don't expect dear "Maw" to do all the cooking and dishes while you bask in the good food and gentile celebrations.

Mothers should have this day to enjoy her urchins' visit and just be the supervisor of her own big day.

Without that mother in the family, home can be a dull place. No more dishes rattle, or sewing machine to hum and no shoulder to cry upon when you have no other place to turn with troubles.

Occupation of a mother in a modern household might seem small to other occupations of secretary, clerk, business woman or professional people but believe you me a mother is all those and more not mentioned.

When that Maw, "Mudder", "Ma" are what you may call her, brought you into the world she performed an act of God that even amazes the medical profession today.

Mothers are pretty much the same throughout the globe, they provide their young ones with the loving care that sends you out into the world as a man and a woman, mature and ready to face life.

Behind every man of the world today was a patient mother who rocked a cradle with a hand of love and devotion.

Thanks goes out to Mrs. Fred Mitchell (Doris Jessop) for compliments in your recent letter received.

Happy Easter

Christian religions will celebrate the rising of Jesus Christ from the tomb and the victor over death and for the redemption of mankind on earth. Sunday of this coming week thousands will bow down in prayer to this humble teacher and Son of God who layed his life down for those who believe in him will reign with him as the Messiah for all that is good and true and beautiful in life and the hereafter.

In this day and age after hundreds of years of distrust among one another in divided Christian beliefs many of these faiths are now feeling one another out in the effort to get back to the original beliefs set down by the Son of God instead of the many man made religious laws that history and political divisions created.

Man is a social being and also one of the most dangerous animals of the universe that can destroy himself and those about him. Jesus taught love among one another and that all men were brothers under the sun regardless of race creed or colour.

Regardless of all the truths taught, printed and preached because of the sins of selfish interests, ignorance and mistrust down through Christian history it remains a divided monument today to one of humanities greatest chances and richest beliefs.

With the coming of the ideology of Communistic principals and the invention of the atom bomb and the world of nearness in travel, today's Christian now realizes he must depend more and more on his fellow-man and the unity of thought and preservation. Changes in thought and outlook for the betterment of mankind will come in leaps and bounds but the Christian must not look back but forward to something even more unified.

he wishes the words of his Messiah to become the truths of worldly peace.

Happy Easter to All!

$11,533 recovered

Police net half of SW&A loot

By GORD HENDERSON

Two observant Windsor police constables made a discovery Sunday which has resulted in the recovery of more than half the estimated $20,000 taken in a daring armed robbery of the SW and A bus barn last Wednesday.

Three weapons used in the robbery, including a .45-calibre sub-machine-gun, have been recovered along with $11,533.20 and police are confident the discovery will result in the arrest of suspects.

Constables Neal Jessop, 27, and Tom Hartleib, 25, were on cruiser patrol checking properties about 1 a.m. Sunday when they noticed a car parked at the rear of a building at 1706 Langlois Ave.

The 1968 Mustang, parked about 70 feet north of the building, lacked licence plates and the rear end appeared to be very heavily weighted down.

Further investigation by the constables revealed that the Mustang had been stolen on Sept. 6 in London, Ont.

Detectives were called in and the auto was placed under observation until 10.15 a.m. when the car was entered and its licence plates found inside.

Detectives then forced open the trunk and found the money and guns.

The loot recovered included 13 small canvas bags containing hundreds of rolls of nickels, dimes, and quarters. Two large blue bags meant for carrying hockey equipment, also contained large numbers of rolled coins.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop
"MERRY CHRISTMAS"

Each year at this season your old Highlighter sort of dispenses with his regular run of weekly babble to think out like all Christians what Christmas really was and what it means to the modern world of atomic bomb, adventures to the moon, juvenile teen-age thoughts and in other words what it means to not only in our small communities but to a world where Christians rub shoulders with other religions of other denominations of creeds and races and colours.

To some the word Christmas is the time to take a belt out of a bottle and get roaring silly, spend hundreds of dollars and decorate the house and spend needed rainy day money just once a year and then go to the finance company for the New Year. To tots its the old story of the rolly polly Santa Claus with his reindeer up at the North pole waiting to get down the home chimney. Rounds of house parties and stuffed stomachs from loaded tables.

On the other hand it might be some pilgrim in a far off desert plodding along on a camel on the way to Jerusalem to seek once more the home of the word Christmas in some of the most historic spots of the religious world. Amid all the glitter of the Western hemisphere there still will be hundreds who will enter churches to sing the most beautiful music of the season and deep down bow down to pray in memory of the birth of Jesus Christ.

It is not only fitting but essential that this Christmas may be and should be the new awakening of Christianity that has so hopelessly divided over hundreds of years in every Christian nation of the world. In an era of Communistic spread, Christians are now finding how hard it will be to come to a common goal with teachings from Christ that are so simple that a child can understand. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you". "Peace on earth to men of good will or peace on earth and good will toward men". Just as simple as that and yet man will turn those historic teachings around and the human race of male and female would lie, cheat, kill and turn power politics around and try to play God on earth just to be proud of ill gotten ideas of humanity.

Christians no doubt are just as confused as those in the days of King Herod or those of the days of the crucifixion. Man just could not be God and a human being as well and without any doubt it has been proven from the Bible and modern historians that such a thing did take place. Christ's birthday was the coming of the Redeemer and his later teachings set a new standard that spread through much of the known world among the ignorant, kings of realms and the highly educated.

What has happened to Christianity and its divisions has become the most sorest calamity in the history of the world. Peoples and nations of all tongues and races that could have brought about the most wonderful of worlds, instead warred among one another and are today just realizing they could wipe one another out in a matter of hours or days.

Christians and the men who rule its worldly throngs, have failed to continue the true teaching of this greater teacher Christ. Men and man alone has written his own laws into the laws of every divided religion and therein lies its weakest and vulnerable spot. On the other hand it also could be its most strongest points to be able to disagree for the good of the world.

How many times divided Christians will become one and defeat a world despot who threatens to destroy not only Christians but hundreds of other races and creeds who dwell within its realms of the world and the old teachings of Christ will become its strongest, "Good will among men of good will."

Regardless of the many facets of Christianity, its Santa Clauses, decorated trees and its splendor and arrayed cities deep down its peoples still believe as those that were guided by the bright star that led the Wise Men so long ago. This is your Highlighter's belief that offers to all a most MERRY CHRISTMAS and may Christ guide you and light your way wherever you may be.

Farm safety annual

FSA drops safety resolution but plans new program for 1981

By Cheryl Keech Staff Writer

About 30 people gathered for the Essex County Farm Safety Association annual meeting and banquet held January 22 at the Grand Central Hotel, Essex, to hear from new Southwestern Ontario Farm Safety Consultant Steve Zronik.

Mr. Zronik was guest speaker for the night and chose a topic off the traditional realms of speeches at safety meetings. His topic covered his interest in unidentified flying objects or UFO's.

Issues discussed at the meeting were past achievements and future plans for the county club. Harwich resident Robert Goulet, director for area which includes Essex County, gave a report for the area, in which he stated the Association dropped a resolution from Essex County concerning lengths of farm wagons on transportation routes.

"Mr. Goulet said the resolution will be sent back to us, the county members, for re-wording and careful consideration of the facts we presented," Secretary-Treasurer Mrs. Robert Bailey said after the meeting. "We got a lot of flak over the actual meaning of the resolution. Apparently we did not say exactly what we meant in it. We will either re-word it or forget it altogether."

The original resolution sent to the Ontario Farm Safety Association and Company read: "Whereas farmers are now hauling grain in wagons which are as large as a semi-truck, and some farmers pull two or more, which we consider very unsafe, and whereas we shouldn't wait for some serious accident to happen before some action is taken, therefore, be it resolved that the FSA and Company press the government to pass legislation so farmers can only haul one wagon which is 25 feet in length."

Mrs. Bailey said she felt it was the latter part of the resolution that was misunderstood.

Other issues discussed were the FSA's part in working with Massey Ferguson hopefully to eliminate a transmission problem the company is having with a specific machine.

Farm Safety school kits, Mr. Goulet said, it was hoped would be out in all schools within two years. Mrs. Bailey reported at one of the last Essex meetings that the kits were already making headway in Essex.

Mr. Goulet also reported that the Association had been working with the Occupational Health and Safety organization on the classification of farmers. He said he had been working with other groups, as well, to try to pinpoint what actually constitutes a farmer.

The Association made the recommendation to all farm safety members that one gauge for measuring silo gases was not enough, Mrs. Bailey said. The Association feels that one tester isn't enough for accurate readings.

A new program is underway for 1981. The program, Accident Rescue on the Farm, will teach firemen, ambulance attendants and police rescue squads ways of aiding farm people who have accidents on a farm. Mr. Goulet said the Association wishes to point out that accidents on a farm can be and are different from other accidents such as an automobile crash.

Farm Safety members agreed, Mrs. Bailey said, that the government's wish to change the label on anhydrous ammonia to poison would not be a good idea. They felt this change would make it more difficult for farmers to obtain the gas for farm use, and that it was not really as dangerous as a poison.

The Essex County branch of the FSA will once again be sending letters to all townships requesting grants, one of the only sources of income the Association has. The other incoming revenue is from the Workmen's Compensation Board which sends 35 cents for each FSA member in a district.

Another new idea for 1981 was proposed by Robert Jessop, Windsor, who said that silver dollars should be given for Farm Safety Association prize safety posters instead of cheques. Mrs. Bailey said cheque-giving has become a problem because those who win the poster contest do not always cash their cheques, but rather keep them for souvenirs. The silver dollar idea would eliminate future problems with bookkeeping.

The FSA will be looking at the constitution this year, she said. The members are not planning any major changes but smaller ones such as changing the wording of the original document from "Farm Safety Council" to "Farm Safety Association."

The Essex County FSA executive will remain the same for the second of their two-year. President is Harlan Nash, R.R. 3, Leamington; Vice-President is Robert Bailey, R.R. 4, Amherstburg; second vice-president is Marie Little; and Secretary-Treasurer, Lydia Bailey.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop
Merry Christmas

Each year your writer sets aside one week of writing local happenings to dwell on the Christmas season's holiday and what it means to a nation and people of Christian faiths throughout the world. Pastors of different faiths will now ready their churches for this great Christian holiday and tell the story of a man and man God whose teachings set a new pattern for the world to live by.

It seems ironical that right now, your writer is reading a book that depicts the events that led to the coming of Jesus in his time in the Holy Land those many years ago.

The "Big Fisherman" written by Lloyd C. Douglas, brings out the social upheaval that came with the coming of Christ. Mr. Douglas who wrote such books as "The Robe", "Dr. Hudson's Secret Journal", "Magnificent Obsession", and many others puts this story down as simple and interesting, that a reader can almost turn back two thousand years, as if it were yesterday.

The Roman Empire expanded far beyond its limits into the Holy Land and enslaved nation after nation, Judea, Macedonia, Asia Minor, Egypt, part of Europe and Arabia were under the heel of the Roman conqueror in the coming of the time of Jesus.

Jews and Arabs hated one another and glowered at one another across the Jordan River as they do yet today. Common people were slaves of the Romans and lashed and beaten to do Rome's bidding.

Empires would flourish, become rich and fall beneath the easy sinful life. Suddenly another leader of men would arise, people would follow and another empire would be born.

The Jewish peoples waited for the Messiah who would lead them from bondage and slavery and the Jewish world would become great again and throw out a Roman tyrant. What the Jewish people did not expect was a simple carpenter to come from humble places and preach peace and forgiveness to lead the world to a social religious upheaval, that became Christianity throughout much of the known world as we know it today.

Great nations flourished since the time of Jesus, France, Great Britain, Spain, Germany, all had their day to colonize and rule.

To-day those great empires are again split and each colony grapes for free rule in one of the greatest social upheavals of all time. Even here in the western world, of the United States the coloured peoples strive to throw off a yolk of oppression that has plagued them for a hundred years.

Christ came to the people to preach, and heal in peace but the ordinary man looked for a great general to lead them in battle, he would not see a man of peace or a healer of wounds become a "Messiah".

People of the modern world look off the same thing to-day, a "Messiah" but they still refuse the leader of peace and peace of mind in a man who preaches or heals in peace.

Abraham Lincoln, John F. Kennedy and many other great leaders are turned down by the common throng and crucified in their modern way because they ask for peaceful means.

Jesus died for what he believed and thousands followed him to still hold the great Christian belief alive, even to-day, amidst a world of unbelievers and subversive leaders and governments who would have it otherwise.

Granted our Christmas is largely commercialized since the day of Christ but it still instills a spirit of giving and cheerfulness that has come down from those days of the Holy Land, believers that started Christianity across the world.

Christ cannot be seen, but his works are forever with us in healing, prayer, forgiveness and right is right.

Journey through the modern hospitals and Christ is at the hand of every doctor who performs his surgery that the ailing may live and be healed. Sit in your modern courts and watch the hand of the law sort the difference of right and wrong.

Watch the thousands who will attend God's churches and pray and listen to God's representatives in their pulpits. Some may not think of Jesus all year round but in the heart at Christmas, he will return to hear of Jesus and his wonderful Christian spirit that surrounds us.

Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year from "Oldcastle Highlights".

Jessop-Chambers Wedding

Saturday evening of May 26th a lovely candlelight ceremony united in marriage Miss Margaret Rose Chambers and Gary Peter Jessop.

Margaret was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Chambers, of Cottam, and Gary the son of Mr. and Mrs. Manson Jessop, of Oldcastle.

Three sisters of the bride were her attendants, Mrs. Kathy Quick, of Petrolia, as matron of honor, and Miss Betty Chambers and Miss Carol Chambers, of Toronto, the bridesmaids.

Wayne Jessop, of Streetsville, cousin of the groom, was best man and Jim Ellis, of Windsor, and Dick Gibb, of Cottam, were groomsmen.

Rev. A. F. Thrower performed the double-ring ceremony and Nelson Shuttleworth, of Maidstone sang "The Wedding Prayer" and the "Lord's Prayer".

The bride was lovely in a white gros grain silk full-length gown and three tier white illusion veil. Her bouquet was tiny yellow rosebuds and white shasta mums and ivy. She wore a single strand of pearls and tiny earrings, a gift from the groom.

The matron of honor and attendants were all in pale yellow linen dresses with matching straw pill box hats. They carried baskets with white and yellow shasta mums and all wore white short kid gloves and white shoes.

A reception was held immediately afterwards for over 100 guests. All sat down at the tastefully arranged tables and enjoyed a lovely meal.

Frank Leal was master of ceremonies and toasts were proposed to the happy couple. Cedric Whittall, of Harrow, proposed the toast to the bride. Rev. Thrower gave a little impromptu speech to close the good wishes from all those present.

The couple left on a short wedding trip. The bride wore a navy blue dress, shoes and purse and straw sailor hat. A coral red coat and a white orchid corsage a gift from the groom.

Entering New School Opportunity to Win Friends

THE WINDSOR DAILY STAR, THURSDAY, AUGUST 27, 1953

Entering college or a new school is a wonderful opportunity to win good friends. Sharing activities of general interest is the first step in forming a bond with strangers and acting naturally and being friendly with both colleagues and school officers is the best way to find and keep one's place. These three students all face

PAQUETTE

It is with deep regret that we record the sudden death of Man son Jessop, aged 52 years, Manager of Oldeastle Co-Op in his room at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, Tuesday, Dec. 1st of a heart attack. He was attending a Seed and Grain Convention at the time. The youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jessop, he was a lifelong resident of Sandwich South. He received his Elementary education at S. S. No 6 and on graduation from the Windsor Vocational School entered the employ of the Oldeastle Co-Op. On the death of his father, he became Manager, which position he held for the past several years. He always took a keen interest in hockey, baseball and golf. He was an outstanding member of the Oldeastle Titans team years ago and excelled as a pitcher and outfielder in his younger days. He had a warm and friendly personality and a quiet sincere manner which endeared him to all who knew him. A faithful member of St. Stephen's Church, he will be greatly missed there by a host of friends who sincerely mourn his passing. He is survived by his beloved wife, the former Phyllis Thompson, a son, Gary, two grandchildren and a brother, Marshall of Streetsville, to all of whom goes the deepest sympathy of the community. Funeral services were held Friday, Dec. 4th, at the Morris Funeral Home, Windsor at 1 p.m. thence to St. Stephen's Church at 1:30 p.m. with Rev N. A. Tilford and Rev Gordon Houghton, a former Rector and close friend, of deceased officiating. About 400 people attended the service in the church. Interment was in the Church cemetery.

One of our local lassies last week took off for the big city of Windsor to take her youngster of some five years to see Santa Claus.

While tripping down Ouellette Ave., the youngster decided to go for a toilet. Ouellette has underground lavatories so she proceeded to usher her tot down the underground stairs. "Mommy are we going to see Santa Claus", she asked about half way down the stairs. Mommy replied, "Yes".

When the tot reached the bottom of the stairs and looked around at this strange place, she asked again. "Is this Santa Claus's palace Mommie?"

JESSOP
From the pages of an old newspaper on the evening of April 2, 1934 a number of our young set enjoyed the light fantasies at the Jr. Haverhill dance held in the Prince Edward Hotel in Windsor.

No doubt this item will bring back many memoirs of the Prince Eddy that now stands in the city of Windsor a vacant building that almost stands out as a blot on the main street of the city. Windsor's social whirl was the Prince Edward Hotel that took in the county and many, many other areas and if the old Prince could talk its stories would be a book of a great masterpiece style. Some of the stories might even tell just how many years have slipped past and whether one is wrinkled, balding or whether the cosmetics and hair dying keeps one up with the hippie, mini or the music that would to-day not compare with 1934.

For instance ask Hazel Libby, Fred Holden, Anna Mae LePain, Ruby Lounsborough, Gladys MacRae, Percy Banwell, Norma O'Neil, Mary Webster, Dora Banwell, Bruce Banwell, Jack O'Neil. Now whether these gay young bloods of 1934 will tell you of the past we are not prepared to say.

Horticultural winners

Five members of the Greater Windsor Horticulture Society's junior club have won prizes in a province-wide competition at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

Violet Shaw, club president, said the five youths took honors for their seed mosaics.

Glen Switzer, 13, of Brimley Drive, took second place for his mosaic depicting a pot of flowers. Flower and vegetable seeds were used.

Other top finishers were: Jerry Jessop, 11, of RR 1, Windsor; Brian and Billy Craig, 12 and 13, of Shenandoah Crescent; and Chris Kool, 13, of Suffolk Street.

The five winning mosaics will be on display at the AKO community centre on Alice Street on Sept. 12 for the fall general meeting of the Society, said Mrs. Shaw.

5 constables for Windsor

Five new constables joining the Windsor Police Department will bring with them two university degrees, a pilot's licence and experience as an alarm installer, security officer and auxiliary policemen.

The men will start Sept. 2 as fourth class constables.

They are: Neal Jessop, 25, of RR 1, Cottam; Ian McIver, 20, of Belle River; Paul Gibbon, 20, John McRobb, 22, and John Leneham, 23, all of Windsor.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

By Carson Jessop

Around the farm front here at Oldcastle things have become rather dull. Almost an inch of rain fell for two days to sog the fields again. Weather reports also show more on the way that will not be looked forward too.

One bright aspect has come out though, this past week, farmers are receiving payments from the Soybean Board on their 1958 crop. Around nineteen cents per bushel has been paid farmers and arriving at the Christmas season does no harm to the much depleted old sock or pocketbook.

With but a week to go on the Christmas holiday, dad so far has growled that he is broke. Mom just takes his growling with an uplifted eye and calmly says, "give until it hurts". Last rush to find presents, hunt up a tree to decorate and prepare for the family to come, keeps "Maw" going about like an old setting hen on too many eggs.

JESSOP

Some of our farmer friends during the winter months more or less conducted a hot stove league on various subjects.

Subjects can become a hundred things including farming, politics and the world situation. Sometimes the hot stove league can get as hot as the stove and as cold as the weather outside.

Out of the melee can come good points for future reference for good and some for just future gas wagging in the breeze.

Now and then the subject gets around to women 'I have known' and the styles of to-morrow's Paris, New York or just plain Mrs. Henpecked husband over on the rear road.

Recently it got around to those new hair doing of what colour shall I wear to-night. Women more or less dress to please their men, whether it be a hair tonic, a slap of rouge, a low neckline or what have you.

Our sod busters though just don't seem to go along with this hair colour business of red today, blonde to-morrow and for "Crying out loud" it just turned brunette.

Some of the gay blades are not so sure now when a guy decides to wed just what his bride to be will turn up with. After all he can trip up the aisle with a blonde and a couple of days or so later, who knows, it might be a red-head that faces him across the breakfast nook.

From the gay blade idea the gals are like the two-tone cars they are "convertibles".

Just the same gals are gals, they provide the variety in life and regardless of all the "gents" howling they are still going to cock their eyeballs when they trip down the street.

Carson Jessop Passes

Carson Jessop, aged 54 years, well known writer of the Oldcastle Highlights, a feature of the Free Press for many years, passed away quite suddenly on Thursday morning of last week, although he had not been in good health for many months.

Death was due to several heart ailments.

Deceased was the eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jessop and had lived in Sandwich South all his life. He was very sports minded, playing for many years with the Oldcastle 'Titans', of which team his two brothers, Marshall and Manson, were also members. He was a gentleman, both on and off the field. His column has been enjoyed by a great number of our readers, he will be greatly missed as I am sure no one will ever take his place, in the same manner as a small district correspondent.

Surviving are his widow, nee Mary Austin; two brothers, Marshall, of Streetsville and Manson Manager of Oldcastle Co-op, a firm founded by their late father and for whom the deceased had worked since Oldcastle Farmers was organized.

Funeral services, in charge of Janisse Brothers Funeral Home were held in Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Burial was in Heavenly Rest Cemetery.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS

In this day and age of fast moving machinery, one thing is forgotten by many a farmer and his neighbours. One most important thing of value, that of making a will.

Time and time again the head of the house will pass on and leave his earthly business for a bewildered wife to carry on.

In other times dad transacted all the farm business and mother looked to the cooking and having lots of kids. When pop went to his heavenly home, poor mother was left sitting out in left field, suddenly in a big turmoil of loss of husband and a stack of papers she knew nothing about.

To-days modern couples are more inclined to do things together and the modern wife becomes the one to carry on the family name with heirs and also is a cracker-jack of a bookkeeper for the family business.

Men today are busy with greasing a picker or fixing a botched up spark plug or having a wrestle with milking parlour gadgets.

Mothers to-day can drive tractors, cars, figure what the price of grain is and do the income tax returns as well.

In later years how much dad made on a bushel of grain was none of the women's business and many a housewife cared less, she was too busy cleaning dirty noses and cooking and sewing.

Just the same it was possibly not selfishness on a man's part in later years, he just thought that a woman's place was in the house.

To-days modern man can be thankful that he has the modern look on women to-day.

If the little battle-axe is the modern woman she should be farm business is thriving because of some of her figuring and being a very close helpmate.

By being that helpmate she is the leaving of an uncomplicated will, will in turn aid her future life in payment for her life-time of being your only friend and devoted wife.

Walter Jessop Passes.

Walter Jessop, aged 71 years, manager of Oldcastle Co-op, formerly Oldcastle Farmers, passed away, in Hotel Dieu, on Friday. He had not been in good health the past few years, however he had only been confined to his bed and hospital the past two weeks.

Deceased was born in Sandwich West, but had resided in Sandwich South most of his life. He was a director of Essex County Automobile Club and a member of St. Stephen's Anglican Church.

He was an avid amateur baseball fan, being one of the organizers of the North Essex League, and organizer of Oldcastle Titans, one of the best amateur teams ever to play in Essex County, in fact he gave up several acres of good farm land, of his farm, for their baseball diamond. If anyone ever wanted a friendly argument on Essex County baseball, all he had to do was to say that the ball players of today were as good or better than the players of 20 to 30 years ago.

Surviving are his widow, the former Eileen Gallen; three sons, Carson, Marshall and Manson, all of Sandwich South, a stepson, Robert M. Gallen, of Owen Sound; two stepdaughters, Mrs. Edward Romiens (Flo), and Mrs. Oswald Davies (Colleen), of Windsor; three sisters, Mrs. Olive Tansley and Mrs. Sadie Peck, of Windsor, and Mrs. Annie McKee, of Sandwich South; a brother, Leslie, of Sandwich West; and six grandchildren.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday, at 1.15 p.m., at the Anderson Funeral Home, Windsor, thence to St. Stephen's Anglican Church for services at 2 p.m., with Rev. J. E. S. Houghton officiating, and burial was in St. Stephen's cemetery.

JESSOP - David and Pam (nee Donison) are overjoyed to announce the safe arrival of a beautiful little girl, Melissa May. Born April 5th, 1983 weighing 8 lbs. 12 ozs. at Met Hospital. Proud 1st time grandparents are Robert and Cathy Jessop, proud 3rd time grandparents Bill and Aileen Donison. Also great-grandparents are Mrs. E. Ditchfield of Georgetown and Mrs. B. Atchison of Windsor. Melissa says Hi to all her aunts & uncles.

Former Resident Honoured
Marshall Jessop, a former resident of this district, brother of Carson, the Free Press Scribe and now of Streetsville Ont. has been recently honoured in a leading industrial news magazine.
An employee of American Motors at Brampton, Ont. has been honoured in his work of the change-over process in production plants. Much of Marshall's work and planning is used by most industrial plants to speed up the work of many modern plants in the change-over process that deal with the blue-printing and planning process.

A Letter Received

The Free Press is in receipt of the following letter, which explains itself:

August 26th, 1961

The Editor,
Essex Free Press.
Sir:

Just to put my friend Carson Jessop and the record straight, there is no move on the part of the new Legion Branch to 'Push for a Liquor Vote' in Sandwich South.

I cannot speak for the local gossip around the cracker barrel, but I can speak for the official meetings, both Executive and of the full Membership of the Metropolitan Branch (594) of the Royal Canadian Legion. All we have done is to write and find out officially for our minutes exactly where we stand in this matter.

We now have a paid up membership of eighty, and have been presented with our charter, so we are looking around for a suitable location.

It might be as well to remind your readers that the Legion Motto is 'Service Before Self' and not 'Beer is Best'.

Our next general meeting is to be held on Thursday evening, September 21st at 8:30 in the Dominion Golf Club, Howard avenue, and any Veteran who qualifies for membership in the Royal Canadian Legion is welcome to attend.

Yours truly,
The Rev. E. C. Grey,
Charter President, Metropolitan Br. (594)

OLDCASTLE CO-OP. OFFERS EXCELLENT SERVICE TO FARMERS IN THIS AREA.

One of the better examples of the Co-Operative plan is the Oldcastle Co-Operative in Oldcastle. Not only has it been a boon to the members, but also to the entire community. Today this is a business of no little consequence, contributing much to the stimulation of business in our part of the province and offering the highest quality merchandise at the best prices.

Through careful buying and by giving consideration to the needs of their members and patrons, this concern under the active direction of Walter Jessop, who has played a big part in the founding, progress and advancement of this popular firm, has made it possible for the farmer of this section to do their business profitably and economically.

For a third of a century the officers and members of this progressive business in Oldcastle have done much to raise the standard of the living conditions of the residents in this part of the province. We wish, in this review, the utmost in congratulations and continued success.

OLDCASTLE HIGHLIGHTS.

By Carson Jessop

This column recently went out of circulation due to an extended vacation not of its own. Some of our faithful readers have been asking what's up and others are just keen enough to turn the page and say "Well I am glad that that blabber mouth shut up." In any case between last June and now hospitals and pills have been a great diet and we wish to thank all our many friends for the little notes, cards and flowers that help any sick guy get well.

Reports are that local veterans will be pushing for a liquor vote in Sandwich South Township.

Some ten years ago the local voters turned the liquor question down flat but it has reared its head again, as a group have founded a new Legion here and want a vote on the question.

Sandwich South remains a novelty as far as the giggle juice is concerned. Seven out of ten people will take a (small) drink in their own home or at outside taverns.

At the same time when it comes to voting for the right to open hotels or beer stores down comes the "boom".

Colchester North, Sandwich West, Anderdon, Sandwich East and Maidstone townships all ring Sandwich South with wet places but good old Sandwich South is supposed to be dry.

No doubt if you visit the local outside taverns you will find more Sandwich Southerners tipping the elbow than natives of the wet townships.

Outsiders wonder why the vote is turned down. Unless its like one tippler claims "The township wants to be good like Toronto the good and its no gooder than the rest."

Probably it goes back in the Township history farther than is realized. When men thought more of drink than church and dropped the women at the church doors while they spent the time leaning on the bar and looking at faces on the floor.

It is no better wet or dry season when men and women want their little sip. "Hell nor high water, they will get it".

Liquor is like any disease man or woman can overdo just like eating so much that now the overweight parlors are coining a million.

So now it remains to be seen if the Sandwich Southerners will still lower the "boom" or have their own beer sipping stations.

One of our recent "Canadians", who now resides on the coast of warm sunny U. S. A. paid us a visit lately. He was asked of the conditions and how he would like to return to Canada. "Never," he replied, "Canada will not give a fellow over forty years a break anymore. Down there, age seems to make no difference and there is much more variety of employment with better wages." Canada is importing immigrants to increase its population and at the same time our own stock goes out the back door. Our immigrants also get wise quick and take off over the border. Either Canadians are wrong or the world's crazy.

Jessop-Geddes Nuptials

In a high noon ceremony on July 6th, in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Essex, Jill Ilene Geddes became the bride of Wayne Franklin Jessop. Rev. Walter Barnes officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gamble I. Geddes, of Essex and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall F. Jessop, of Streetsville, formerly of Oldcastle.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of antique white satin brocade featuring a scoop neckline, short sleeves and a chapel train. A tiny garland of flowers held her French illusion veil and she carried white carnations, lilies of the valley and baby pink roses.

Gayle Geddes, the bride's sister, was maid of honor and Linda Jessop, the bridegroom's sister, Diane Pettypiece and Sandra M. Stewart were bridesmaids.

Neal Jessop, the bridegroom's brother, was best man. Ushers were Richard Gibb and Gary Jessop, cousins of the bridegroom, and John Ferguson.

The reception was held in the Poplar Inn in Cottam. Following a short motor trip the Jessops will live at 22 Cortleigh Blvd., Toronto. For travelling the bride chose a white linen sheath embroidered with pink roses, and pink and white accessories.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. John Bates and Mr. George Patterson, of Toronto, Mrs. Howard Felstead, of Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Raham, of Streetsville, Mr. and Mrs. John Rathbone and family, of Scarborough, Lieut.-Com. and Mrs. Fred Townsend and family, of Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Willmott, of Dunnville and Mrs. D. Cats, dogs and what have you in the animal world often find it comfortable to sleep with their owners in a comfortable bed. Henry Rebidoux who has a small reserve for birds and small animals on his farm in Anderdon Township owns a fawn that outdoes them all.

Henry adopted a fawn about a year ago and the fawn was content to sleep around the house on the floor but now it finds Henry's bed much more pleasing. Henry now reports the fawn has a house of its own with a bed to sleep in and the sheets are even changed once a week.

Most people claim animals are animals and they have their place in the home. Henry just believes they are one of the family and from all appearances, get the same treatment.

Now most everything in today's world calls for more speed even to the cattle breeding associations. Most breeders now use the artificial insemination instead of the grand sire or gentleman cow of the farmyard. Modern ways although seem to take some of the humour out of life as many of us elders look back. No more do you see the grand old farm bull bellowing and pawing the dirt in the back pasture. Years ago when you entered a farm yard "old bull" would greet you from a steel pen in the barn with a bellow of defiance. "Just let me out of here and I will show you who is boss".

Sometimes memories were met with thrill or plain being scared as you think of how granddad's bull could make you run like the devil. Sometimes the ornery critter caught up to some and it was curtains if those horns nailed you.

Old granddad's of yesteryear did not fool with their champion of the pasture. Some old granddad's got as "ornery" as the bull and retaliated with a load of buckshot aimed in the right spot and Mr Bull bellowed not from defiance because he was hit in the "pride" where it hurt the most.

Gentlemen cows probably were the big scared bulls as most bullies are even when they were met with a smaller foe.

Nothing would do one more good then to see the old form of defiance and rage take off to the far end of the pasture with a small dog nipping at his heels.

Milking a cow even has gone modern and milkers, tanks, etc.

have taken the human element out of the cow barn. Of course farmers look back on a hot night when the flies were bad and no doubt will stick to the milking machine. Did you ever get swatted across the face with a swishing Cow's tail? Probably a clip from a nice looking lassie across the "mug" is an insult. Insult you say, try getting that hairy cow's tail full in the nose and your temper will rise fifty degrees in nothing flat.

Old fashioned milking stools are a thing of the past in most barns. Farmer John is not in the mood to have "bossy" the cow slam him on his ear, stick her foot in the pail of milk and turn her head with a snort, give you a dirty look and go on eating her hay. "Oh well, tomorrow is another day."

More pitchforks have been bent and two by fours broke in barns over cows backs then can be recorded. Farmer John's temper could not always be counted on in the battle with "bossy". Even the little wife could come in for a few extra words that slur the English language if the cows acted up.

To-day's world has become sophisticated with modern gadgets and machines of the local farm. Output maybe more, the taxes higher and even farmers get ulcers in this modern life.

For after all if you took a shot at a cross bull or even so much as cussed that pure bred cow or told "The wife to go bury her head in the horse trough", you know what the penalty is.

First of all the humane society would have you up for cruelty to dumb animals and above all, mental cruelty and grounds for divorce for talking back to the little helper, your wife.

Farmers once had a most pleasant occupation even though the work was hard and the pay small. Farmer John was his own boss, independant and you could get the blazes off of his acres if he had a mind to tell you.

To-day with modern equipment, more output, a cleaner efficient farmer, it could be heaven. Just the same its small pay, work longer hours and by "Jove" I wonder if he is still his own boss.

NEAL JESSOP, a detective with Windsor Police and chairman of the Police Association of Ontario, said police work "is a business where people over 60 years of age should not be involved in," adding that "many of us suffer from burnout."

"When you get to be 60 years old, do you want to be chasing a 21-year-old punk down Ouellette Avenue?"

He said while officers in larger forces enjoy excellent early-retirement plans, smaller departments need pension improvements to encourage older officers to retire early after they've "given their all on the street."

Since the coming of the Bell Telephone System to this area, nothing maddens a person more than the sound of a "beep, beep" busy signal.

Some folk only use the phone for business or urgent matters only to find a line held up for as high as twenty minutes or sometimes for hours because a receiver was left off the hook. People should realize that the phone is everybody's property and not a private sewing circle and should give the other fellow a chance to get his two cents' worth in also.

During the old days if you kept the line too long some one would tell you "to get the h— off the line", in no uncertain terms.

Modern conveniences cost money and there is no fun in talking back to a "beep, beep", that talks a mechanical language that tempers cannot be taken out on.

Police pick new association head

Const. Rick Houston a 20-year veteran of the Windsor police force, has been elected president of the Windsor Police Association.

Houston, 39, recently defeated Const. Mike Kelly in a close race for the top spot on the association executive.

He replaces Det. Neal Jessop, who plans to run for the presidency of the Ontario Police Association (OPA) during the provincial body's convention in Windsor this August.

JESSOP, 41, who has served ten years on the association executive, including five as president, said he decided not to run this year because he wants to spend more time with his family.

He is currently chairman of the OPA, elected last year by the 20,000-member provincial association's board. His run for the OPA presidency will be waged among members of the association's 125 locals.

Houston, who has served five years on the association executive, said his immediate goal is preparing for contract negotiations next month on behalf of the department's 82 civilian employees.

Houston, a patrol officer in the department's No. 2 precinct, has served in the uniform and traffic division and the police identification branch. He and his wife Sharon have four children.

Also elected to the association executive were directors Const. David Doidge, Const. Roger Mortimore, Const. Harry DeJong, Const. David Rossell and Const. Michael Laporte.

Head of police

Jessop said police should be allowed to use the methods in question "in cases where there's reasonable and probable grounds to believe there is evidence to be obtained.

"IF YOU'VE got heroin in your mouth and I know you've got heroin in your mouth, I'm going to get it because heroin is bad."

Jessop said police have enough restrictions governing their actions to prevent abuses. And to his knowledge, he said, truth drugs are only administered on a voluntary basis.

"We can't order a doctor to perform surgery on anybody. We have to get authority from a court in the very extreme case (surgery is necessary)."

Surgery is an alternative police consider if a suspect has swallowed evidence. Ultrasound and X-rays are other alternatives.

"Nobody believes in protecting the individual more than I do but there's a lot of individuals out there who've never done a criminally wrong thing in their lives (and) are tired of watching people who've done a lot of wrong things get away with breaking the law," Jessop said.

IF THE commission's recommendations are adopted as law, one veteran Windsor officer said the battle against crime would become "like trying to fight a forest fire with a garden hose."

"I don't buy that," countered Gerald Tuck, president of the Essex County Criminal Lawyers' Association. "I think police have plenty of power."

Tuck heralded the commission's recommendations as "a step in the right direction."

Last month the commission drew scathing criticism from the Canadian Chiefs of Police Association (CCPA). A report compiled by the CCPA said the commission was out of touch with society and "has in fact been working at cross purposes to the objectives of protecting the Canadian public."

Head of police group slams 'reforms'

By Eric Mayne
Star Police Reporter

The chairman of Ontario's police association challenged the federal Law Reform Commission's chairman Thursday to "come down into the streets" and see how bitter the public is about Canada's justice system.

Windsor Police Det. Neal Jessop was responding to a commission report released Wednesday by Mr. Justice Allen Linden which recommended changes to search and seizure laws.

"Poor Mr. Justice Linden ought to come down into the streets with the rest of us and realize the public is angry," said Jessop, chairman of the Police Association of Ontario (PAO).

"The public is tired of criminals walking away because the police violated some technicality of search and seizure."

THE COMMISSION'S report recommended police be prohibited from using truth drugs, surgery, medicine, ultrasound, X-rays and personal searches to obtain evidence.

"I might be chairman of the PAO but I'm out there on the streets everyday with (the public) and they're tired of people who never reach the streets, who wander around in hallowed hallways and quiet libraries making those kinds of decisions for them," Jessop said. "When the criminals start attacking judges and defence lawyers, their tune's going to change, too."

Following Wednesday night the Wednesday night gang of the Sandwich South League of bowlers would know who was who for the season end. Up until this past week about five teams were battling for the top positions.

The "Hawks" club captained by Lottie Rice at this writing were topping the league by a slim margin. Lottie's crew of five pin leaders includes, Larry Jessop, Glen MacKenzie, Lil Snyder and Jim Donaldson.

Two other clubs also have their eyes trained for the top spot, the "Sparrows" which included Joe Rice, "Kim" Jessop, Ann Robinson, Lil Washbrook and "Sny" St. Louis. The "Robins" captained by "Sam" Jessop and bowlers, Joan Wood, Earl Robinson, Mary Jessop and Marion Carter were also scrapping for a top rung.

Latest recruits fill bill

Brains and brawn needed in police jobs

By SID ENGLISH

Windsor Police Department is looking for brains as well as brawn in its new recruits.

And two of the latest additions fill the bill.

Neil Jessop, 25, of RR 1, Cottam, and John McRobb, 22, of 1267 Lincoln Rd. were sworn in as constables Sept. 2.

Jessop is a graduate of McMaster University, Hamilton — the first university graduate to join the Windsor Police Department.

McRobb has one course to complete to get a bachelor of science degree in chemistry from the University of Windsor. He hopes to have it by next summer.

Both had a keen interest in police work before joining — Jessop as a member of the Ontario Provincial Police auxiliary force at Essex detachment and McRobb as a member of the Windsor auxiliary force. McRobb is also pipe major for the newly formed police pipe band.

Both admit the "pocketbook" also had something to do with their joining.

This year Windsor Police got a contract giving them the second highest salaries of any police department in the province.

The new recruits receive a starting salary, as fourth class constables, of $7,450. Jessop and McRobb will get an extra $500 a year for their degrees.

The recruits will be on probation for 18 months during which time they take a six-week course at the police college in Aylmer.

If they stick with it for three years and pass all examinations they will graduate to the rank of first class constable who presently earn $8,650 a year.

Jessop as a fourth class constable makes more than he did as a production supervisor at H. J. Heinz in Leamington. He joined Heinz in May, 1966 after graduating from McMaster with a degree in economics and commerce.

CONSTABLE McROBB

CONSTABLE JESSOP

University was "something to do while I made up my mind. I wasn't certain what I wanted to do even when I got out," he said.

"I've always been interested in police work and decided this year to give it a try.

"I feel it's a worthwhile job and a service to my community. I always look for something that has a purpose," Jessop said.

McRobb got interested in police work while helping to organize the police band pipers last year.

"I talked to members of the band about what was involved (in police work) and got interested. It talked to someone from almost every department and got a good cross section of what the job entails. I decided I'd like to find out first hand," he said.

Although he admits the salary is "quite attractive" he did not worry "too much" about the financial end of it as he wanted to get into "something I like."

The demand for brains as well as brawn in recruits arose "specifically in the last two or three years," Inspector James McLaughlin of the personnel office said.

"We're looking for ability plus," he said. "A new recruit now needs brains and intestinal fortitude — a strong back helps though," he added.

Chief Gordon Preston, who aims to professionalize the force, said police work is now attracting people with better educational standards.

"They realize now there is a future in police work and that the pay is comparable to other vocations," he said.

"The Board of Police Commissioners is encouraging this type of educated young man to join the force," he said.

The commissioners have embraced the concept of better educated police and will give financial assistance to any policeman who tries to advance himself.

Several Windsor policemen are taking courses at the University of Windsor and St. Clair College. A few are working the night shift so they can take full classes during the day, Chief Perston said.

About 30 Windsor policemen graduated this year from a two-year certificate course in humanities and political science at the University. Each received a $200 a year bonus.

The commission paid out about $3,000 in educational assistance this year, Chief Preston said.

And that figure should increase considerably as graduates from the two-year course have been invited to enrol in a new law course this fall.

The course is on a one-year basis but the chief said he hopes it will be continued into a program of several years. The course starts September 17.

At the same time the original program on humanities and political science will enrol its third class from policemen in the tri-county area.

Many Changes Since 1920

Oldcastle Co-op Going Concern

OLDCASTLE — The Co-op here was formed in 1920 to serve the community with groceries but now the grocery business is almost extinct at the co-op. Co-op officials have found it hard to compete with the vast number of modern supermarkets that have sprung up in the interim period.

Instead the co-op now carries a complete line of farm materials—petroleum, fertilizer, feed, in short, anything that a farmer could need. Wheat, soya beans, corn, oats and barley are received in volume.

Starting from a grocery store in 1920, the 450 member co-op has grown steadily since 1951 when the first grain storage elevator was erected. The grain elevator was followed by a new feed mill in 1952.

The following year saw the co-op put in a seed cleaner so that farmers could bring in their seed to be treated and top quality seed would be ensured. In 1958 a large warehouse, 50 feet by 200 feet, was built to store fertilizer and cement.

Progress was continued this year when two new silos were erected, capable of storing 10,000 bushels of grain.

The co-op now has a maximum storage of 50,000 bushels. Also new this year is the grain dryer, capable of drying six hundred bushels of wheat an hour.

Manson Jessop, manager of the co-op, who has worked there for 26 years, figures the most significant move made was construction of the grain elevators in 1951.

Limited storage facilities previously had hampered the co-op's ability to handle all the farmers. He also credits the use of ammonium nitrate fertilizer as making a vast improvement in crop yields over the years.

She's on her way to Australia, to study India

By Debbie Golden
Star Staff Reporter

Today, 23-year-old Deborah Jessop will kiss her parents goodbye, wave so long to Windsor, and head for the land down under.

Her dream is now a reality, but it wasn't until just a few weeks ago she even had an opportunity to get excited about going to Australia. Most of her time was occupied with finishing her Asian Studies thesis at the University of Windsor before departing.

Last week, as she took a few moments from a busy schedule to discuss her good fortune — a $10,000 scholarship to the Australian National University — it all began to sink in. And it was plain to see this seasoned traveller could hardly wait to begin the latest in what may well become a continuing series of foreign adventures.

Deborah's been more fortunate than most students. Two years ago, she travelled to India as an exchange student, where she spent an entire summer gathering the information she's now using to complete her thesis.

"I thought being accepted as an exchange student would qualify as the high point in my life," she said. "Receiving this scholarship helped change my mind."

She admitted it came as a surprise. About a year ago, Deborah, now a graduate student, applied for a Canadian Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan. She was prepared to spend at least two years in Australia if she was accepted, but really didn't think it would happen.

The two-year Australian Award is given only to a handful of Canadian students each year, as well as a few from each of the other 50 or so participating Commonwealth countries. The selection committee makes its choice based solely on an applicant's scholastic achievements. Only three of 75 applicants were chosen for the 1978 scholarships.

This award doesn't afford a recipient the same prestige a Rhodes scholarship does, but nonetheless Deborah said it's still quite an honor. "An honor and a privilege," she quipped. "And plenty of hard work. It's not going to be easy — being away from home for two years — but it'll be different to say the least."

Two years, she said, perhaps even three. According to scholarship rules, a recipient may be given up to a year's extension, depending on the length of time needed to complete a thesis.

"That doesn't worry me though. I know it's going to be tough, but it doesn't scare me. It's not the first time I've had my work cut out for me."

If the whole thing sounds rather ominous, Deborah assured us it's not. "It's great fun, travelling to strange places. When I was in India, I felt like I was in a whole different world. I was, I guess. It's really great to see and absorb an entirely different culture."

Some may ask why Deborah is going to Australia to study when it's so obvious her interest lies in India. Simple, she said. "The Australian National University is one of the few places I can earn my Masters degree and really learn something. It has an excellent Asian Study course. Most university courses like it lack depth."

Once she completes her education, Deborah hopes to become a government advisor on Indian affairs or, perhaps, a teacher. She'll do anything, she said, to help clear up some of the misconceptions about the country she finds so enticing.

"Best to start in the schools," said Deborah. "The people of India are not all poverty-stricken, in fact poverty is only one aspect of the country, and it's not number one. Neither is over-population."

Far more important, said Deborah, are the contributions India has made in arts and science.

While her future isn't on the line if she fails to complete her two years of study in Australia, Deborah admitted — although somewhat kiddingly — it will make a difference once she enters the job market. "It'll look good on a resume. But really, I'm there to represent my country — if I go dancing naked in the streets it will be a poor reflection of Canada — so I'm going to try and do the best I can."

Deborah said she's a little unhappy about leaving her family behind — naturally she'll be homesick. Her departure, however, could hardly be described as bittersweet.

"Living in Canada after having seen other foreign countries is like outgrowing living with your parents. It's good to be on your own — it helps you grow. And, fortunately for me, I'm being given the opportunity to express that urge.

"But I'll come back," said Deborah. "After all, this is home."

Dear Farmer Customers

If prices are down and things go wrong,
Keep your chin up and shop Co-op.

DON'T QUIT!

When things go wrong,
As they sometimes will —
When the road you're travelling,
Seems all uphill,
When the funds are low,
And the debts are high
And you want to smile,
But you've got to sigh —
When care is pressing you down a bit,
Rest, if you must, but don't you quit!

Oldcastle Co-Operative

Oldcastle, Ont.

WALTER JESSOP, Mgr.

Fri. July. 9.54

Oldcastle Co-Operative will hold their annual directors and shareholders meeting at 8 p.m., in the Sandwich South Town Hall, Monday evening, February 25th.

No dividends will be paid to shareholders this year but interest on all money at 4% will be paid to its investors.

The Co-Op this past year did over a million dollars worth of business. Profits were not high due to stiff competitive markets and high moisture discounts on grains in a year of wet combining time for grain.

The past year also the Co-Op paid off highly to deceased members in the amount of some $1,500 to $2,000.

In the Co-Op regulations on the death of a member all accrued dividends, loans and interest are paid to a member's estate within one year of death.

Membership in the Oldcastle Co-Operative has risen to some 440 members since its opening in 1920 and comprises of members throughout Essex County and the U. S. A.

Membership is open at any time with a $50 loan that can begin with a $10 deposit in the Co-Operative. Four per cent is paid yearly on the member's loan and yearly dividends.

The present Co-Op board includes Lloyd Faribairn, president; Stephen Esping, vice-president; John Bart, secretary; directors, Leo Dufour, Clifford O'Neil, Stanley A. Drouillard and John R. Shuel. Some of the above directors are up for election this year.

BUILT TO LAST

This is the home of Ken Jessop of 4475 Howard Avenue, Windsor and is rented by his daughter, Mrs. Norman Dobson.

Over the years the house has not seen as many changes as the area in which it is situated. The house was built about 125 years ago by a pioneer in Essex, John Franklyn Jessop. He originally settled on the other side of Howard in a log cabin he and his family built by hand.

John Jessop had 12 children, six boys and six girls. The 300 acres of his settlement were eventually divided among the boys. One son, William Leslie, had two sons, one of whom is Ken, the present owner of the home. The other son, Robert, lives a few houses down on Howard and enjoys farming 38 acres of the original 300. Both men rent and farm about 325 acres in the vicinity of this white-framed house. At one time the house was wood, but was later re-sidings of aluminum siding. Also at one time the house was one of about 25 or 30 houses situated on the avenue in the immediate area and across Highway there is a whole lot of them and farms as well.

Other than the outward surroundings of the home, the house has all the modern conveniences of today's society taken into its inside walls. It was believed that when Bill Ken's grandfather settled in the Windsor area, an Indian came across from him. Grand John is mentioned in a book "Men of Achievement" and is believed to have been one of the men to trek across Canada.

Now the home is one of the few in Windsor that boasts of productive farmland.

A beautiful wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's church with the Pastor Rev. Fr. A.P. Marentette officiating, when Agnes Gay Jobin R.N., became the bride of Lawrence Ronald Arthur Bowen, of the R.C.M.P. of Toronto. Given in marriage by her father, Harold Jobin, the bride was a radiant bride in her floor length white gown with lace overdress and tulle veil and carried a cascade bouquet of white and red roses. The groom was in his dress uniform as was his groomsmen and ushers. Gay's sisters Miss Lana Jobin, R.N. and Miss Terri Jobin were lovely in their floor length gowns of blue sheer enhanced with red roses. They carried umbrellas of red and white carnations. The altar was lovely with white baskets of white gladiolus and red carnations. A reception and dinner followed the nuptial mass, for 150 guests at the Fogolar-Furlan Club. Here for the wedding from out of town were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bowen and his two brothers and wives of St. John's New Brunswick, also Mr. and Mrs. Roger Garneau (Debbie Jobin) of Toronto and others. Congratulations to the happy young couple.

Wins 3 Championships . .

A teenage North Bay boy was only one of several hundred persons who competed in the recent Canadian Trap Shooting Championships at Hamilton, but he sprang into prominence when he opened fire with his Winchester Model 12 shotgun.

Steve Jobin, who started to shoot trap under the tutelage of senior members of the North Bay Skeep and Trap Club about a year ago, powdered enough targets to earn three national championships in the event at the Hamilton Gun Club.

A student at Chippewa Secondary School, Steve, 17, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lanny Jobin of 268 Seventh Ave. He is also the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. John Kolody of Maidstone.

Competing under the pressure of some of Canada's top trap shooters, Steve won the Canadian championship in C Class with 98 out of 100 targets in the preliminary, 16-yard event. Also in the preliminaries he won the 20-yard, handicap event with a high over-all for Canadian shooters of 98 out of 100.

In later competition, Steve placed first in the Junior Canadian Championship in the 21-yard handicap event with 92 out of 100. He was runner-up in the high overall Canadian Junior competition with 810 targets out of 900.

Teenager's desire to have a job ends in death on northern road

THE WINDSOR STAR, NOV. 2, 1983 - Accident Oct. 31/83.

GRANDPARENTS ARE THE JOHN KOLODY'S, MAIDSTONE

A former Windsor man whose job search took him 1,125 km (700) miles north to Iroquois Falls Ont., this summer died in a single-car accident there as he was returning home from work.

Allen Jobin, 19, was returning from his new job at a gas station Monday when the Volkswagen he was driving skidded into a ditch and struck a culvert.

The car flipped, throwing Mr. Jobin 42 metres (140 feet) into the centre of Highway 67. He died five hours later at Anson General Hospital in Iroquois Falls.

Police said he was passing a school bus at about 8:15 a.m. when he lost control of his vehicle.

ACCORDING TO AN Iroquois Falls OPP report, Mr. Jobin was travelling at a high rate of speed and may have skidded on a patch of frost as he passed the bus.

There were no other injuries.

He had been working the midnight shift at the station.

Mr. Jobin's mother, Carol, said Tuesday her son was staying with an aunt and uncle at the time of the crash.

She said Mr. Jobin "couldn't find a job in Windsor" and accepted his aunt's offer to move north where she said jobs — though low paying — were available.

Mrs. Jobin said her son, who had attended Shawnee Secondary School before quitting to find a job, was employed two days after he arrived in Iroquois Falls from the family's Drouillard Road home.

Iroquois Falls is about 64 km (40 miles) northeast of Timmins.

MRS. JOBIN DESCRIBED her son as athletic and was popular in the Drouillard Road area. "Al was a happy-go-lucky guy, personality plus."

Mrs. Jobin said neighbors were stunned by the news of her son's death.

"It's a waste. All you say is 'why him,'" Mrs. Jobin said.

He is survived by his parents Carol and Fred, brothers Dave and Wayne and sisters Michelle, Vicki, Sherri and Cindy, all of Windsor.

The body is at Windsor Chapel Funeral Home. Visitation will be after 7 p.m. today. A funeral will be held Friday at 9 a.m. with a service at Most Precious Blood Church at 9:30 a.m.

IN MEMORIAM

JOBIN — In loving memory of our loving son, Alec, who passed away November 30th, 1973.

It's a tribute to love and remembrance,

To a son we will never forget,

His memory to us is a treasure,

His loss a lifetime regret.

The sweet sounds of his laughter,

The sunshine of his smile, These are the memories we treasure.

And think of all the while.

There is no parting for those we love.

No distance can divide, Each day in Memory's Garden,

We still walk side by side. Lovingly remembered by Mom and Stepfather.

JOBIN

Mrs. Irene Jobin passed away on Sunday evening at the home of her daughter, Margaret, Mrs. Lorne T. Rowson of 4000 Riverside Drive, Riverside, following a stroke, surrounded by all her children. Mrs. Jobin is the last of her family, the youngest daughter of a family of 14 of the late John Halford and Ellen Barrett and was born June 25th 1875 on the homestead and farm of 200 acres her father had cleared as a young man after immigrating with his father from County Meath, Ireland. Deceased married in 1896 to Thomas Jobin and they were well known farmers on the 9th Concession of Sandwich South until Mr. Jobin retired in 1925. They moved to 981 Moy Ave., Windsor. Mrs. Jobin was suddenly bereaved a year later when Mr. Jobin died of a heart attack. In October 1955 Mrs. Jobin fell and suffered a broken hip and was hospitalized until the following May. Deceased was a member of the Alter Society and Catholic Women's League of Immaculate Conception Church, Windsor, who acted as honorary pallbearers, where her funeral was held on Wednesday morning with Solemn Requiem High Mass. Burial beside her beloved husband in St. Alphonsus Cemetery. Deceased is survived by 3 sons and 3 daughter, Frank, a councillor and farmer on the home place Sandwich South, Leo and John of Windsor; Aglae. Mrs. Earl Blouin, of Plymouth, Michigan; Margaret, Mrs. L. T. Rowson, of Riverside and Alice, Mrs. C. R. Roberts, of Grosse Pointe Shores, Michigan; 14 grandchildren, among whom is Velma Roberts, Sister Rosaire Marie, of the Dominican Order, Hollywood, Florida, and 15 great grandchildren. Two nieces of St. Joseph Order, Windsor; Sister Edmunda, of the Sisters of Providence, St. Mary's of the Woods, Indiana; pre-deceased her Mrs. Jobin was also the mother of Triplets who died in infancy. Pallbearers were six nephews, Frank J. Halford, of Detroit; John Brazill, of Paquette; Peter Halford; Gordon Jobin and Pat McAuliffe of Maidstone; and Llewellyn Dunn of Windsor.

We are sorry to report that Miss Blanche Brazill of Detroit, fell three weeks ago and fractured her shoulder. She hopes to have the cast removed in another week.

Roger Barrette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Barrette who reside on the Henry Collins farm, entered the novitiate of the Redemptorist Order at Brockville, Ontario.

Mar. 29. 57

The many friends and relatives in this community of Mrs. Irene Jobin will be pleased to know that she was able to be brought to her home, 961 Moy avenue, Windsor, after over seven months in Hotel Dieu. She is now able to walk with a cane. Mrs. Jobin will celebrate her 81st birthday on June 25th.

A practically new cement block building was no match for the violent winds on Tuesday night and this building was demolished with farm machinery in it being damaged. This building belongs to Gordon Jobin of the 9th Concession Sandwich South. Also on the Jobin farm another cement block building, a garage and parts of the Jobin home were damaged by the severe winds.

Another view of a cement block building blown down during the Tuesday night wind storm. This building is on the Gord Jobin farm concession 9 Sandwich South. Mr. and Mrs. Jobin were in the house at the time of the storm, but damages to the house were less severe and no injuries were reported.

Fellow firefighters help Jobin celebrate 5th at world meet

A gathering at Danilo's Restaurant on Wednesday, November 6 celebrated the fifth place finish of Joslyne Jobin at the International Firefighters' Combat Challenge on October 31. In Florida's 90 degree heat, over 800 firefighters converged for three days of skill, strength and endurance competitions. Jobin was up against 38 other female firefighters, competing individually, from the U. S. A, Canada and as far as Germany. With a two-minute -33 second time, Jobin was ranked second going into the finals where she added five seconds to her time. Jobin achieved her personal best of 2:21 at the Canadian Firefighters Combat Challenge, held in Windsor this September. That (third place) finish time earned her a spot in the International Challenge where six Canadian women firefighters competed. Jobin was one of four who finished in the top five.

At the recent gathering, Jobin accepted congratulations and thanked fellow Tecumseh Firefighters for assisting in fundraising to send her to the world meet and for their tremendous support. (The flowers were a nice touch Donnie.) Joslyne especially acknowledged her brother Phil Jobin (shown with her), a Windsor firefighter who has been her coach / trainer every day for the last four years. He and the Windsor Firefighters' Combat Challenge Team have given her invaluable advice and support, and use of their training tower/obstacle course. Incidentally, the Windsor team took first place at the International Firefighters' Combat Challenge. 'Hats Off' to Jack Bailey, Darren Hillman, Jim Marusic, Rob Fawcett and Cory Bessette.

ROWSON - Margaret H., 82 years, October 14, 1986. Late of Riverside Drive E. Predeceased by her husband Lorne T. Rowson (Aug. 1980). An eight-month old pure bred Holstein heifer mauled by a wild dog in Sand. South Div. died within 24 hrs. The heifer owned by Gordon Jobin, Cows. 9 was found in Little River where she apparently floundered to escape the murderous attack. The water was too low to harm her. In addition to the huge chunk ripped out of her face, she was covered with claw and bite marks over many parts of her body. Mr. Jobin shot at the dog but missed.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and gratitude to our many friends, neighbours, UCW of Maidstone, relatives who came from the north to attend the funeral, for their many acts of kindness, visits, mass cards and floral contributions in our recent loss of a dear grandson Allen Jobin.

Special thanks to all the caring neighbours, co-workers and the Dart League from Iroquois Falls, Ont. for their cards and floral contributions sent from there to express their sorrow. Also special thanks to all the good ladies who served and prepared a very lovely luncheon after the services and to the administration of the Ukrainian Hall on Seminole St. for providing the building and facilities for the service. We are all very grateful to say the least.

Child Killed

The Village was saddened on Thursday evening when Billie Gould, age 8 years old, passed away, while being taken to the hospital, after being hit by a car, while he was riding his bicycle on Highway 114 in front of the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Gould (Rose John). The driver of the car, Ivna Joseph Beneteau, a next door neighbour, was completely exonerated by O. P. P. as he was meeting a car in the north bound lane of traffic and Billy was riding south, the same way as the car was going. It was just dusk, and 114 had just been black-topped. Billy was a Grade 2 school boy, at the Village School and is survived besides his bereaved parents, by a brother Danny and a sister Judy. Funeral was held from Kennedy Funeral Home, Essex, to Mass at St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Rev. Fr. J. A. Mackesy officiating. Burial in St. Mary's Cemetery in the John plot. Pallbearers were Jim Flood and Richard Cloutier, neighbors; and four cousins, Michael Guiley of Village; Allan and Keith John of Chatham and Christopher John, of Windsor.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Arthur LaChance (Dorothy Eleanor Ann Jobin) daughter of Mrs. Vincent Brown, and the late Clarence Jobin, whose wedding was an event in St. Mary's Church at 10 o'clock last Saturday morning, with Rev. Fr. Pare, of Tecumseh, a college classmate of the groom, officiating, and Rev. Fr. J. A. Jordon in the sanctuary. The Bride, who was radiant in a beautiful white wedding gown, had her only sister, Madeline (Mrs. Everett McGuire) as her matron of honour, and the groom's sister, Miss Kathleen LaChance, as bridesmaid. The groom's niece, Mary Margaret Poisson, of Riverside, was an adorable flower girl. The groom's best men were Stanley Bissonnette, of Staples and Everett McGuire. A wedding breakfast was served at Poplar Inn, Cottam, and a dinner at 4 p.m., for 70 guests, at Harrow's Civic Centre, with the wedding reception following for 500 guests. The happy young couple received beautiful gifts and are on a honeymoon trip to Florida, and on their return will reside in Essex.

This community was saddened on Monday on hearing that Mrs. Dorothy LaChance had died suddenly in Windsor. Deceased was born on No. 3 Hwy. Oct. 1931, younger daughter of the late Clarence Jobin and Mrs. Vincent Brown (Florence Lassaline Jobin) who is left to mourn her passing. Her husband Joseph LaChance Jr., three children Susanna, Joseph and Paul; one sister Madeleine, Mrs. Everett McGuire, also survive. Funeral will be held Wednesday at 10 o'clock from Kennedy Funeral Home to St. Mary's Church. Rev. Fr. John M. Fogarty officiating at the Requiem Mass. Interment in Family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery. One of the largest country-style auction sales seen in this area in the past 10 years was held Saturday at the farm of Frank Jobin, in Sandwich South Township. Hundreds of agricultural implements, from large binders and tractors to bits and pieces, fell to the auctioneer's hammer. Hundreds of district farmers came to the sale and prices were reported as "quite good." This scene took place as auctioneer

T. D. Wismer called for bids on a tree-sprayer. Inset is Frank Jobin, who decided to call it quits as far as farming is concerned and is retiring to a life of ease.

Library Aid

Telex Offers Fast Service

SARNIA—The search for books and special reference material by district libraries may be speeded up in the future by a Telex wire communications system.

The possibility of using such a device was the main topic under discussion at a meeting of the Western Ontario Regional Library Co-op Association held here Saturday.

The committee, formed of representatives of libraries in Chatham, Windsor and Sarnia, as well as from Lambton, Essex and Kent counties feel the use of such a modern communications system would greatly increase the library's usefulness in the community.

The proposed plan calls for teletype services connecting Windsor, Chatham and Sarnia, with wires also available to Ottawa and Toronto.

The plan calls for messages to be sent via teletype to the three libraries when special books and reference material are requested but not available.

The county libraries would be able to call the nearest teletype centre by telephone, and also use the new facilities.

If when the request sent out could not be filled by any of the libraries in the region, then a call for assistance to Toronto and Ottawa could be made, and request information about where the material would be more readily available.

At present, the libraries in the association are required to use telephone connections when such a request is made.

Also, in Toronto and Ottawa, a similar system is already in effect, and the Western Ontario region could readily connect into the system.

Sarnia representative Leo Langan, said if the plan proved feasible, it would likely go into effect next September.

The WORLCA, still in its infancy, was formed last fall under the supervision of the Ontario Government to provide a better liaison between municipal and rural libraries.

The Sarnia meeting was the third in the organization's short history.

The association operates under the supervision of the department of libraries, a branch of the Ontario Department of Education. Hopes of the organization are to promote the further development of county libraries in Lambton, Kent and Essex counties.

At present, in Ontario, only one other of the same type exists, located in the Niagara Peninsula.

The western region is under the direction of Miss Louise Schryver, Chatham, and chairman of the six-man board is G. C. Grainger of Wallaceburg.

Other representatives are from Sarnia, Amherstburg, Windsor and Wyoming.

The decision on the proposed scheme for speedier communications is expected to be reached when the association meets next June in Amherstburg.

Cleanup Meet Set April 14

ESSEX — "Home Beautification" is the theme for the April 14 meeting of Essex County Junior Farmers at 8:30 p.m. The meeting, with recreation also on the program, will be held at Essex District High School.

The association executive is urging members to make this spring the year members plan to do more than just clean up. Whether they plan to paint buildings or plant trees on the farm, the executive promises new ideas at the April 14 meeting.

Colorful Scene

Auction Ends Career

By WALTER McCALL

For more than half a century, Frank Jobin tilled the fertile soil of his large farm in Sandwich South Twp.

Now a healthy 65 years old, Mr. Jobin decided to call it quits, satisfied with the bountiful yields of Good Mother Earth.

The fastest way to liquidate his farm assets, he decided, was through public auction. The result Saturday was one of the largest and most colorful country-style auction sales seen in this area for 10 years.

From miles around they came. Although the sale was not to begin until 12:30 p.m., buyers started streaming in by mid-morning. The flow continued all day, and for most of the time traffic was blocked up for a mile along the sides of Con. 9, often as far as Highway 401.

The scene was Mr. Jobin's Glynncoupie Farm. The spacious grounds around the farmhouse and barn were covered with farm machinery and agricultural implements, all doomed to go to the drop of the auctioneer's gavel.

The weather, sunny but chilly, was perfect. Whole families were there. The menfolk looked after the buying, and the women of several Ladies' Aid groups provided cups of steaming coffee.

The central figure throughout the day was auctioneer Ray Hunter, of RR 2, Essex. He was assisted by T. D. Wismer in disposing of the huge collection of farm equipment, which included four tractors, a truck, a large combine and dozens of sprayers and multiple-harrows to boxes of bolts and fencing wire.

Most of the buyers knew what they wanted. The sale was advertised for two weeks prior to the sale.

"C'mon boys, you know as well as I do what this item is worth," Mr. Hunter boomed, with a sweeping flourish of his cane in an attempt to raise bids. "Whaddo I hear there . . . sixty-five, five, five . . . there's sixty-six . . . sixty-six for this item, sixty-six . . . do I hear sixty-seven . . . going for sixty-six . . . once, twice, sold to that man for sixty-six!"

Crops Held By Weather

Transplanting Behind Schedule

RIVER CANARD — Continued cold weather and precipitation the past two weeks have delayed transplanting of cabbages and lettuce outside.

LaSalle and River Canard gardeners usually transplant these crops about the end of March, but they are still in greenhouses. Boxes of these plants are being taken out today and placed in sheds to provide greenhouse room for tomato plants. These latter are looking well.

The cabbage plants are growing rapidly and may suffer quite a setback when transplanted. Even if the weather clears and stays warm, planting outside would not likely take place for three days.

The cold weather is also affecting the radishes. They are growing slowly. The acreage is smaller than in former years, largely because the harvest comes at the same time as the outdoor planting of lettuce and cabbage. This creates a labor problem, and many growers prefer to operate with a minimum of labor costs.

And so it went all afternoon. Hundreds came and went. As the sunlight dwindled, so did the inventory of equipment left. The auctioneers worked up and down the lines, always standing on the next item so they could scan the sea of faces around them.

"Buying was brisk," Mr. Hunter commented when it was all over. "Prices were good and everyone is happy with how it went. Mr. Jobin is more than satisfied with what he got. It was a good sale," he said.

By dinner-time the yard was bare. The last stragglers were wandering back to their parked cars and pick-up trucks. Only a sea of footprints in the ground gave an indication of the flurry of vocal activity which had marked Mr. Jobin's last day as a farmer.

Joseph Lachance Passes

Joseph Lachance, 49 years, of Kingsville, passed away on Wednesday of last week.

Mr. Lachance, formerly of Essex, was a former businessman in the Essex and the Belle River area.

Surviving are a daughter, Suzanna and a son, Paul, both of Kingsville; his mother Mrs. Kathleen Lachance, Belle River and the late Joseph (1973); brother of Alvin, Essex; Mrs. Ed Poisson (Elaine), Windsor; Mrs. George Hope (Kathleen), Essex.

Funeral services were held from the Melady's Funeral Home, Belle River, on Saturday, Sept. 29, to Sts. Simon and Jude Church.

Interment was in Church Cemetery.

He was Past-President of Essex County Automobile Dealers Assoc. and charter member of Essex Lions Club.

'Miss Western Ontario' Reigns on Gifts Throne

"Excited? Who's excited?" jitters Miss Western Ontario for 1952 as she sits on a throne composed of gifts which will eventually total about $1,500, all the result of her winning effort at the 23rd annual Firemen's Field Day beauty contest last week. The queen, Miss Dorothy Jobin, 20, of 1744 Norman road, has been a busy girl since the contest and the largesse so becomingly displayed on and around her is the reason for her busy-ness and also her dizziness. The money is part of $325 in cash and the watch she holds checks in at a couple of hundred dollars. Even the automatic ironer is a gift. "It's a wonderful, wonderful world," chortles Queen Dorothy. And who are we to dispute it when the evidence is so plain to see? The thing she is fondest of is a complete secretarial course which she will start soon but which, of course, cannot be photographed. A lovely day for a lovely girl!

While 18,000 spectators cheered, Miss Dorothy Jobin, 20, of Windsor and Maidstone, wrapped up the 1952 beauty crown for Western Ontario in the culminating event of the four-day Firemen's Field Day at Jackson Park. It was one of the largest crowds in the 23-year history of the contest and one of the most closely contested affairs. Miss Jobin was runnerup last year for both the Miss Windsor and Miss Western Ontario crowns. Last night was ample reward for the two previous disappointments. Monarch of all she surveys, the sparkling-eyed beauty queen perches prettily here for a traditional "cheese-cake" after her victory. She is an employe of Hiram Walker and Sons. By way of compliment, the firm gave her a two-day holiday to rest up from a hectic three-day session of beautying.

After a reception at the Community Hall Centre in Harrow they left on a wedding trip to Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Lachance will reside in Essex.

Essex County Processors Complete Purchases

LEAMINGTON — Vegetable processors in Essex County have just about completed their contract crop acreage.

Tomatoes, peas, beans, sweet corn, the principal contract crops in the county, are about all contracted.

In most cases, acreages are about the same as they were a year ago.

The H. J. Heinz Company of Canada Limited at Leamington has just completed its tomato acreage contracts. A spokesman for the company said that there is some acreage of a few minor crops for which contracts are still available. Pyramid Cannery at Leamington and Stokely-Van Camp at Essex have completed their contracts for tomato acreages. In addition to tomatoes, Stokely's contract green and wax beans in Essex County.

Green Giant of Canada Limited at Tecumseh has sufficient pea and sweet corn acreage contracted. In Harrow, the W. Clark Company Limited has completed its tomato contracting.

Processors found no difficulty getting acreage for any of the Essex processing crops. In fact, with tomatoes, there were more growers willing to grow than the number who could get contracts, in some cases.

One factor which has had a bearing on the number of available acres for processing crops is that flue tobacco growers who find themselves down to a minimum of three acres of flue tobacco in Essex County have given up the idea of growing flue this year.

Another development which has influenced the acreage available for contract crops is the soybean situation. If soybeans were edging toward $2.75 a bushel, a good many farmers wouldn't grow so many tomatoes. Soybeans are a highly mechanized crop which can be produced with a minimum outlay of expense per acre, and in contrast to tomatoes, require little hand labor.

But the returns per acre are nowhere near as high, particularly in one of those so-so years when yields are nothing to scream about and prices are never commensurate with lower yields.

Mrs. Canilly John returned on Sunday after spending a week with her daughter, Dolores, husband Ronald Holland and family in Plymouth, Mich. Mrs. John's grandson, Brian Holland and wife left to enroll in the University of Arizona.

Christ the King Church, Windsor, was filled to capacity for the funeral of the late George John, showing the high respect and esteem his friends, neighbours and relatives had for him and his family. The mass was celebrated by the Pastor Mons. Philip Mogan and George's friend Rev. Fr. William, of London, a former secretary to Bishop Carter and now of the Christian Renewal Centre, gave the touching Homily. The pallbearers were eight nephews: Daniel Gould, Michael Gulley, Wayne and Brian Holland (Plymouth, Mich.), Frank and James John (Windsor), Allan and Keith John (Chatham). Interment was in Heavenly Rest Cemetery.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 1, 1952.

Bondy-John Nuptials.

At a lovely double-ring ceremony at St. Mary's Church, Maidstone, Rev. Fr. J. H. Chisholm united in marriage Miss Helen John daughter of Mrs. Emily John and the late Michael John, of Maidstone and Harold Bondy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Bondy of Riverside Drive.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother Mr. Philip John of Windsor, was lovely in a white ballerina of chantilly lace intercepted with nylon masquissette over satin with a tiara of Lilies of the Valley adorned her head. She carried a heart shaped bouquet of ruffled maline with Better Times roses and white stephanotis.

Miss Mary John, the bride's sister was Maid of honour, wore a strapless ballerina of pale yellow nylon marquisette doubled tiered, with matching stole and accessories. She carried a fan shaped bouquet of Lily of the Valley and Orchid Glamellias.

Stanley Bondy, brother of the bridegroom's, was best man. Michael John Jr., and Arnold Bondy were ushers.

During the ceremony Mrs. K. Walton presided at the organ and sang "On This Day O Beautiful Mother", "Ave Maria" and "The After Communion Hymn".

Following the ceremony a dinner was held at the Rendezvous Tavern on Riverside Drive, for the immediate families. The bride's table was centered with a lovely three tiered layer wedding cake embedded in white tulle with varied coloured pansies.

For her daughters' wedding Mrs. John wore a sheer blue over taffeta with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The Mother of the groom wore a sheer pale green over satin with matching accessories and a corsage of white Carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Bondy later left on a two weeks vacation at Grand Bend. The bride wearing, a white linen suit with matching accessories and a corsage of Better Times Roses.

Charming in a white velvet and lace wedding gown made with a sweetheart neckline and a fitted bodice. Rows of flounces draped gracefully at the back in a bustle effect, extended into a long cathedral train. Her three-quarter-length veil of French illusion matched the dress and was held in place by a beaded tiara with a scalloped edging. She carried a cascade of American Beauty roses and stephanotis and wore a three-strand pearl necklace.

Holland - Johns Wedding Rites Are Solemnized in Maidstone

MAIDSTONE — In St. Mary's Church, Maidstone, before an altar decorated with pink and white gladioli, Miss Delores Johns of Maidstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Johns and Mr. Ronald Holland of Leamington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Holland, were united in marriage. The Rev. J. H. Chisholm officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. George Johns, was charming in a white-velvet and lace wedding gown made with a sweetheart neckline and a fitted bodice. Rows of flounces draped gracefully at the back in a bustle effect, extended into a long cathedral train. Her three-quarter-length veil of French illusion matched the dress and was held in place by a beaded tiara with a scalloped edging. She carried a cascade of American Beauty roses and Stephanotis and wore a three-strand pearl necklace.

Mrs. William Gould, as her sister's matron of honor, was dressed in aqua taffeta with a mandarin coat effect, and a hooped skirt. Her crownless pleated hat of crinoline was in a matching shade, and she carried a nosegay of yellow and white carnations.

Miss Anne Breault was maid of honor and wore an identical gown of deep salmon pink taffeta and hat. Her bouquet was of rose and deep purple carnations with white streamers.

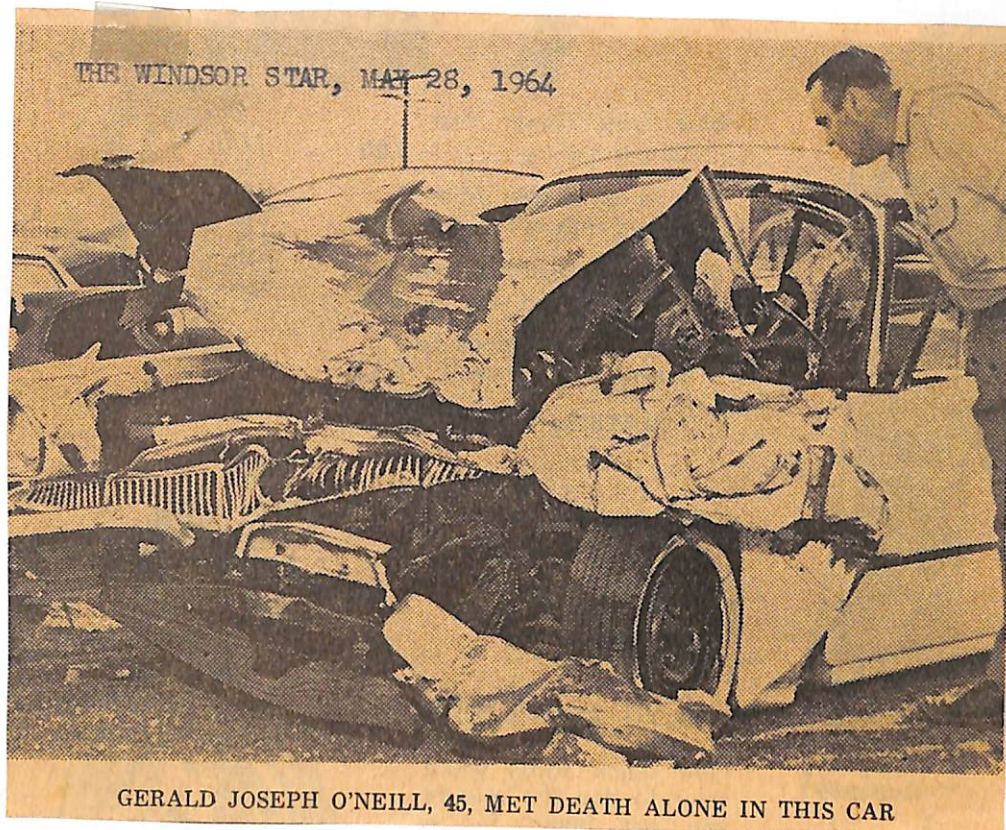

Mr. William Gould was best man, Mr. Peter Johns and Mr. Michael Johns were ushers.

Miss Mary Johns, sister of the bride, played the organ, and Mrs. Max Trimmer of Oldcastle sang "Ave Maria," "On Their Happy Wedding Day," "O Sacred Heart," "Mother at Your Feet We're Kneeling," and, during the signing of the register, "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You."

WINDSOR DAILY STAR
OCTOBER 27, 1959

On Tues. morning, Aug. 26, Mrs. Mike John, a longtime parishioner of Maidstone was laid to rest in St. Mary's Cemetery. Several generations of Maidstone residents made countless trips to "Mrs. John's", the local general store. In years gone by you could buy almost anything you needed there. Mrs. John worked seven days a week and long hours to provide a needed service to the small community of Maidstone. Our sympathy and prayers for her friends and family especially Mrs. Bill Gould (Rose) of Maidstone. Other children include Joe, Chatham; Peter, Windsor; Helen Bondy, Windsor; Michael of Indianapolis, Dolores Holland, Michigan and Mary Coyle, Ohio. Mrs. John was predeceased by her husband Mike and children, George, Philip and Josephine O'Neil.

A masked gunman pumped two .32-calibre bullets through the windows of a Maidstone store Wednesday evening, narrowly missing the cowering 62-year-old woman owner. The bandit and a companion fled in a stolen car without loot.

The gunman, "dressed like a tramp" and brandishing a small automatic, came to the door of the grocery store of Mrs. Emily Johns on Hwy. 3 at 9:35 p.m. He muttered through a dirty yellow handkerchief covering his face: "I mean business. Open up right away or I shoot."

"I thought it was a joke," said Mrs. Johns, who had just closed the store and was cleaning the floor. "Then I took a look at him. He was dirty, dressed like a tramp, a cap pulled down over his eyes, a filthy handkerchief on his face, and a gun in his hand.

"Then I knew he meant business—meant to kill. I am sure I knew him from somewhere.

"I screamed 'All right, don't shoot. I'll give you anything you want. I'll open the door right away, but please don't shoot.' I was scared, and I didn't want shooting at any cost.

door, so I reached backward to the floor.

"He must have thought I was reaching for a gun or something because he panicked. He ran to the window and fired a shot through. I was frightened to death and I kept screaming at him to stop—that he could have anything he wanted."

In the living quarters back of the store were relatives and friends playing cards. Hearing her grandmother's cries, Veronica Johns, 11, of Leamington, put down the corn she was munching and ran into the store.

"I saw grandma lying by the door screaming at me to go back," she said. "I shouted to the rest of the family and they came out. Then there was a bang like a cracker-jack going off."

Huddled behind the protection of the wooden lower part of the door, Mrs. Johns was watching the gunman run away. "He was heading for a car with another man in it. Then he stopped, turned around, aimed the gun at where I was and fired.

"One thing I am sure of. He was shooting to kill."

The second bullet hit the window a glancing blow, ricocheted through the woodwork, and went back toward the road. If it had continued its trajectory it would probably have hit Mrs. Johns.

JOHN
This was the second lucky escape. The first bullet—later found by O.P.P. officers inside the store—would have hit Mrs. Johns if she had reached for a bottle to the side of the door where they are usually kept.

As the gunman's car, thought to be a late-model Buick stolen from the Elmwood earlier in the evening, raced away toward Windsor, the frightened but undaunted woman rushed to the phone and gasped out her story to the police.

Within minutes all highways leading out of the area had been roadblocked. But the car was not found. O.P.P. officers thought it probably escaped by a sideroad.

An all-car alarm was sent out with a warning that another attempt at robbery might be carried out in the Windsor area during the evening.

Had the gunman been successful in robbing the store, his haul would have been only some small change still left in the till.

"It all happened so quick," gasped Mrs. Johns, still wearing a scrubbing apron, her gray-flecked hair mussed by the ordeal. "I thought I was going to have a heart attack.

"I have been in this store now since 1915, and we have never been robbed. And who would want to shoot me?"

"I thank God I am still alive. He must want me on the earth for something. I could easily be dead now—for that man meant to kill.

"But there is one thing I am sure. I know that guy. I can't quite place him—but I am sure I have seen him somewhere before."
